

Nixon, in Defeat, Scores Biggest Personal Victory of Career

By BILL BROOM
P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—In defeat, Richard M. Nixon appears to have scored the biggest personal victory of his career.

The outpouring of warm and emotional messages from Republicans and not a few Democrats since his close presidential election loss to Sen. John F. Kennedy has surprised even the dedicated Nixon staff.

"Right now, he is more popular with the public than ever before," said Nixon's press secretary, Herbert G. Klein. "He's the second most popular man in the country behind President Eisenhower."

Most of the thousands of telegrams and telephone calls expressing new esteem for Nixon came in response to his television speech early Wednesday morning conceding the election to Kennedy. Through them run three main currents of reaction.

A tremendous number urged Nixon to run for the presidency again in 1964 and to remain active in politics meanwhile.

Also in large numbers came praise for the grace with which Nixon accepted defeat.

In a third category were angry Republicans, who urged Nixon to ask for a recount in some of the closer states that provided Kennedy's winning margin. He refused to do that.

Surprisingly, in view of the closeness of the election, Klein said, there was an "almost total lack of criticism" of Nixon personally, nor were there any recriminations about his strategy or conduct of the campaign.

In defeat, Nixon's aides also point out, the vice president exerted a strong coattail effect on other Republican candidates. The GOP gained from 21 to 25 congressional seats, despite pre-election polls indicating it would lose up to 40.

Nixon ran 10 per cent ahead of the Republican ticket nationally. Outside the Deep South, he had an edge in the popular vote. He was particularly pleased with the outcome in the West, where Democrats decimated the GOP in 1956 and 1958.

Klein and Nixon campaign manager Robert H. Finch also made it clear that Nixon believes his aloofness from Republican charges of "we wuz robbed" also is contributing to the vice president's stature.

"We don't have enough specific information to evaluate the charges of voting irregularities, the charges and countercharges," said Finch. "We ran, the votes are counted, and we accept the decision."

RONDA PITTS ... She Played for Keeps
GIRL, 2, DIALS FOR AID

'My Aunt Is Having a Stroke,' Baby Sobs

MADISON, N. J. (AP)—"My aunt is having a stroke," 2-year-old Ronda Pitts sobbed to the telephone operator, and then hung up.

Her call saved her 42-year-old aunt from serious stroke complications Friday, police said.

Ronda, who likes to play with her toy telephone and who often dials numbers for her parents on the house phone, was alone with her aunt, Miss Helen Day, when Miss Day suffered a stroke.

The child dialed the operator who in turn traced the call and notified police. The first-aid unit dispatched by police found Miss Day unconscious on the kitchen floor of the home she shares with Ronda and her parents.

Miss Day regained consciousness after oxygen was administered. She was later reported in good condition.

Ronda's mother, Mrs. June Pitts, said later the child likes to play with the telephone. She said Ronda knew of earlier strokes suffered by Miss Day.

.10-Inch Rain Falls on L.B., More Today

Showers, poured .10 of an inch of rain on Long Beach Saturday, bringing the season's total here to .71.

The rain season is from July 1 to June 30. At the same time last year, Long Beach had received only .27 of an inch of moisture.

The weatherman predicted that rain probably would sprinkle the city again this morning and Monday afternoon. He forecast partial clearing this afternoon and Monday morning.

Blackout Hits Downey as Car Backs Into Pole

A power failure in the Downey area was expected to be corrected early today by crews of the Southern California Edison Co., after a transformer was burned out when an automobile backed into a high-tension utility pole.

A spokesman for the company said the blackout was caused when a car backed into a pole carrying high-voltage wires, causing them to come together, shorting out the transformer.

New Orleans Segregation Lines Drawn

School 'Holiday' Hit as Violation of Federal Law

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—New Orleans School Board President Lloyd Rittiner said Saturday night in his opinion a suddenly announced statewide public school holiday Monday—the day integration is scheduled here—would be "circumvention of the law."

State Supt. Shelby H. Jackson, Saturday night declared the state school holiday and requested all public schools to observe it, Jackson is a staunch segregationist.

Rittiner said a definite announcement of the school board's plan would be made before Monday morning.

Services Revamp Weighed

BEFORE MAKING any official announcement, Rittiner said he would have to confer with the school board's attorney and other board members.

"It is my opinion that we have been ordered by the federal court to desegregate on Nov. 14 and such a holiday would be a circumvention of the law," Rittiner said.

"Therefore to keep Mr. Jackson and the school board from being held in contempt, it may be necessary to go ahead with desegregation."

The brief announcement of the holiday came from Jackson's Baton Rouge office.

JACKSON has been named in a federal court order restraining him from interfering with New Orleans integration. It was not known whether a U.S. marshal had served him with the papers yet.

Jackson's announcement came as both sides lined up for last-ditch litigation and legislation.

From Washington, U.S. Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers warned he will use the full power of his office to prevent Louisiana officials from blocking court-ordered integration.

In a telegram to Louisiana Gov. Jimmie Davis in Baton Rouge, Rogers said he was confident Louisiana public officials would support the Constitution of the United States.

Davis, who had dodged process servers in earlier federal action, notified the U.S.

Over Last Horizon Gallops Jack Dalton, Fastest Gun

Powder River Jack—cousin of the famed Dalton outlaws, fast-draw artist and honorary mayor of the Nu-Pike—Saturday left for the last roundup at 3:50 a. m. from Memorial Hospital.

The former cowboy died at the age of 87.

Funeral service for Powder River — officially known as Jack Dalton of 45 Magnolia Ave. — is pending arrangements at Forest Lawn Mortuary in Long Beach.

The fast shot, entertainer extraordinary and old-time friend of Buffalo Bill Cody died during his sleep.

ONLY LAST WEEK, his friends at the Hollywood on the Pike bar proclaimed Powder River Jack — who had white hair, a goatee and was described as almost a double for the late Buffalo Bill — as mayor of Long Beach's Nu-Pike area.

A few days later, the aged buckaroo entered the hospital. The quiet departure was in contrast to Dalton's years with the Buffalo Bill Wild West Show, the Miller Brothers 101 Western Show, exploration of Oklahoma Indian Country, entertainment in Alaska during the Gold Rush and service with the cavalry in the Spanish-American War.

In 1918, as he put it, Dalton was playing vaudeville in Aurora, Ill., doing:

"Song and dance ... whip cracking ... fancy shooting ... fanning my gun, shooting as fast as a machine gun."

"Also I stood my wife in front of a board and threw long knives around her. The knives struck so close to her body, I had to pull them out of the board before she could move."

DALTON WAS BORN in Paducah, Ky., a cousin of the Dalton outlaw brothers.

He was a deputy marshal and standing only one block down the street in Coffeyville, Kan., on Oct. 2, 1892, when two of the brothers were shot down while the gang was attempting to rob two banks at the same time.

THE COMPOSER of "Ace in the Hole" is survived by a son, R. J. Dalton Jr.

In his last will, he asked that his eyes be donated to an eye bank.

As he said:

"I have seen practically everything with them. 'Maybe somebody else can get some use out of them after I am gone.'"

Cuba Bishop Urges Fight Against Reds

HAVANA (AP)—The archbishop of Santiago, Cuba's second-largest city, told Cuban Roman Catholics in a pastoral letter to be read today that the battle against communism must be fought from their own ranks and not from U. S. military and economic strength.

Entitling his message "Rome or Moscow," the Most Rev. Enrique Perez Serantes warned that communism's best auxiliaries are those Catholics who interpret religious precepts in their own manner and those who are Catholic in name only.

The prelate, 77, prepared the letter for reading in Santiago Cathedral today and for distribution throughout Cuba. His diocese includes 2,100,000 Cubans — all but 50,000 of whom are Catholics.

Perez Serantes, made a bishop in 1922, is credited with saving Prime Minister Fidel Castro from a firing squad seven years ago.

'Space Spy' Satellite Whizzes Into Orbit

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Discoverer XVII—first of a series of new military spy satellites capable of changing course if threatened—rocketed into orbit Saturday.

After hours of confusion blamed on insufficient radio data, the Air Force announced the satellite was whizzing around the earth once every 96 minutes.

A spokesman said the egg-shaped orbit was nearly perfect, taking the 2,100-pound satellite as far as 615 miles from the earth and bringing it back to 118 miles at the closest point.

This afternoon it is to drop a 300-pound capsule for recovery by air and sea forces near Hawaii. Contents of the satellite and its capsule were not disclosed. It is known, however, that future satellites of this type called Agena B have been designed to carry TV cameras and send surveillance films back to American territory.

THE ORBIT of the satellite launched at 12:42 p.m. Saturday will take it over Russian territory several times each day.

The 25-foot satellite is 6 feet longer and 400 pounds heavier than the Agena. A second stage of earlier Discoverers. It is capable of stopping and restarting its engine on command from the ground.

This change in speed would allow the satellite to alter its orbit and thus avoid a missile sent up to knock it down.

The Air Force said there was no plan to stop and restart the engine of this satellite but that the capability would be tested in future launchings.

Recently Chosen Leader to Come to United States

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—President-elect John F. Kennedy got off to a fast start Saturday in acting upon his campaign pledge to strengthen ties between the United States and Latin America.

The vacationing next Chief Executive agreed to a proposal by Brazil's President-elect Janio Quadros for a meeting in this country before both of them take office next January.

Kennedy's desire to see Quadros "at any mutually desirable time" was expressed in a visit to the newly elected U.S. President by a three-man Brazilian delegation.

THE GROUP also brought Kennedy a warm message of congratulations from Brazil's outgoing president, Juscelino Kubitschek, who said Kennedy's demonstrated interest in hemispheric problems "warrants great expectations on our part as to Your Excellency's future actions."

Kennedy met with the Brazilians for 15 minutes at his family's Spanish-style stucco home overlooking the Atlantic Ocean. He arrived in this warm clime Friday night from frosty Cape Cod for about two weeks of sunshine and rest.

PRESS SECRETARY Pierre Salinger told newsmen Kennedy will break into this relaxation next week with a series of meetings here and a flight to Texas Wednesday to meet that evening and Thursday with Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson.

Joined only by Salinger and special assistant Kenneth O'Donnell, Kennedy swam in the pool of his family's seaside estate and generally lolled in the sun to undo the stresses and strains of the two-month campaign that won him the presidency.

THE EISENHOWER YEARS

Nikita Blocked Ike's Greatest Dream

By MARVIN ARROWSMITH

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower's eight years as President, now coming to a close, are likely to be marked most vividly in history by a great and overriding frustration—Nikita Khrushchev.

More than any other man, more than any other incident or combination of events, the blow to American prestige, Soviet premier has managed to thwart the President, who above all else wanted to go smash the May Summit Conference in Paris, blaming Eisenhower for not apologizing over the U2 spy plane episode, how he insulted the President by withdrawing an invitation to visit Russia; how he delighted in Communist-inspired rioting which kept Eisenhower out of Japan; and how he recently has used the United Nations General Assembly as a forum for bitter new attacks on this country.

Also, there has been hot criticism of Eisenhower in some quarters for publicly assuming full responsibility for the U2 plane's espionage mission.

L.A.C. Says: Compare Tax Bills

Now that the high interest of the political campaign has been passed there is a marked letdown in editorial rooms and among readers of newspapers. The writer wonders what he can write about that his usual readers will read. It is difficult to bring ordinary affairs into proper perspective. But those ordinary affairs affecting each of us are the foundation of our way of life. If we do not take responsibility for them we will inevitably lose the right to decide how they will be managed.

High priority of those ordinary affairs is what is to be done about the spiraling tax burden carried by property owners. Federal taxes have remained relatively stable the past five years. But the taxes on many homes in Long Beach have doubled during that period. On one home the city tax bill just received is 9.6 per cent higher than last year. The county tax bill is 28 per cent higher than last year.

This increase is despite the statements from city and county governments that tax rates have been increased less than 1 per cent. The statements are true—the tax rates are held about even—but the assessed valuations have been skyrocketed. These increases over the past year—we understand—apply to only about a fourth of the taxpayers this year. But they have—or will apply to each of them in their turn.

To demonstrate that this is not an unusual tax increase the price of the home we refer to has had its taxes increased by the city by over 100 per cent during the last six years—and for the same six years county taxes are up 74 per cent. At no time during this six-year period has the market value of this property increased. It is probable virtually every taxpayer is paying from 50 per cent to 100 per cent more in taxes on the same property as compared with six years ago.

The largest increase in county tax bills is in the school taxes collected by the county. But every branch of county government is calling for increases far above actual increased cost of living or population increases. The increases come from the elaborate public buildings and their furnishings and the vast bureaucracy of our welfare programs. There seems to be no end to what is to be provided. But certainly there is a limit to what property taxes can pay and the taxpayers remain solvent.

In less than a month first half of the new tax bills must be paid. Before your check is sent we suggest each taxpayer compare what was paid only six years ago with his present bill. If they find they are paying 50 per cent or more today, it would be helpful for them to write a note to their county supervisor and the city council asking—how come?—and just how far is this trend to continue?

There are many new buildings planned that could be less expensive. There are many costly services provided that could be curtailed. But as long as the people refrain from protesting these projects will be even more costly—until the taxes on property become unbearable. These are local problems which are spiraling—while we worry over national and world affairs. It is a good time to devote some of our attention to what is happening to us right here at home.—L.A.C.

Boy, 3, Gravely Hurt in Buena Park Fire

Speedy resuscitation efforts by Buena Park Fire Dept. Capt. Gary Walker may have saved the life of a 3-year-old boy found unconscious on the bedroom floor of a burning home in Buena Park Saturday about 4 p.m.

The boy, Anthony Cooper Smith, is in critical condition in Orange County Hospital, suffering from second-degree burns over 80 per cent of his body.

Mrs. Donna Yockey, 32, of 17419 McNeil Way, told police she was awakened from a nap in her living room by flames which had engulfed the kitchen and hall. Heat prevented her from searching the bedroom where Capt. Walker found the boy.

The fire of undetermined origin caused $7,500 damage to the house, according to Capt. Jim House, whose engine company responded to the alarm turned in by a neighbor.

Mrs. Yockey was caring for the Smith boy in the absence of his mother, Louise Smith.

marshal he would accept servative session is to begin ice of an order to keep out of Tuesday.

It was not clear whether Davis planned to keep the legislature in continuous session to pass new legislation as fast as the federal courts knocked it down.

FOUR MEMBERS of the county school board said they believe the legislature will try to oust them from office. The board's fifth member, segregationist Emila A. Wagner Jr., said the ouster would be justified on the grounds the board had "flaunted the authority of the state."

"Whether it will stick is another question," Wagner added.

Another board member, Matthew R. Sutherland Jr., who was re-elected Tuesday over the opposition of three segregationist candidates, told newsmen his wife received two or three telephone calls Friday threatening her life and the lives of her children. Sutherland campaigned to keep schools open even if integrated.

City police have been maintaining a round-the-clock guard at the residence of Judge Wright here. A legislative committee, which took over the school system temporarily, came into New Orleans from Baton Rouge escorted by state police.

Sutherland said any move to recall the board is "just the same old thing all over again—another attempt to take over the schools."

But the name of Hodges has figured more prominently than any other in conjecture about Kennedy's commerce secretary.

Sea Scout Diver, 17, Drowns on Catalina Island Outing

A Sea Scout leader's attempt to save a member of his group was unsuccessful Saturday when a Garden Grove youth drowned while skin-diving at Santa Catalina Island.

The youth was identified as Dale Joseph Martineau, 17, of 8822 Wooley Lane. Scoutmaster Charles Modlin, 39, 13381 Lynne Dr., Garden Grove, lost consciousness while trying to assist Martineau. He was rescued by Scouts aboard the Sea Scout ship Volunteer and taken to Avalon Hospital where he was recovering.

Martineau was a member of Garden Grove Ship 73 of the Sea Scouts, which had gone to the island aboard the 40-foot Volunteer, out of Newport. The Volunteer formerly was a Los Angeles County fireboat.

Martineau's body apparently sank to a shelf 50 feet below the surface. A Coast Guard cutter unsuccessfully dragged the area. Los Angeles County lifeguards will dive today to search for the youth's body if weather permits guardsmen said.

Khrushchev has overplayed his hand and so actually strengthened the Western alliance and the likelihood of support from neutral countries in the United Nations.

But—notwithstanding tremendous acclaim Eisenhower has received in worldwide travel as a messenger of peace—Khrushchev remains as a roadblock in the way of the greatest goal the President set out to achieve when he took office in 1953, a durable world peace safeguarded from the threat of nuclear catastrophe. That struggle always was the President's first interest, and since the passing of Secretary of State Dulles, has taken most of his time.

AT 62 EISENHOWER came to the presidency as the great popular hero of the mighty military coalition which crushed Hitler's fortress Europe. Now at 70—the oldest man even to serve as President—he still is tremendously popular despite increased criticism of his policies over the years.

For that, it is something of a political phenomenon how criticism of the Eisenhower administration translates to such a small extent to criticism of the man.

One of the great paradoxes is that Eisenhower doesn't like politics in the sense of the spoils system and logrolling for votes, and yet he is perhaps as a master politician on the basis of his hold on the people.

In saying publicly once that he dislikes politics in what he called "the derogatory sense," the President went on to explain what he does like about politics.

"Any man who finds himself in a position of authority where he has a very great influence in the efforts of people to work for a peaceful world, toward international relationships that will eliminate or minimize the chances of war, all that sort of thing, it is a fascinating thing. It is the kind of thing that would engage the ... intense interest of any man alive."

Eisenhower's disdain of politics in "the derogatory sense" never has extended to campaigning around the country.

IN 1956 EISENHOWER told a news conference that during his first two years in office—when some members of his own party in Congress were making life difficult for him—he toyed with the idea

Hit-Runner Hunted After Striking Boy

A 15-year-old boy, apparently hit by a car and then left lying semiconscious, was reported in satisfactory condition at Memorial Hospital late Saturday.

Traffic Investigator Benjamin F. Higgins said a felony hit-run report had been filed and that police were seeking a faded blue two-door sedan, believed to have struck down Christopher Francis Pitroniak, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pitroniak, 1177 Wilton Ave., Garden Grove.

The boy was found lying on the sidewalk in front of 225 Long Beach Blvd. about 8 p.m. Friday by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gordon, 437 Panama Ave., according to police.

The boy is able to speak but appears confused about the incident, Higgins said.

Philadelphia's Demo Chief May Be in Cabinet

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Reports are circulating that Rep. William J. Green, this city's Democratic chairman, might be offered the postmaster-general job in President-elect John F. Kennedy's cabinet. The Philadelphia Inquirer said Saturday night.

The Inquirer did not further identify what it described as reports prevailing in party circles but did say that these reports had not been confirmed.

However, an article by Joseph H. Miller in the Sunday Inquirer said that sources close to Green have stated that Kennedy promised Green the cabinet post before the election.

IKE AND HIS STUBBORN FOE

President Eisenhower's greatest goal in eight years of leadership was to be an architect of peace. His stumbling block was Nikita Khrushchev, pictured pounding table at U.N.—(AP Photo.)

One day during the 1952 campaign someone asked Eisenhower how he expected to get along as President with a couple of strong personalities in Congress who weren't at all likely to see eye to eye with him.

"I've been able to get along pretty well with people all my life, and (as an Army officer) I've been getting along all right with Congress for a long time," he said.

There was a popular impression early in 1953 that as a military man, presumably hard-bitten, Eisenhower would crack heads together and Congress would march to his tune. No impression ever was more erroneous.

"I've been able to get along pretty well with people all my life, and (as an Army officer) I've been getting along all right with Congress for a long time," he said.

There was a popular impression early in 1953 that as a military man, presumably hard-bitten, Eisenhower would crack heads together and Congress would march to his tune. No impression ever was more erroneous.

business of members winning support for this or that pet bill in exchange for their pledges to back, or fight, another piece of legislation.

He has come to hate that kind of politics, close associates say. He thinks it's often petty and harmful to national welfare. He blames it for a good many of his legislative defeats.

APART FROM his efforts in personal diplomacy toward ending the cold war, Eisenhower is pictured as most proud of his efforts to hold down federal spending. But in this field—largely because of the troubled world situation—he has fallen a good bit short of his 1952 campaign goal.

During his administration the President has broken even—four years of balanced budgets and four in the red ink. One of the red ink years, fiscal 1959, turned up the biggest deficit in peace time history—12.4 billion dollars, due mainly to a business recession.

The President never was given all the foreign aid money he requested, and he has warned that some of the reductions foreshadowed dire consequences.

But the appropriation finally voted always was reasonably close to the figure he wanted.

In the early days, the famed Eisenhower temper sometimes flared in private over this pulling and hauling in Congress. But in time he came to accept the disappointments philosophically as part of the inevitable give and take of the legislative process.

For months Eisenhower has been ticking off the days to the end of his second term and the start of the private life he looks forward to longingly after a half century in the nation's service. He did come to the presidency seemingly unaware of hours remaining before noon Jan. 20.

turbed by Republican demands for recounts in 11 of the states which contributed to his slim popular-vote victory over Vice President Richard M. Nixon. Salinger said Nixon's own comment on this point "pretty well disposes" of the issue.

SALINGER referred to Nixon's press secretary, Herbert G. Klein, saying "the vice president ran the race and accepted the decision to hold voters—the decision made on Tuesday stands."

Salinger's report that Kennedy-Quadtos meeting would be in this country prompted one newsman to ask about a suggestion by Senate Democratic Whip Mike Mansfield, Mont., that Kennedy make a good-will trip to Latin America before inauguration day.

"I see no possibility of Senator Kennedy making any trips before inauguration day out of this country," Salinger replied.

The Brazilians who visited Kennedy Saturday were C. A. Bernardes, charge d'affaires of the embassy in Washington; Carlos Lobo, chief of protocol at the embassy, and Joao Dantas, editor-publisher of the newspaper Diario de Noticias in Rio de Janeiro.

Bernardes and Lobo bore Kubitschek's message, while Dantas acted as the personal emissary of Quadros, who arrived in London Saturday morning on a European tour.

Kubitschek's message said Kennedy's victory "is consonant with our political hopes for a broad and deep understanding among the Americas."

"We all are fully confident in that, during your administration, Operation Pan-America—the aim today of our entire continental family of nations—will enter into a definite phase of execution, in order to avoid the spread of the cold war that has already begun its evil penetration amidst us," Kubitschek said, Kennedy, in his campaign, criticized the Eisenhower administration for allowing the Cuban crisis to develop and said Communists must not be allowed to make further inroads in Latin America.

One campaign point he made, in pointing up Castro's influence, was to recall that a Brazilian candidate for president—referring to Quadros—had visited the Cuban leader to seek backing so that Castro elements in Brazil would vote for him. Kennedy said this typified a decline in U.S. prestige which must be rebuilt through closer and stronger inter-American relations.

Kubitschek told Kennedy: "On the floor of the Senate and throughout the campaign which terminated in your victory, Your Excellency has repeatedly demonstrated a real interest in the problems relating to the Latin-American countries, as well as a particular understanding of the undisputable gravity of the situation confronting the peoples on this hemisphere."

Salinger said Dantas told Kennedy that Quadros, like the next U.S. president, is 43 years old and ran in opposition to the incumbent party. But, Dantas said, Quadros won by two million out of 12 million votes cast. Kennedy quipped, "My margin was somewhat smaller."

Kennedy planned to spend all of today in relaxation, with no plans to receive additional visitors. He was up around 9:30 a.m. Saturday and breakfasted alone after getting about 10 hours sleep.

After breakfast, Salinger said, Kennedy placed 15 or 20 telephone calls to Democratic leaders around the country, thanking them for their help and asking some to "perform certain tasks" connected with setting up his new administration.

Thousands Wire and Telephone Nixon to Express Rising Esteem

The Nixon staff also is proud of his television speech conceding the loss. It revealed warmth, spontaneity and humanity that Nixon seldom was able to convey during the campaign.

There is a surprising dearth of Monday-morning quarter-backing in the Nixon camp and presumably, this reflects the views of the vice president himself. If had the race to run over again, he would follow the same basic strategy.

There would be only one change, and that of emphasis rather than direction. Nixon would spend more time in the big cities — where Kennedy did extremely well — and less time in the small towns.

One thing Nixon aides refuse to discuss in their post-mortems on the election is the religious issue.

"I won't discuss that," said general campaign director Leonard Hall. "With the problems the country faces, we've all got to unite behind Kennedy."

The closest the Nixon camp came to discussing it was in response to a question about Dr. Norman Vincent Peale and the Protestant ministers' statement. Some political observers contended it drove many Republican Catholics into support of Kennedy.

"It obviously didn't help," said Finch.

Nixon aides also concealed — but barely — their disappointment with the GOP organizations headed by George Bloom in Pennsylvania and by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller in New York. They were particularly cool in discussing Pennsylvania, which they had been told was safely in the Republican column.

Finch and Klein, conducting a post mortem for news-men, attributed Kennedy's victory to three major factors.

— "The big-city machines tied in with the statehouse crowds" provided a big manpower pool which simply out-worked the Republicans in major industrial centers.

— Labor-union help and money in registering new Democratic voters and in providing paid personnel to get them to the polls on election day.

— Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson's effectiveness in dealing with "court-house" politicians in the South. "Johnson got out the deliverable vote in the South," said Finch.

*****

ANOTHER BIG factor was the Negro vote. "Negroes voted on the economic issues rather than on civil rights," said Finch.

The Nixon camp feels the most effective single strategy employed by Sen. Kennedy was his constant, repetitious identification of himself with the Democratic party and its leaders of the past, particularly Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"He did it successfully and was able to pull divergent elements of the party together as a consequence," said Finch.

Hall denies there was a "turning point" in the campaign, but other Republicans say it was the first television debate. Finch acknowledged that in one evening, Kennedy was able to wipe out any widespread notion that he was an immature, rash young man.

The major impact of the first debate was on Republican organizations. They were thrown into "consternation," one GOP leader said, and there were widespread fears that Nixon was physically ill. It took Nixon headquarters about 10 days to overcome that impression.

THE NIXON forces assign great importance to the role of President Eisenhower in the final stages of the campaign and to the television "blitz" that was conducted. Finch said President Eisenhower's speeches were "terribly effective."

The four-hour telethon on election Monday was a late development. It was conceived about four weeks from the end when Republican polls showed a majority of women were going to vote for Nixon. And it was aimed at furthering that trend. Nixon aides believe it succeeded.

Nixon's future probably is being decided right now as he vacations with his family in Florida. No basic decisions have been reached, Finch said. It was almost certain that he will remain active in politics.

"It's fair to say he's never run from a fight," said Finch.

Nixon has scores of offers from private industry, universities, law firms, and foundations. One of his major problems is personal income. Whatever he chooses must enable him to provide for his family. For that reason, some friends believe he will choose to practice law in Washington, possibly in partnership with Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers, a close personal and political friend.

The vice president also is receiving strong appeals to run for governor in California in 1962.

"His degree of activity in politics depends on where he lives and what he does," said Finch.

Who's Next Defense Chief: Finletter, Pace, Symington?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Liaison representatives of the incoming Kennedy administration will be cleared by the Pentagon for access to the top secret information they will need in preparing for transition of Defense Department control.

Preparations for consultations with and briefings of the Kennedy representatives by Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates and his aides were finished today. Still lacking was the name of the man or men who would be sent by Clark Clifford, chief liaison representative for President-elect John F. Kennedy.

The sessions could be merely broad administrative and budget discussions with Gates and his civilian aides. Or military operational officers such as the joint chiefs of staff could be called in. It will depend on what the Kennedy representatives want, a Pentagon spokesman said Saturday.

KENNEDY representatives aren't likely to seek to influence defense planning for the period between now and next Jan. 20 when Kennedy takes office.

should be boosted above the current $41-billion level is only one of the vexing problems to face the next secretary of defense. Kennedy has said defense spending should not be patterned to "the predetermined confines of a budget."

KENNEDY SAID "while more money will be spent for modernity and mobility of our armed forces, I believe billions can be saved by streamlining the Department of Defense and minimizing competition between services."

Kennedy said, "Reorganization of the cumbersome, antiquated and creaking machinery of the Department of Defense is high on the agenda of the new Democratic administration." He noted that an advisory committee headed by Symington will give recommendations for reorganization to him by Dec. 31.

High on the list of reorganization proposals is one which would revamp the armed forces into functional rather than purely service organizations. Thus, everything that related to strategic warfare would be within a single set-up, including the Air Force's Strategic Air Command and the Navy's Polaris submarine weapons system.

NIXON GETS GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP, RESTS

MIAMI (UPI)—Vice President Nixon awoke Saturday from "the best night's sleep since the campaign" and lolled with his family beside a swimming pool at a fashionable island hotel.

The Nixons are vacationing 65 miles down the Florida coast from where President-elect John F. Kennedy is recuperating from the campaign at Palm Beach.

Nixon awoke at 9:30 a.m. with his wife, Pat, and daughters, Tricia and Julie, he breakfasted at the poolside restaurant. After the children took a dip, the Nixons lounged on deck chairs.

It May Become Sky Model-T of the Jet Age

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
NEW YORK (AP) — Forty years old and all but forgotten in the whoosh and roar of the jet age, the perky autogiro now stands a good chance of becoming the first mass produced private plane in aviation history.

Round about Feb. 1, 1961, the Umbaugh 18, a souped up version of the old autogiro, will begin rolling off an assembly line in Hagerstown, Md., at the rate of one every 20 minutes.

First year production calls for a minimum of 10,000 Umbaugh 18s in order to realize a profit on its selling price of $9,995. Last year the entire aviation industry, both private and commercial, turned out less than 7,000 planes.

The autogiro, invented by a Spaniard, Juan de la Cierva, in 1921, differs from the helicopter in that its rotor blades are not connected to the engine in flight. It can do everything a helicopter can do, except hover. But it has the advantage of being cheaper to build and maintain, easier and more economical to fly.

THE MAN BEHIND the comeback of the autogiro is 40-year-old Raymond E. Umbaugh, a former Air Corps flight instructor who got into the aircraft business by way of fertilizers.

Trained in agriculture and biology at Purdue and Clark Universities, Umbaugh already had made one fortune with a process for artificial insemination of cattle and set out to make a second in manufacturing chemical soil foods and fertilizers. Instead of selling by the sack, the Indiana-born tycoon decided to sell by the carload.

He put his 100-man sales force into small planes and helicopters so they could drop right into a farmer's backyard, analyze his soil and write up bulk orders on the spot. Sales quintupled in less than a year, but Umbaugh found his profits shaved considerably by transportation costs. He set about finding a cheaper aircraft and ended up building one.

Early in his researches, Umbaugh became impressed with the virtues of the forgotten autogiro. He learned that De la Cierva, the inventor of the autogiro, had successfully flown the English Channel in 1923 and that for a whole year (1938) mail was flown five times a day by autogiro from the roof of the Philadelphia post office to the airport at Camden, N. J. The Army ordered two autogiros at the outset of World War II, but dismantled them to concentrate on developing the helicopter, because of its hovering ability.

"WHAT IMPRESSED me most about the autogiro," says Umbaugh, "was how easy it was to fly. You didn't need both hands and feet, as you do in a helicopter. A trained pilot could be checked out in less than two hours, and an amateur could learn to fly it in less than eight hours."

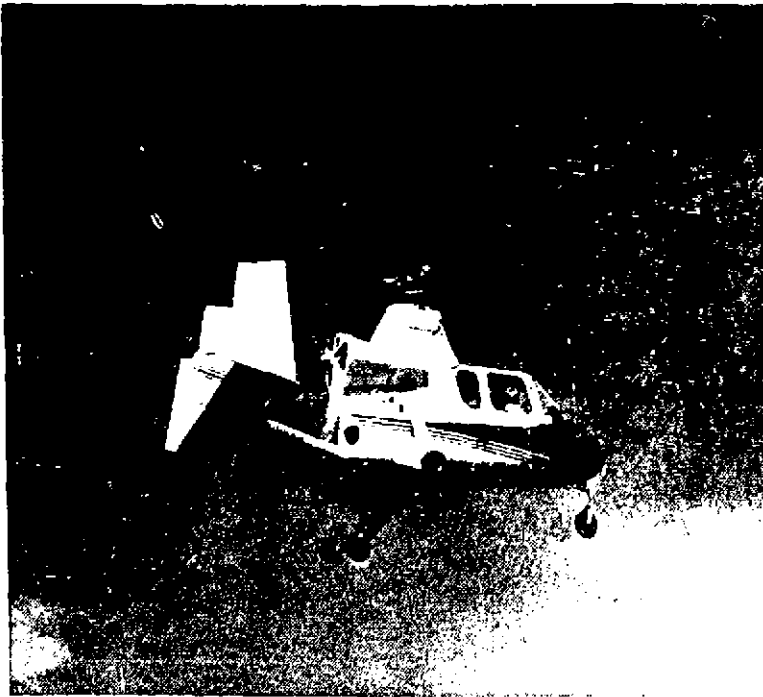

With the help of veteran helicopter designer Gil Devore and test pilot Fred (Slim) Soule, who back in the '30s used to dazzle airshow audiences by flying an autogiro with both hands and feet sticking out of the cockpit, Umbaugh formed the Umbaugh Aircraft Corp. and began building a prototype autogiro at Osala, Fla.

Ten prototypes later, he was ready to go into production. He subcontracted the work of producing the Umbaugh 18 to the Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corp. plant at Hagerstown, Md.

"The real break through in cutting production costs," he says, "came when we hit upon using the hard tooling assembly methods of the automobile industry. Then we knew we could keep the price around $10,000, within the reach of farmers and small businessmen, provided we turned out 10,000 planes a year."

THE UмбаUGH 18 gets its forward thrust from a Lycoming 180 horsepower piston engine. It has a top speed of 126 mph, cruises at 100 mph and has a range of 350 miles without refueling. It can take off vertically, like a helicopter, or taxi off after a short run of 60 to 70 feet, climbing at the rate of 1,000 feet per minute.

Its biggest drawback is that it carries only two passengers, America, Germany, France, Italy and Spain. Customers include sportsmen, newspaper delivery men, crop dusters, marine biologists, offshore oil men, pipe line inspectors, ranchers, police departments, foresters, mining engineers, geologists and salesmen's wives.

Umbaugh says that so far he has about 8,000 orders in hand, including several hundreds from clients in South America, Germany, France, Italy and Spain. Customers include sportsmen, newspaper delivery men, crop dusters, marine biologists, offshore oil men, pipe line inspectors, ranchers, police departments, foresters, mining engineers, geologists and salesmen's wives.

Hunt Killer of L.A. Editor in Fringes of Underworld

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — the killing, which occurred after he was beaten on the Roby H. Heard, 38, veteran Los Angeles reporter and editor, was found bludgeoned to death Saturday in his Hollywood apartment, touching off a search for suspects in the fringes of the underworld area where the victim got some of his stories.

"He must have known a thousand screwballs," Detective Don Furlong said. "It's a tough case and we have no idea who did it."

OTHER LEADS, including those regarding persons who were demanding money from Heard, proved fruitless, Furlong said.

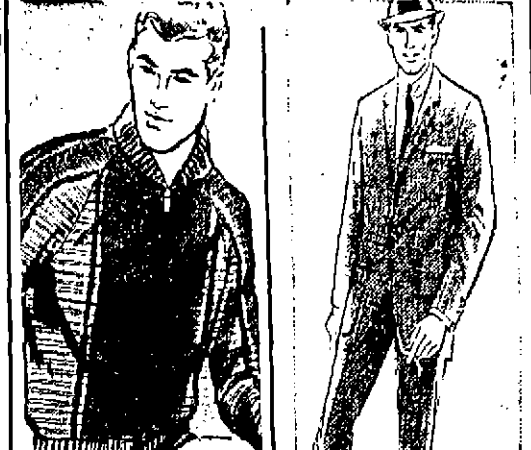

A hammer was regarded as the probable weapon used in the killing, which occurred after he was beaten on the Roby H. Heard, 38, veteran Los Angeles reporter and editor, was found bludgeoned to death Saturday in his Hollywood apartment, touching off a search for suspects in the fringes of the underworld area where the victim got some of his stories.

NO WEAPON WAS found, however, in the three-room apartment where he lived alone, nor had any suspects been arrested in the aftermath of day-long investigation.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A margin of .78 per cent. states with 300 electoral votes and was leading in California with 32 votes, which would give him a total of 332 electoral votes.

The totals were Kennedy 33,834,392; Vice President Richard M. Nixon 33,443,168; John F. Kennedy still was a difference of 391,224 votes leading Saturday with 50.39 out of more than 67 million per cent of the popular vote. KENNEDY HAD carried 22

Hawaii Canvass Gives Nixon 96-Vote Victory

HONOLULU (UPI)—An unofficial but complete canvass of Hawaii's presidential vote showed Saturday that Vice President Richard M. Nixon won the state's three electoral votes by exactly 96 of the 184,904 ballots cast.

State election officials said the count represented the first complete check of the returns by official tabulation personnel in the lieutenant governor's office but that one more complete recheck would be made before final certification of Nixon as winner.

The latest check showed Nixon won 92,505 votes to 92,409 for Sen. John F. Kennedy. This mean Nixon won the electoral votes by garnering 50.026 per cent of the ballots cast.

Neighbor Saves Woman From Her Car in Pond

MASSAPEQUA, N. Y. (UPI)—Norman Henshall was raking leaves in his backyard Saturday when he heard a loud crash followed by a splash. He dashed to the 20-foot-deep pond behind his property to find an automobile in the water. At the wheel of the car was his next-door neighbor, Mrs. Anna Matthews, a widowed 76-year-old great grandmother.

Mrs. Matthews had stepped on the accelerator, instead of the brake, sending her car through the back of her garage and into the pond. Henshall pulled Mrs. Matthews to safety.

State officials first gave the state to Kennedy on the basis of reports sent in from the polls by messenger on election night. That original count gave Kennedy a margin of 102 votes but later arithmetic errors in the tabulation were discovered, especially one that neglected to count 200 votes in one district in Nixon's favor, and that changed the picture.

Democratic Party officials have indicated they would go to court to seek a recount of the ballots in the belief Kennedy still had won the state.

Celebrating Early

NEWBURY, England (UPI)—Prince Charles celebrated his 12th birthday Saturday instead of Monday because at Cheam School, where he is a pupil, birthdays are observed only on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

California Absentees Count Favoring Nixon in 3 Counties

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—cent of the absentees, came from Napa, San Luis Obispo and San Mateo counties—all of which were solidly for Nixon in the voting booths.

Latest tally on the California vote gave Kennedy 3,125,554 and Nixon 3,093,169. Kennedy held a lead of 32,385 votes in the three counties that already had given Nixon majorities showed 7,352 for the vice president, 4,282 for Kennedy and 247 that either went to other candidates or left the presidential race unmarked.

THIS WAS 61.9 per cent for Nixon, who must have about 60 per cent of all 250,000 absentee ballots to overtake Kennedy for California's 32 electoral votes. However the votes, less than five per central committee, said a GOP team would check possible irregularities in absentee ballots there.

"WE HAVE evidence that there have been a number of voters who have taken out absentee ballots from precincts in which they have not lived since Sept. 16, the last day of registration," Hillings said.

The charge was promptly called a "postelection smear" by Jesse M. Unruh, Southern California campaign director for Kennedy.

"I am certain, as I am sure Mr. Hillings is," Unruh said, "that mistakes made by the election boards will not total up in favor of Democratic candidates."

Girl, 9, Slain in Chicago Forest Area

CHICAGO (AP)—The mauled body of a little girl who vanished between home and church Saturday was found in the underbrush of a forest preserve which 3½ years ago yielded the bodies of two other youngsters. She had been shot twice through the head.

A grieving father identified the victim as 9-year-old Gloria Kowalewicz, who left home early Saturday to attend mass.

The driver of a laundry truck—Harry Lindeman, 40—was seated at a roadside table in Palsu Woods when he spied the child's body sprawled in a thicket, her head and face bloody and disfigured.

LINDEMAN told police her pink-and-white dress was pulled up about her waist and her shoes and socks were missing. The body was removed to the county morgue for examination after Edward Kowalewicz, the father, identified her.

The discovery scene—along Willow Road near 114th Street on the far southwest side—is a few miles from the spot where the bodies of Barbara and Patricia Grimes, 15 and 13, were found frozen and nude 3½ years ago.

Young Gloria was the ninth Chicago area child to meet violent death in the last five years. Eight of the crimes are marked unsolved.

The discovery of Gloria's body also parallels the finding of brothers John and Anton Schuessler, 13 and 11, and their companion Robert Peterson, 14, on Oct. 18, 1955. In that case, the nude strangled bodies were found in a northwest side preserve.

IN ADDITION to the Grimes sisters and the Peterson-Schuessler boys, the other young victims of the recent past were:

Judith Mae Andersen, 16, her dismembered body was found in September 1957 wedged into two cans floating in a north side harbor.

Betsy Benham, 5, found in a shallow grave near her suburban site.

Ike Sends Apology to Disappointed Girl

DETROIT (AP)—A cute little attention when I was in Detroit had a note of apology from President Eisenhower. I don't see how I could miss such a charming young lady, with a large bouquet of red roses in her arms. Two-year-old Karin Konietzko had cried in disappointment after she failed to attract the President's attention at Detroit Metropolitan Airport Oct. 18.

The President was walking briskly to board a plane. He didn't see the pony-tailed girl, carrying a bunch of red roses, running after him. Attached to the flowers was a card: "To you and Mamie from a little Wayne County girl."

But Karin was all smiles Saturday. The President heard of the incident and sent her an autographed photo and a kindly note. He wrote: "Dear Karin: "Not until I got back to my office in Washington did I learn of your disappointment in being unable to catch my Tiny shrimp-like animals that live at great ocean depths may show man the way to survive in a world of diminishing food supply, a Southland oceanographer said Saturday.

The little animals, called isopods, live below the 6,000-foot level of the North and South Atlantic oceans, according to Dr. Robert J. Menzies, marine biologist at the University of Southern California.

He points out that the ocean from two to four miles deep is just above freezing, with no light, and food is at a minimum.

"It is obvious that the problems the isopods have faced successfully for millions of years may be quite similar to the ones we'll have to face ultimately," he said.

"Man's ability to survive in a world with constantly diminishing food supplies may some day be aided by the information we get from these tiny animals."

The marine creatures range from one thirty-second of an inch to 2½ inches long. Most are microscopic. They look like tiny shrimps.

Dr. Menzies said these little isopods withstand fantastic water pressure.

"It's like having two Boulder Dams stacked on top of each other lying on your chest," he said.

"These remarkable little animals do not suffer any ill effects from this—probably due to the lack of air cavities in their bodies."

Dr. Menzies, former director of the biology program of the Lamont Geological Observatory of Columbia University, said his studies of isopods have led to two new theories of ocean life.

The number of species of certain sea life increases with ocean depth, he said. This is contrary to the general belief that the number of animals gets smaller as water gets deeper.

In addition, animals which live in great ocean depths are small, as opposed to the popular theory that the deeper the water, the bigger the fish.

His theories are based on the discovery of 100 marine animals never before known to science. Dr. Menzies now has described more new species of isopods than any other scientist.

Dr. Menzies also discovered a Neopilina, a small shellfish previously thought to be extinct for more than 300 million years. The creature is the living ancestor of all snails, clams and oysters.

Anti-Missile Rocket Top Russ Project

LONDON (UPI)—The Soviet Union was reported Saturday to be working at full speed on a program to develop an anti-missile missile that could upset the balance in the East-West nuclear stalemate.

Informed sources said reports reaching here indicated the Kremlin was giving the project top priority in hopes the Russians might be first to master the anti-missile missile.

The sources said that according to latest information from behind the Iron Curtain, a group of leading Soviet scientists were working with almost unlimited means at their disposal on the intricate problem of countering the missile threat.

THE REPORTS gave no indication whether the Soviet scientists had made progress in their efforts toward such a weapon.

There have been recent unsubstantiated Soviet hints that the Russians have developed a new weapon or weapons.

Experts here, however, do not believe Russia has as yet solved the anti-missile problem, let alone getting any anti-missile device into production.

Even Smog Takes a Holiday

Sunday's Traffic Pattern Cuts Down Eye-Smarting Haze

By LOU JOBST

The teary-eyed Sunday Southlander may object violently, but the Sabbath is as near to salvation from smog and traffic jams as he'll ever get.

Air Pollution Control District scientists claim the Biblical day of rest is the most smog free 24 hours in any week of any month of any year—and in any millennium unless the growing problem of auto exhaust is curbed.

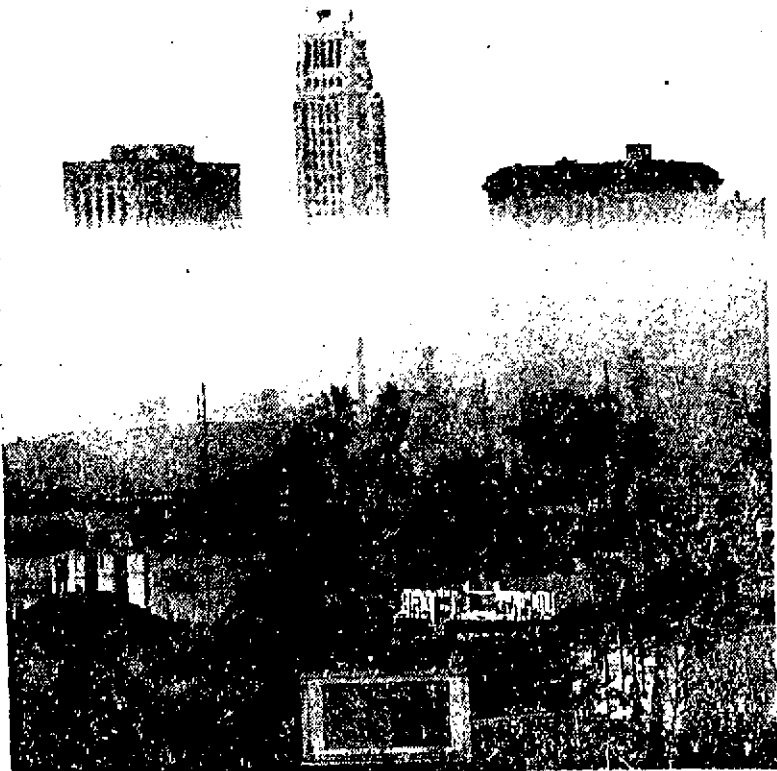

An around-the-clock APCD check of atmospheric conditions in the Los Angeles basin during a four-year period starting in 1956 classified 147 days as "smog days." A smog day is when the ozone count (most measurable quality of eye irritation) reaches 0.35 units per one million units of air.

Of the 147 days only nine were Sundays.

THE PREFERENTIAL TREATMENT, APCD experts assert, is the result of three conditions, all involving the automobile:

There are 31.5 per cent fewer cars on area highways and streets on Sunday, the traffic with few exceptions is more widely scattered and the Sunday motorist isn't the stop-and-go driver his weekday counterpart is.

Under certain conditions a

SKYLINE SMOTHERED

This is a typical smoggy view of Los Angeles on a weekday. Usually Sunday traffic patterns tend to reduce or eliminate the blanket of dirty haze. Smog experts explain automobiles generally are dispersed more widely on Sundays than on weekdays.—(Associated Press Photo.)

Sunday phenomena, the smog hot spot, does develop, APCD information officer Paul Grimes explains.

If there is a low inversion, a condition where heavier air presses contaminated air against the earth, and winds are weak, smog pockets can develop around great concentrations of autos such as the traffic jams that accompany athletic events at the Coliseum.

A CLASSIC EXAMPLE of this, Grimes explains, was the Sunday that Disneyland opened. A heavy pall of eye-smarting smog clung over area due to the crush of vehicular traffic there and the fact that thousands of motorists, uncertain of routes into the park, aimlessly threaded in stop-and-go driving around the park.

Grimes said the Sunday situation is further evidence that the principal uncontrolled source of smog is the automobile exhaust.

He pointed out that an official traffic survey showed that approximately 330,000 automobiles enter the freeway interchange in downtown Los Angeles on an average weekday, creating a cauldron of smog that boils out over the remainder of the metropolitan area.

However, the traffic load in the interchange falls off by more than 100,000 autos on Sunday.

TRAFFIC EXPERTS have discovered that the vast majority of Sunday auto trips, with exception of seasonal treks to the beaches and mountains and athletic events, are "short haul" or down to the neighborhood market or lands, a situation which keeps cars, Grimes said. The APCD maintains that the former are exhaust distributed across the now controlled sources of entire face of Southern California.

The fact that chemical plants, power stations and refineries operate on Sundays is added proof that smog is mostly the creature of the Chances are that as the number of autos in the area increase with the population boom there will be more smoggy Sundays, but Sunday will continue to be the sunniest day in the week.

Like Issues Rights Appeal, Shuns Vote Post-Mortems

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—President Eisenhower issued an appeal from his Deep South vacation retreat Saturday for every American to halt discrimination based on race, religion or sex.

The President signed a proclamation designating Dec. 10-17 as "Human Rights Week" and sounded a new call for U.S. leadership in promoting equality around the world.

The Chief Executive, secluded since his arrival at the National Golf Club here Wednesday, apparently was taking no interest in the controversy over alleged irregularities in the presidential election.

He outwardly has accepted

Sen. John F. Kennedy's triumph and is now committed to helping his youthful successor move into command at the White House next Jan. 20. Eisenhower planned to emerge from his vacation hideaway this morning to welcome Mrs. Eisenhower at the airport upon her arrival from Washington. They will celebrate Mamie's 64th birthday on Monday.

The President took advantage of the clear, crisp weather and played golf this afternoon for the fourth consecutive day.

Papal Paper Fails to Note Jack's Faith

VATICAN CITY (AP) — L'Osservatore Romano said Saturday the U.S. presidential election "opened a new chapter in the political history of the United States."

The front-page article in the Vatican newspaper, by special commentator Giorgio Luigi Bernucci, did not mention that President-elect John F. Kennedy is a Roman Catholic. It said that, in winning, Kennedy had overcome two handicaps — his youth and "lesser political experience" than his opponent, Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

"In the last analysis, (Kennedy's) youth (he is 43) turned to his benefit," the article said. "The American people chose him because of his greater dynamism and imagination."

Kennedy overcame the second handicap, the article said, "by appearing on television alongside his better-known opponent so the whole American people could see and come to know him."

No matter whether Kennedy or Nixon won, Bernucci wrote, the new president "would represent a new political generation which started its career after the war and which is in perfect accord with its own era."

Kennedy Keeps Church Choice Private Matter

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — President-elect John F. Kennedy intends to keep his church-going a private matter if possible.

His press secretary, Pierre Salinger, in announcing that Kennedy will attend mass today at some undisclosed Catholic church in the area, said the name of the church and the time of the service would not be made public until after Kennedy had worshipped and departed.

"We are not going to announce when or where he is going to church and that is going to be a continuing policy," Salinger said.

WHO ME

...wear CONTACT LENSES?

Contact lenses have come a long way since they were first introduced to the human eye.

Now—so comfortable, so undetectable—contact lenses are for just about anybody: the self-conscious teen-ager, hating to admit she needs glasses... the society miss who feels that conventional glasses subtract from her youthful charm... the man or woman afflicted with forgetfulness who too often leaves their regular glasses at home. Whatever your reason for being interested, come in and see what Science has done about contact lenses to make them wonderful to wear.

If GOP Reverses Election-- Hold Hats, Seats, Heads!

By SAUL PETT
NEW YORK (AP) — Let us suppose that the Republicans do get a recount in 11 states. Let us further suppose that the recount reverses the election and Richard M. Nixon is declared president.

Wow!
It's almost too staggering to contemplate but let's contemplate it. What would happen if the election were reversed? What recent events would have to be undone?

In just a matter of days, John F. Kennedy would go from being the youngest president-elect in history to the youngest ex-president in history, although he certainly would age considerably in the interval.

OBVIOUSLY Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson would want to reconsider their plans to resign from the Senate; Henry Cabot Lodge might have to throw away his Caribbean travel folders; Nixon, if he already has made a commitment, would have to tell that law firm he won't be available after all, and Mrs. Kennedy would no longer have to worry about the color scheme of the White House nursery. Thousands of messages of congratulations and condolence would have to be switched overnight. Konrad Adenauer might still want to come over to visit but what would Nikita Khrushchev tell Nixon since he already has told Kennedy that his victory offered hope of improved American-Soviet relations?

Thousands of election bet losers would have to go looking for the winners and try to get their dough back, which involves millions. Las Vegas would go crazy and, clearly, the stock market would have to go down immediately since it went up immediately when Kennedy won.

PROBABLY the group to suffer the most, outside of the Kennedy family and the 33 million Americans who voted for the Democrat, would be the political experts. Having already determined that it was the Catholic vote and the big urban vote and the labor vote that elected Jack Kennedy, they now would have to scurry around in a hurry for explanations for his defeat. Would they then agree that it was the made after Kennedy's victory want to reconsider the news—would have to be quickly un—paper business. resigned after Nixon's victory. On second thought, maybe and Pierre Salinger, Ken—the whole thing is too traumatic for Kennedy's press secretary, might matic to consider.

HST Ribs Farmers and 'Poor Losers'

CHICAGO (AP) — Former President Truman Saturday needed Republican politicians seeking recounts of Tuesday's election returns, asserting, "they're a bunch of poor losers." Truman made the remark during a visit with Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago.

Asked how he felt the farmers would fare under the Kennedy administration, he said, "I don't care what happens to the farmers. All the farm states went Republican."

Truman said President-elect John F. Kennedy will be too busy during his administration to make any foreign good will trips.

Truman was asked how he feels about a suggestion by vice president Nixon that Truman and other prominent Americans make a goodwill trip to red satellite countries.

"You know who proposed that," he said and changed the subject. "You know what Kennedy's going to do? He's going down to the White House to work."

ELECTRONIC GIANT

North American Autonetics Units Employ 22,000

By HERB SHANNON

DOWNEY—Announcement of new multi-million dollar radar contracts awarded to the Autonetics plant here points up the amazing growth of this giant of the electronics industry.

Little more than a twinkle in the corporate eye five years ago, this division of North American Aviation now has more than 22,000 employees in its local headquarters and other plants in Compton, Paramount, Fullerton, Anaheim and Long Beach.

From Autonetics research, backlog of essential defense development and production facilities come the guidance systems for the atomic-powered Long Beach plant at 3400 E. 70th St. conceivably could become the largest operation in the organization. The Long Beach plant houses the Industrial Products division, created to produce and market a digital computer for commercial use.

Autonetics Industrial Products now has sales and service offices in New York, Chicago, Boston, San Francisco and Los Angeles, and additional offices will be opened in the near future, the company has announced.

Ironically, most of the growth in employment at Au-

ROCKET AGE COMPLEX GROWS

tonetics has come since the cancellation of the Navajo missile in 1957, which at the time was a serious setback for the company. Approximately 1,500 engineers, technicians and hourly employees were laid off or transferred to other divisions, bringing employment to its low point of 5,500.

BUT THE DEVELOPMENTS which came out of the Navajo program proved to have applications in later programs. Starting with guidance and flight control equipment for the Hound Dog missile in September, 1957, other contracts came in a steady stream.

Early in 1958 the Navy put Autonetics to work on development of a navigation system for the A3J Vigilante attack bomber.

Later in the year came the first stages of the ship's guidance system which was to prove so successful in taking a submarine under the polar ice to the North Pole. And about the same time Autonetics electronic experts started designing the NASARR all-purpose radar for the Air Force's F-105D fighter bombers and the F-104 Starfighters ordered by West Germany, Japan and Canada.

MOST RECENTLY has come the subcontract for development of checkout equipment for the Atlas intercontinental missile, under agreement with the Radio Corporation of America.

This buildup of orders has resulted in an equivalent mushrooming in both employment and the requirement for working space. Autonetics is now the second largest electronics firm on the West Coast, occupying some two million square feet of floor space in its various plants.

With the resurgence of Congressional interest in the B-70 bomber and its weapon system, Autonetics appears to be in line for further expansion.

But even if the supersonic bomber program should fail the air, on the ground, under water and soon in outer space.

First Polaris Sub Goes to Sea Tuesday

CHARLESTON, S. C. (UPI)—The nuclear submarine USS George Washington, now loaded with Polaris missiles, will sail from Charleston Tuesday on its first war-detergent patrol.

The sub's assignment upon leaving Charleston: "Somewhere in the Atlantic Ocean."

The missiles were loaded aboard the sub at the Polaris missile assembly facility at the U. S. naval base here. The deadly load consists of 16 missiles each equipped with thermonuclear warheads. Each missile, far more deadly than the first atomic bombs, has a range of approximately 1,200 miles.

PRISON THEIR SCHOOL Priests in Jail

ROME (UPI)—A number of young Italian priests soon will go to jail for one year to qualify for admission to a new religious order to be called "The Brothers of the Prison."

The fraternity is the latest idea of a Franciscan friar, Rev. Father Blandino Della Croce, long-famous for his struggle to rehabilitate members of Italy's jail population and deported Italo-American gangsters.

Novices in the new order may be required to serve one year in prison to give them first-hand experience of the lives and problems of the outcasts of society.

During this probationary period, they will share the day to day life and work of the prisoners, helping them both materially and spiritually in their tasks. In addition the novitates will serve as "unofficial" assistants to the regular prison chaplains.

Father Blandino hopes that their sharing of prison life and their unofficial status will enable the new brothers to get closer to the prisoners than do most official chaplains.

Lay brothers of the order will include lawyers who will aid prisoners and their families to tackle their often-complicated legal problems and prepare appeals or pleas for the remission of sentences where justified.

Doctors will give free medical attention to prisoners and their families—often left without regular means of support during the absence of the "breadwinner."

The 5,000-square foot structure at the edge of Carmelitos Housing Project, is on land leased from the County Housing Authority. The main building houses a games room, arts and crafts shop, locker room and club room. The structure contains a 56-foot by 62-foot semi-enclosed gym.

The North Long Beach club was organized in 1948 in the

Royalties Proposed on Library Books

LONDON (AP)—Conservative William Teeling wants Parliament to pass legislation giving authors royalties on books borrowed from public libraries. Suggesting 2 cents per loan, Teeling says it's unfair "that books can be taken out without the author getting anything in return."

Cafe Sit-In Broken Up at Gunpoint

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The owner of a downtown restaurant chased out five Negroes and a white companion with a loaded rifle Saturday as sit-ins were staged here for the third straight day.

"I had the rifle in one hand to show them that I meant business," said Herschel Erwin, owner of Herschel's Tie Ties.

Diane Nash, a student at predominantly Negro Fisk University, said about 40 students from colleges and universities here took part in Saturday's sit-ins at several restaurants and drugstores.

She said, "There were door guards at many, many restaurants, even at places where we had not tried to enter."

17 Million Neglected to Cast Vote

By JOHN BECKLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — You hear a lot about the record number of voters who went to the polls last Tuesday, but what about the millions who didn't?

In an election decided by a margin of less than two votes per precinct 40 million citizens over 21 failed to cast a ballot.

The situation isn't actually as bad as it appears, however, since a good many of the 107 million listed by the Census Bureau as voting-age citizens couldn't vote if they wanted to.

That's because they're convicted felons, inmates of prisons and mental hospitals, disenfranchised residents of the District of Columbia or federal reservations, or are unable for one reason or another to meet state voting requirements.

THE BEST estimate of the number of citizens actually registered to vote last Tuesday is around 84.5 million. Using that figure, the approximately 68 million who did vote make a more respectable showing — about an 80-per-cent turnout.

But that still leaves 17 million potential voters who could have helped pick a president and didn't. Who are they?

No one can say for sure about the 1960 election. It's still too early to tell who did vote without bothering about those who didn't. But on the basis of past studies, Richard M. Scammon, director of elections research for the Governmental Affairs Institute, a private organization, has a pretty good idea who the 17 million are.

They are the very young and the very old among the voting-age citizenry. They include more women than men. They're people without any roots, living in trailer courts, big-city boarding houses, working on construction jobs, stationed in military camps.

THEY COME from the less-well-educated, less-well-paid segment of the population. A lot of them are Negroes in Southern states who aren't able to define a clause of the Constitution to the satisfaction of election officials.

And some of them are voters in other elections who are sitting this one out because they don't like the candidates.

There probably always will be a large number of nonvoters, but the picture is improving steadily. The Census Bureau reports the following percentage of voters among the voting-age population since 1920:

1924—43.9	1944—53.0
1928—51.9	1948—51.5
1932—52.9	1952—62.7
1936—57.0	1956—60.4
1960—63 (estimated)

The steady improvement reflects the growing efficiency of the registration and get-out-the-vote drives of the political parties, the gradual improvement in the income and education of the populace and the wider interest in elections through television coverage of campaigns.

The chances are slim, however, that U. S. election turnouts will ever match those 99-per-centers staged in Russia or other totalitarian countries. And who would want to?

Buffums' and the Three Wishes

ONCE upon a time is NOW at Buffums', and here's how it all came to pass. A good fairy flew into our store one afternoon (oh, yes, there still are fairies about if you know how to look for them) and offered us three Christmas wishes.

"You'll have to work hard to make them come true," she said, "but that's the way it is with wishes. Don't you think?" "Isn't there an easier way?" we asked very hopefully.

She shook her head. "I'll look in on you now and again," she said, and with that she departed.

That was months ago, and now what a thrill! She has granted our wishes all three.

FIRST WISH. Our most fabulous array ever of Christmas gifts from all over the world, touched with the magic of the most and the best of the very things Southern California people love to give and to get. Our buyers were inspired!

SECOND WISH. Christmas decorations so enchanting they make people gasp when they enter the store or look at our windows. The good fairy granted us geniuses at display.

THIRD WISH. The pleasantest, friendliest Christmas store anyone ever shopped in. "And why not?" the good fairy was surprised that we asked. "Everyone knows your salespeople are famous for their courtesy and service."

We've caught the Christmas spirit from the sprite . . . do come and share it with us. Count upon it—we believe it—Christmas dreams can come true in

WITH MALCOLM EPLEY

In keeping with the suggestion that the Long Beach State Forty-Niner staff write and compose this page as part of "College Days," Malcolm Epley's column today is shared by Forty-Niner Editor Jack Harrington and feature writer Leslie Jones.

By JACK HARRINGTON

WHEN I first began writing the editor's column of the Forty-Niner this fall, I never gave it a thought that it would one day have a circulation of more than 140,000.

But then, the thousands of LBSC students and their families who are reading this newspaper today never expected to see their campus weekly as part of the Sunday Independent, Press-Telegram.

THERE have been a lot of pleasant surprises for Long Beach State students lately in regard to community support. Many feel that it's never been better.

What ever the reason for it, we at LBSC, faculty and students alike, have noticed it.

Many community leaders and more and more Long Beach area citizens are taking their place among those supporting LBSC in its academic, cultural and athletic programs.

Stories on this page today will tell only a few things about LBSC. One is about homecoming and another about open house Saturday. The open house on campus and football game in Veterans Stadium are intended for more than just the alumni and 49ers. They are for the community.

LBSC is on display. Come see it. And watch the 49ers "best-yet" football team in action, too.

Leslie Pores...

By LESLIE JONES

MY twice-weekly drive to Long Beach to attend extended-day classes at LBSC reminds me of the first trip I ever took to Long Beach under my own power all too many years ago. I was in my early teens then, and bicycled in from San Pedro.

The Pike was the big attraction to us in those days. Every chance we got, we'd bicycle in or ride the big red cars to Long Beach for fun and cheap haircuts.

In fact, it is our belief that the state wasted its dough when it built LBSC. It would have been more economical to negotiate with the Pike for sharing its facilities.

WITH a little rearranging of equipment, just about all of the present educational experiences at LBSC could be duplicated there for a lot less money.

The House of Mirrors would make an admirable administration building—especially in conjunction with the merry-go-round.

A little off to one side of the Pike there is an ideal spot for relocation of the speech department. There anyone may mount the platform and talk to whomever happens to be around.

Fortune tellers could give students advance warning of failing grades and act as personal advisors, thus saving a huge cost in the hiring of highly-paid counselors.

RETURNING to the topic of transportation, the bump-cars would preserve the flavor of the parking lot, and industrial arts students would take the diving bell down to the lower campus.

As is evident, I'm all for combining business with pleasure. And I think that Long Beach, with its sailors setting their courses for the bright spots, is a good place to do it.

Parade Highlights Homecoming

Nine Gridders in Final Clash

Sports Editor

Long Beach State's battling 49ers will host the Pepperdine Waves Saturday night before an expected record crowd of alumni, students and community supporters.

Kickoff time is 8 p. m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium, Lakewood and Carson.

The contest marks the end of the current grid season and the final appearance for nine LBSC seniors.

The players, Mike Black, Fred Burch, Mickey Gouyd, Bob Heberer, Ron Johnson, Ernie Mobley, Jim O'Hara, Bob Pinkerton, and Jack Summers, will all see their last action for LBSC.

PINKERTON, a standout end from Santa Fe Springs, is the last four-year football letterman at State. He began his grid career in '56 when freshmen were eligible for competition.

The Wave 49er clash shapes up as one of the easiest games of the season for the locals. Coach Don Reed's crew, sporting a 5-3 record, faces a team which can boast only one victory after eight contests.

PREDOMINANTLY a freshman aggregation, the Peps feature a coaching staff which includes three new mentors from Texas. Headed by Ponce Dacus (Southwest Texas State, '54), the Waves are currently in a "rebuilding year."

The 49ers will be gunning for their second straight win over the Peps in a series which started in '56. LBSC leads the series 3-1.

Running from a wing "T," with some variations, Long Beach features an offensive attack which has tallied for 121 points in their first seven games.

Shimo arrived in this country from Japan in 1902 when he was 16 years old, and found his first American job as a houseboy for a family in Watsonville.

Four years later Shimo moved north to San Francisco. He arrived just in time to experience the great earthquake and fire which virtually destroyed the city.

HE REMEMBERS that he was dressing to go out when he felt the violent tremors. Almost immediately, from his living quarters, he could count scores of spot fires across the city which later merged into one devastating holocaust.

"After I moved to Long Beach, I witnessed two more earthquakes—one in 1918 and another in 1933. I think we are about due for another one."

Refused by the army in 1918 because he was half an inch too short, Shimo kept himself in top physical condition by developing himself into a tennis ace.

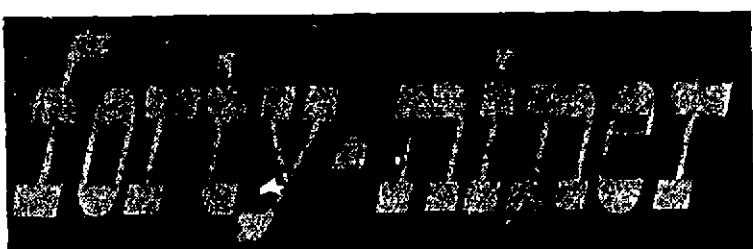

BEFORE working each day as a switchboard, telephone and elevator operator at the Palace Hotel, he practiced his tennis game for two hours at the nearby Virginia Hotel (now no longer in existence).

In 1920, using a peculiar swing he developed to compensate for his short height, Shimo matched his tennis skills with then fourth-ranked Dwight Davis of San Francisco. "I lost 6-4," he admitted, "but the game was very good."

In 1922, Shimo found a new and lasting love—art. After 38 years of devotion to art, including study at Long Beach City College, Shimo is in his third year at Long Beach State as an art major.

'COLLEGE DAYS'

Students, Staff Express Gratitude

The students of Long Beach State and the members of the Forty-Niner staff wish to express their gratitude to the Independent, Press-Telegram for use of the paper's second front page.

Forty-Niner staff members wrote the stories and headlines and composed the page make-up for this "College Days" page.

Fuller to Conduct LBSC Workshop

R. Buckminster Fuller, noted philosopher, mathematician, and engineer, will conduct a seminar-workshop at Long Beach State College, Dec. 12-16.

Moreover, by the close of the seminar only four days after it starts, a full-size, low-cost shelter for use in the Far East, will have been fully constructed on campus by the seminar students under Fuller's supervision.

DR. FULLER, designer of the geodesic dome, will present a public lecture at 8 p. m. on Dec. 12. A coffee hour will follow in the campus art gallery, again open to the public.

He will be assisted by Gene Godfrey, a former student of Dr. Fuller.

Fuller believes that the designer's real responsibility no longer is merely the creation of buildings or objects but that it is now the interrelating of physics, mathematics, and the well-being of the race.

THE INTERNATIONALLY renowned designer combines philosophy with technology in what he terms comprehensive design. The function of comprehensive design, in his view, is to isolate from the dynamic universe of energy and experience all the local patterns that can be turned to men's advantage.

Fuller's designs utilize pyramidal, eight-sided, and even 20-sided building blocks which are similar to models of atomic particles.

Dr. Fuller's public lecture is another event in the Long Beach State College's Evenings on Campus series. Dr. Fuller spoke under the same sponsorship in 1958.

A.S. Hires

L. Ahnebrink

Swedish scholar Dr. Lars Ahnebrink, professor of American civilization at Uppsala University, will become the first Associated Students hired instructor at LBSC.

Ask Alum Sign-up

"Active participation by more alumni is our main concern now," says Larry Pearce, president of the Long Beach State College Alumni Association.

Pearce described the activities of the alumni group as "contributing to the support of campus affairs, supplying financial and moral aid, beautifying college grounds over and above paid maintenance, and generally raising the prestige of the school."

Another important function of the alumni is to serve as a liaison group between the student body and the community, according to Pearce.

"We would like to do much more," he continued, "but we are hampered by our relatively small number of active members."

Interested alumni may call GE 3-0951, alumni office, for further information.

AT 8 P. M., Long Beach State's newly powerful football squad tangles with the Pepperdine Waves in Veterans Memorial Stadium. Seating for 12,500 spectators is available. Tickets for the game can be purchased at the gate.

Student chairman of State College homecoming is Clark Richey, who contacted the Independent, Press-Telegram Executive Editor Malcolm Epley about publicity for the annual event in October.

Out of the discussion came the plans for College Days.

WHILE students on campus elect a homecoming queen and court and held a bonfire rally and street dance, Long Beach merchants will put up special window displays to carry out the College Days theme.

Long Beach State's Forty-Niner is again one of the highest ranked big college weeklies in the nation. For the second straight year was Lee M. Brown, formerly of Long Beach, now doing graduate work at Iowa State University.

JUDGES gave the Forty-Niner 100 more points than was needed for the honor and gave special praise to the paper's sports coverage and photography. The rating was based on typography.

State to Welcome Open House Guests

Alumni of Long Beach State, residents of Long Beach and surrounding communities and the students, faculty and administrators of LBSC join this week in celebrating College Days.

Kicked off Wednesday evening with the community recognition dinner in honor of LBSC's newly inaugurated president, Dr. Carl W. McIntosh, College Days continues this week with activities both on and off campus, climaxed by a parade, a campus open house and football game on Saturday.

Colorful floats, accompanied by the 49er marching band and the bands of several Long Beach area high schools, will roll down 2nd St. in Belmont Shore at 11 a. m. Saturday to open the day's festivities.

THE PARADE will be the biggest in the college's homecoming history. The floats, completed just hours before the parade gets underway, will depict traditions of the college.

Following the parade, State College invites all area residents to the campus for an open house. All departments will put themselves on public display from 2-5 p. m.

COLLEGE OFFICIALS initiated plans for the campus visitation to give Long Beach residents an opportunity to make a first hand inspection of LBSC's facilities and grounds.

Alamitos and Cerritos residence halls will also hold an open house. Free refreshments will be served in the college cafeteria.

Immediately following the campus "at home," the fraternity and sorority houses scattered throughout Long Beach will hold open house for Greek alumni.

AT 8 P. M., Long Beach State's newly powerful football squad tangles with the Pepperdine Waves in Veterans Memorial Stadium. Seating for 12,500 spectators is available. Tickets for the game can be purchased at the gate.

JANEAL CROWLEY
"Lysistrata"

'Lysistrata' Cast, Crew Ready Show

A cast of 38 has begun a full rehearsal schedule for Long Beach State's second major fall semester drama production — Aristophanes' "Lysistrata."

Under the direction of Prof. Alec Finlayson, the cast, one of the largest to perform on the LBSC stage, prepares for the Dec. 7-10 presentation of the bawdy Greek comedy in the campus Little Theatre.

Written by Aristophanes about 411 B.C., when Athens was fighting the Peloponnesian wars, the story tells of the Athenian wives' unique plan to keep their soldier husbands home from battle.

"LYSISTRATA" is similar to slapstick burlesque with a more serious side," Finlayson points out. "The play was designed for a mature audience and not for children. Greek children were not allowed to go to the theater."

Winner of the title role was Janeal Crowley. Supporting her are Aileen Alvich, Anita McKay, Anne Bolen, Ron Albertson, Robert Ahrens, and Lew Breshears.

A THEATER ORCHESTRA will play during dance scenes, and elaborate costumes are being prepared for the production.

Stagecraft classes have begun construction of the "Lysistrata" set backstage.

Just two weeks ago the West Coast premiere of Eugene O'Neill's "Moon for the Misbegotten" completed its successful four-day run at the college.

Tickets for the Greek comedy will be available Nov. 28, according to Finlayson.

Election Reminder: Vote System Far Short of Perfect

U.S. VOTERS RECEIVED a strong reminder this week that a candidate getting the majority of the popular vote could lose the presidential election.

Vice President Richard Nixon did not get the majority of the popular vote (or at least had not gotten it at this writing) but the closeness of his total popular vote to that of Sen. Kennedy contrasted sharply with the wide difference in the electoral count, which favored Kennedy strongly and decisively.

With minor changes of emphasis in the balloting, Nixon could have received the larger popular vote without gaining the number of electoral votes necessary for victory. He merely would have needed to win by slightly larger margins in the states which favored him.

As it turns out, Sen. Kennedy's victory is almost certainly a decisive one on both counts, but the reminder of what might have happened stirs discontent with the electoral college system, under which states vote in blocs rather than according to the proportion of popular votes cast within them.

The discontented are not all Nixon supporters licking their wounds. This newspaper was for Kennedy but it would like to see him win with a popular majority. Both Sen. Mike A. Mansfield, Democrat who is slated to succeed Sen. Lyndon Johnson as Senate majority leader, and Sen. George A. Smathers, Florida Democrat, are critical of the electoral system and indicate they will seek its abolition.

AMERICA HAS COME A LONG WAY since the day of Alexander Hamilton. He felt that the members of the electoral college, superior people, would properly serve as watchdogs of the election. If the mass of voters should make a mistake, the electoral college would be able to correct it.

Perhaps there was a time when this theory was right. But while many good and intelligent citizens form the modern electoral colleges, we know from personal observation that many of them are no better qualified than their fellowmen to pick a candidate.

Actually, the work of the electoral college is now perfunctory. Rarely does an elector cast his vote for a candidate other than the one approved by the popular vote of his state.

Since the original purpose of the college is no longer valid—if it ever was valid—why preserve a meaningless institution with a dangerous potential for turning a national election upside down?

In defense of the electoral college one commentator argues that larger states, in which most of the productivity and wealth of the nation resides, do deserve a strong voice. The answer to that is that they deserve power in proportion to their size, and they have it in their popular vote as well as in Congress. Sen. Smathers argues that the electoral college gives the big cities too much power in elections and completely wipes out the votes of those backing the losing candidate within the state.

The electoral system has withstood assault for more than a century and a half. It is hard to understand why it has been able to do so. Clearly there is something wrong with a system under which the candidate getting the smaller number of votes could win.

EXPERIENCED THOUGH Americans are with the democratic state, their failure to develop efficient election methods is noteworthy and painful.

California got some embarrassing national publicity on election night because of the size of its ballot, which resembled a horse blanket, and the slowness of its vote count. Many of the 15 measures on the ballot were technical questions which should have been taken care of by the legislature. As for the counting of votes, Tuesday's experience proves that Los Angeles County can no longer depend on its old-fashioned methods. The county needs voting machines and machines to count the votes. Nor is there any good explanation why five days should pass before the contents of absentee ballots are known.

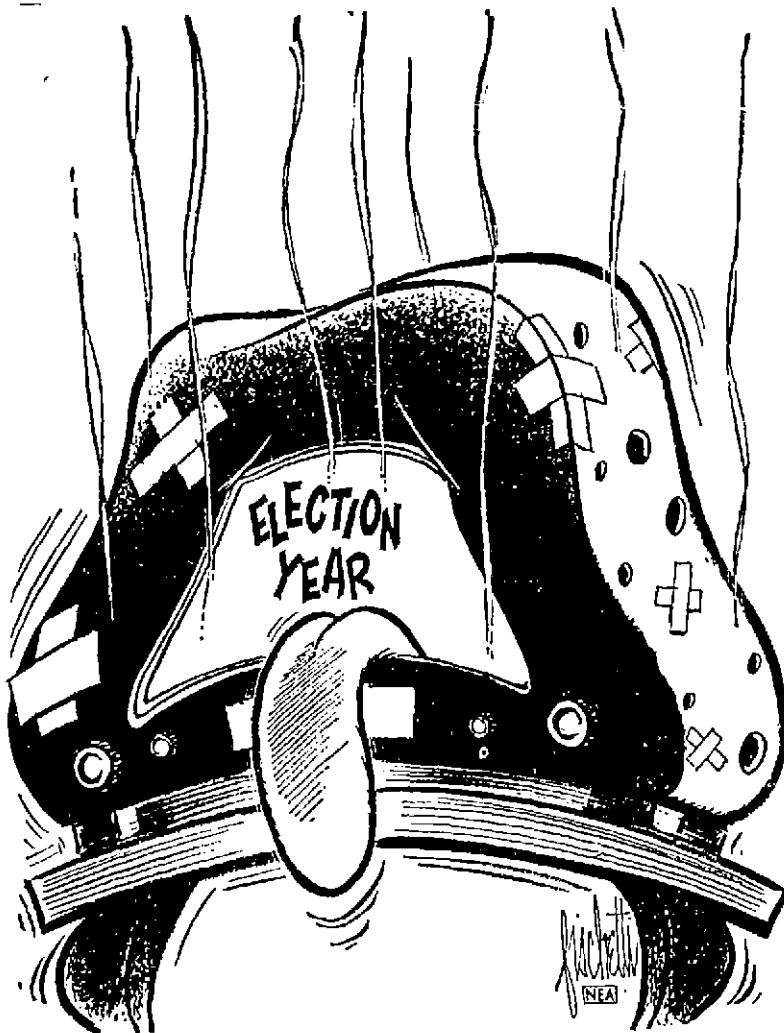

Another curious and embarrassing fact is that California has no provision for bi-partisan membership on election boards. The conduct of the election in a precinct can legally be placed in the hands of a board made up entirely of members of the same political party. A local survey shows that partisans had monopolies of 48 election boards in this community in Tuesday's election.

Tuesday's election indicated that the Registrar of Voters' office is ill-equipped to handle requests for information from election boards and voters. When a problem arises in the precinct voting place with regard to a citizen's eligibility to vote, a decision must be sought from the Registrar in Los Angeles. Reports from the precincts indicate that it takes much too long to get through to the people who know the answers. We recommend regional election-day switchboards of experts to render decisions and answer questions.

THE DIFFERENCE OF TIME zones, the efficient counting methods in some of the eastern sections of the country, and the speed of modern communications have created a peculiar problem. Eastern election results and electronic predictions of the winner were being broadcast Tuesday before the polls had closed on the West Coast. In other words, many thousands of Californians went to the polls knowing how others had voted and how the experts expected the race to turn out. Who can say how this knowledge influenced the balloting here?

THE ABOVE ARE SOME of the recurring problems of our campaign and election systems. We submit them to the voters with the hope that they may be moved to seek from their state and national legislators some badly needed reforms.

Election System Antiquated, Ill-Suited for Nuclear Age

WASHINGTON — Do the American people have the faintest idea of what they have done to their government by their votes on election day? Do they know the dangers and even possible tragedy of transition in government as one administration takes over from another?

Some day the American people ought to be told the whole truth so they will be persuaded to change the present system, which is antiquated and ill-suited for a nuclear age.

What better time, for instance, for a foreign government to begin playing with fire and to precipitate a crisis than today? Virtually all the administration's top policy makers and experienced officials must begin to pack their bags. Their interest now turns to their private affairs. The workload is going to be somebody else's responsibility in a few weeks anyway.

As for the knowledge and experience accumulated in nearly eight years of service, these are to be tossed away as a new personnel takes over and starts to learn what it is all about.

Sen. Kennedy is a conscientious individual, who will try to make a good president. But he must learn first the intimate background of public affairs. This takes not a few weeks but many months and perhaps years. It's a high price for the nation to pay.

Is there some other way? The British and many other English-speaking countries have a better system. It is called the "parliamentary" system. It requires the electorate to pick in an election their representatives in the national legislature, and these representatives select the leader who becomes responsible for the executive as well as the legislative branches of the government.

IF THE PARTY in power makes mistakes and loses the confidence of the people, it can be ousted at any time, or a new legislature can be elected. A permanent personnel, known as the "career service," functions continuously in high posts irrespective of the party in power. Thus is continuity assured and transition made smooth and effective in the shortest possible time.

It isn't a perfect system, and the American people could doubtless improve upon it with certain safeguards. But it is a Democratic system and one that is immediately responsive to the will of the people.

Thus, when an American president is elected, he can make serious blunders but he cannot be ousted for four years except by the impeachment process. This is a long time in modern government. Back in 1913, just before his inauguration, President-elect Woodrow Wilson was asked his views on the then proposed constitutional amendment limiting a president to a single term of six years as recommended in the 1912 Democratic national platform. Mr.

Wilson wrote a letter to Congress in which he said rightly that four years is often too long a time before the nation can get a new president and sometimes too short a time to give to a man who has initiated a reform program that the people might desire. He hinted then that the United States might someday come to some form of responsible government by cabinet, which, of course, describes the parliamentary system.

THIS WRITER has always opposed the two-term limitation for presidential tenure and has contended that no limit should be placed on the terms that a chief executive could serve but that he should be held accountable after two years to a two-thirds vote of both houses of Congress.

Religious Groups in Politics Come Up for Tax Scrutiny

WASHINGTON — Certain church groups are going to be very indignant about it, but Internal Revenue inspectors are preparing a file on those who have taken tax deductions yet at the same time engaged in politics.

The probe is going to be blamed on President-elect Kennedy, and will be called Catholic revenge for injecting religion into the campaign. However, Internal Revenue had been checking on the tax-exemption of political-religious groups well before the election, and the investigation would have taken place no matter who was elected.

What many "religious politicians" don't seem to realize is that while a church or religious activity is tax-exempt, a political activity is not. And during the recent election, anti-Catholic literature swept across the country like a blizzard, much of it coming from tax-exempt religious organizations which cannot engage in political activity if they want to continue their tax-exemption.

Thus some big Republicans contributors were able to donate money to this anti-Catholic campaign and actually deduct it from their taxes.

Technically the contributions went for "religious education." The "education," however, consisted of explaining to voters why they shouldn't elect a Catholic as president.

Some tax-exempt groups did not circulate the literature but sold "reprints" to anyone who wished to buy which, according to some tax attorneys, would be interpreted as no violation of the law.

FOR EXAMPLE the Presbyterian Journal of Weaverville, N. C., is a non-profit, tax-exempt publication, yet sold at cost over 200,000 copies of an attack upon the Catholic Church by Dr. L. Nelson Bell, father-in-law of evangelist Billy Graham. The Bell tract starts off with the statement, "If a Roman Catholic is elected President of the United States in November, he will have to be elected by Protestants."

For the next four pages, the tract warns against the political power and influence of the Catholic Church. This has been distributed all over the country as tax-free, non-political "educational" literature.

Another source of anti-Catholic literature is the Freedom Press of Nashville, which also claims to be a non-profit religious foundation. Yet it has reprinted and sold over 500,000 copies of a tract called "Can Roman Catholics Be Loyal to Both America and the Vatican?" It has also distributed 50,000 copies of a magazine called "Voice of Freedom" whose lead article is entitled "Why We Oppose a Catholic for President."

They Register Demo, Vote Straight 'Independent'

OFFICIAL registration figures call them something else—like Democrats, Republicans and Decline-to-Staters—but election day exercises here prove invariably that a likelier label is "Independents."

Our 18th Congressional District of Long Beach-Lakewood-Signal Hill tells the electoral world it is 58 per cent Democratic when it signs its name to registration forms. On election day it flouts the label and makes its own. As proved again last Tuesday, the 18th's prime political passion is Independent-Conservative.

Else, why is it that Joe Kennick, Democrat, is the only one of his breed to win any marbles here Tuesday? President-elect Kennedy lost the territory by 12,000 votes. Pat Ahern was swamped 70 to 30. Mrs. Ora G. Knudson lost by 23,000 votes in the 70th District—only a portion of the 18th Congressional District and she had only a 100-vote lead out of 27,000 ballots cast in Lakewood, whose registration is two-to-one Democratic.

Kennick won by about 8,000 votes in the 44th. But even his has been a long fight. Despite a distinguished two-decade career in juvenile work, Kennick suffered a couple of congressional defeats and found that his impressive credentials served him well only in the Democratic political sweep of 1958.

The moral would seem to be that unless you have 20 or 30 years exemplary conduct as a Democrat in the area your campaign platform must be built on bedrock conservatism.

MILLIONS NOW engaged in match-making for Vice President Nixon, in terms of his future employment, often mention California's governorship.

Of passing interest is a May, 1960, California Poll which matched Governor Brown against Nixon and against New York's Governor Rockefeller in presidential trial heats. It was Nixon over Brown 51 to 36 per cent with 13 per cent undecided. It was Rockefeller over Brown 55 to 33 per cent with 22 per cent undecided.

TRACKING DOWN an election day rumor of unwarranted challenging of voters at the Cubberley School precinct, 3100 Monogram Ave., we not only found the rumor to be false but that the sympathetic ladies on the election board had gone to some trouble to check the case of a voter who had not properly re-registered.

PAT DRISCOLL of Douglas Local 148 reports a force of 24 bilingual vigilantes from the Douglas work force checked out of the plant on their own time election day in answer to charges of irregularities in certain Orange County polling places.

Driscoll said frantic Orange County Democrats sent an S.O.S. here charging that Mexican-American citizens were being challenged on a constitutional requirement that they be capable of reading 100 words from the Constitution to be eligible to vote. They needed Spanish-speaking Democrats to help resolve the trouble.

Two dozen volunteers answered the distress call to demonstrate citizenship and indignation.

STATE SEN. Richard Richards was hard at work alone in his office Veterans Day projecting probable results of absentee ballots on the outcome of the state water bond issue, Prop. 1. His solution added up to good news for the program for which he has campaigned vigorously.

Of 230,000 absentee ballots statewide, Richards had this breakdown: There were 90,906 from Los Angeles County where the vote had gone 5 to 4 for Prop. 1; 23,269 from San Diego where it was 4 to 1; 9,200 from San Bernardino where it was 3 to 1; 10,199 from Orange, 2½ to 1; 6,711 from Riverside, over 3 to 1, and 3,164 from Ventura, over 2 to 1.

All the remaining north and central counties had 86,551 ballots out. Richards figured the northern segment would need a solid bloc vote against and would have to get better than half of the Southern California absentees to do any damage.

Agrees With Ahern on Newspaper

EDITOR:
According to Democrat Pat Ahern's statement on a recent TV political appearance, Long Beach needs another daily newspaper. And although we disagree on most other issues, I find myself in complete agreement with Mr. Ahern regarding the need for a second daily newspaper in Long Beach.

Disgusted With L. B. Bus System

EDITOR:
Please consider this letter as the opinion of at least two dozen other residents who are thoroughly disgusted with the Long Beach bus system!
We live SIX miles from Long Beach City College and it takes our daughter, and her friends, at least ONE HOUR to get home from school, via the bus! I would be glad to pay more, if it would help, but everytime we pay more we get less!
Is there no solution to our problem?

Assemblyman Grant Thanks Voters

EDITOR:
I am deeply grateful for the tremendous vote of confidence given to me in the recent election by the thousands of residents of the 70th Assembly District.
I pledge to continue as I have in the past, doing my utmost to secure equitable and beneficial legislation and treatment for our area.

To all voters of the 70th Assembly District I express my deep and sincere appreciation for their vote of confidence, and promise to continue serving the area as its elected representative.
I also offer thanks to the many hundreds of volunteer workers that participated in my campaign.

Battle Isn't Lost, Says Bonelli

EDITOR:
In spite of the statewide loss of "yes" on Prop. 15, I hasten to inform you that it is substantially a moral victory particularly to the Long Beach Independent and Press-Telegram as the partial returns indicate we will have as much as a 250,000 plurality in Los Angeles County and well over a million people will have expressed themselves in Los Angeles County in favor of "yes" on Prop. 15. Your being one of the leading county newspapers having had the intestinal fortitude to stand up and be counted in support of "yes" on Prop. 15 and then have the county in which your paper is primarily disseminated overwhelmingly support you is proof enough in my book of a moral victory.

ALL IS NOT lost as a result of the defeat of Prop. 15, as I believe we have spotlighted the need for some basic reform in the present makeup of the State Senate and that it shall be incumbent upon our leadership statewide to heed the wish of a substantial portion of the electorate.
FRANK G. BONELLI
Chairman, County Board of Supervisors.

HARBOR VIEWS

Flags Honor Port Guests

By LEE CRAIG

Bob Metzgar, Long Beach Harbor public relations director, has introduced a new gimmick to make port visitors feel welcome.

When word is received that foreign guests are arriving to tour the harbor, Bob has their country's flag run up on one of the two flagpoles in front of the harbor administration building, so that it flies alongside the American flag.

The visitors never fail to notice it. Most stop, look up, then back off to take pictures which usually attain wide circulation when the guests return home.

Metzgar isn't alone in his belief that this simple gesture of politeness makes more friends for the port—and for this country—than would a dozen formal luncheons.

INCIDENTALLY, Metzgar is looking for a public relations assistant to fill a post recently authorized. Pay range is from $587 to $722 a month and the usual benefits accorded city employees—pension, sick benefits, etc. will go with the job. See the Civil Service Board for details.

A NEW Pacific Far East Lines ship, the Guam Bear, called at Long Beach Harbor last week on her maiden voyage. . . . Moore-McCormack Lines, which launched a new cargo-passenger liner Nov. 4 at Todd Shipyards, gave another indication that the firm is doing all right by revealing that net income for the third quarter of 1960 was $683,000, compared to $208,000 for the same period of 1959.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Risk of Scald High for Child

(Prepared in collaboration with Medical Education Department, Memorial Hospital of Long Beach.)

By BEN ZINSER AND GEORGE X. TRIMBLE, M.D.

Most children's burns could be prevented if parents would exercise more foresight, say University of Washington surgeons in the American Journal of Surgery.

The cause of most childhood burns is not playing with matches as one might think. Rather it's spilled hot liquids that hospitalize most of the youngsters.

The Seattle surgeons base their observations on an eight-year study of 525 burn patients admitted to King County Hospital.

Playing with matches accounted for only 7 per cent of all burns among children. Hot liquids, though, were responsible for 52 per cent of the accidents. Second-ranking cause of children's burns: clothing coming into contact with stove (15 per cent).

The researchers say that greater parental effort to eliminate potential hot-liquid hazards from the environment of small children would "markedly reduce" children's burns.

Adults, they found, are most frequently burned as a result of falling asleep while smoking in bed.

IF A PREGNANT WOMAN DIES shortly before her child is due for delivery, doctors should not be reluctant to perform a postmortem Caesarean section in an effort to save the baby. The advice is that of Dr. I. G. Cloud of the University of Tennessee College of Medicine.

The procedure should be done even though the heart tones of the baby cannot be heard, he says. Moreover, the operation should be performed even as long as 25 minutes after death.

Dr. Cloud reports a dramatic case in which a 24-year-old woman with bulbar polio was placed in a tank respirator in critical condition. The woman was 35 weeks pregnant. She died and 10 minutes later doctors performed a Caesarean section and removed a live female infant.

Medical literature now contains reports of 124 successful postmortem Caesarean operations in the past 250 years.

MOTORCYCLE FATALITIES are on the increase, says a report in the journal Lancet. Research by P. W. Bothwell of England discloses that safety belts and roll-bars could reduce the death rate. The roll-bars, the physician says, would not interfere with the cycle's stability in crosswinds.

BRAIN-WAVE TRACINGS provide an effective—and safe—method of pinpointing a brain tumor's location before surgery, according to VA neurosurgeons in Durham, N. C.

Other methods of determining brain-tumor location are X rays of the skull, cerebral angiography (dye injection studies) and radioactive isotopes. But the latter two methods involve some risk to the patient, and also may not be as accurate.

ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION SCIENTISTS say that whole wheat bread contains three to four times more radioactive strontium than white bread. Does this mean, someone has asked a consultant to the AMA Journal, that a person should substitute white bread for brown?

No, says the consultant. He estimates you'd have to eat five to 10 pounds of whole wheat bread each day before a hazard could possibly exist.

Radioactive strontium is a deadly byproduct of nuclear explosions and exists throughout nature now as the result of fallout. Heavy concentrations can cause bone cancer. The extent of the hazard has until recently been a controversial matter.

Evidence now on hand indicates that radiostrontium presents no hazard in basic foods such as milk and bread.

SUNTAN PILLS which enable a light-skinned person to take sunlight without burning should be used solely for medical reasons—never as a cosmetic, three Boston skin specialists say.

Reason: The pills, which contain a substance called methoxsalen, may possibly cause serious side effects, including injury to the liver, skin and eyes.

Drs. J. Donald Imbric, Lester L. Bergeron and Thomas B. Fitzpatrick say in Archives of Dermatology, an AMA publication, that methoxsalen should always be taken at the direction of a physician.

The drug increases tolerance of the skin to sunlight in individuals who do not have adequate natural protective mechanisms. Thus those fair-skinned persons who take the tablets grow brown under the sun rather than suffer a red burn that later peels. A definite sun-exposure guide must be followed, however. If exposure and drug dosage are not carefully controlled, serious burning can result.

Rabble Army Terrorizes Stanleyville

By WILLIAM ANDERSON

STANLEYVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—A uniformed rabble rules this frightened city.

Arbitrary arrests, beatings, extortion and drunken brawling have become so commonplace that they no longer are a subject of conversation among the 500 Europeans who stay close to the Stanley Hotel.

Once these soldiers were the Congolese Army Third Group. They have arrested their officers and elected new ones three times since July. They act on rumor and whim.

THE RULE OF the soldiery begins at the airport. Passengers are met with a bayonet in the stomach and are herded single-file like prisoners into the immigration building. Unemployed Congolese hanging around the airport scream, "We are the masters" and "Freedom."

Congolese passengers are ushered through customs without formality. Europeans are searched, money is counted "to ensure you are not carrying money to pay Belgian spies." The money is thrown on the ground where the passenger must stoop to pick it up.

Col. Yohanna Chites, commander of the U.N. garrison in this town—seat of deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba's power—said he can intervene only if U.N. personnel are arrested.

LAST WEEK, virtually every automobile was confiscated by the soldiers. Now the army rides in style in civilian cars with gun muzzles sticking through the windows.

The hard-drinking soldiers have several sources of revenue. One is the threat of arrest. The present going rate for not arresting a European is $60.

Rural Africans, hard-working for the most part, must pay a "tax" at troop road-blocks when they come to town. Occasionally a platoon of soldiers will surround a village and take it over for a night.

Officials are arrested indiscriminately. Charles Bajoko, Provincial Assembly president was seized just after agreeing to an interview with this correspondent. He was accused of "secret dealings" with Europeans.

INFLATION is rampant. Banknotes which were intended as replacements for worn-out currency and which have no gold backing were given to the troops.

For more than a month, seven members of Parliament have been held prisoner. Their crime was disavowing Lumumba, who is in Leopoldville.

Alphonse Songolo, a parliamentarian, now is in a Congolese army hospital under guard. He is almost blind from a four-hour beating.

The leading politician in town now is Louis Lumumba, brother of Patrice. A provincial cabinet official says Louis Lumumba is planning to cut the province off from the rest of the Congo, under his brother Patrice.

Another cabinet official said the U.N. command is sheltering a band of Belgian paratroopers who plan to attack Stanleyville.

TORQUAY, England (UPI)—Irish playwright Sean O'Casey says he thinks Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is "the liveliest head of state we have" and would like to meet him. O'Casey said he has been a friend of Russia since the 1917 Revolution, and has written several articles in Soviet publications. "I have no snobbish ideas about being above other people," he said. "A journalist has a very responsible position. He is continually talking to the people. Unfortunately, some of them do not realize how important their position is."

London Installs
Jewish Mayor---
7th in Centuries

LONDON (UPI)—Sir Bernard Waley-Cohen was installed Saturday as London's seventh Jewish lord mayor in 770 years. Sir Bernard rode in a golden coach along a one-mile route from historic Guildhall to the law courts past thousands of Londoners who braved a downpour to line the processional route. Bagpipes skirled and brass bands blared as the new lord mayor rode out to present himself to the Queen's justices as his predecessors had done since the days of the Magna Charta.

Kilmer, Bruins Smash AF, 22-0

Baylor Trounces Troy, 35-14

WACO, Tex. (Special)—Fleet Ronnie Bull ran circles around a heavy Southern California line Saturday as he scored three touchdowns to lead the Baylor Bears to a lopsided 35-14 victory over the Trojans.

A crowd of 23,000 watched the 189-pound Baylor speedster score on runs of 14, 3 and 1 yards and roll up a total of 76 yards rushing. Bull, a 9.8 man in the 100-yard dash, also caught two passes for 22 yards.

The Bears completely dominated the game until late in the final quarter when the Trojans finally clicked on a 68-yard touchdown pass from Bill Nelson to Jim Bates and a 26-yard scoring toss to Ben Rosin after a successful on-sides kickoff.

Baylor's fourth TD was also on a long-distance connection between Ronnie Stanley and halfback Jim Oldham for 47 yards.

There were four touchdowns in the last quarter. Fumbles were costly to the Trojans, as they lost the ball four times inside the Bear 35.

Bear fullback Jim Evans recovered a fumble on the SC 44 to set up the first Baylor touchdown. Two passes from Stanley to end Bob Lane put the Bears on the 23, and Bull accounted for the rest on three runs.

THE SCORE CAME WITH FOURTH DOWN and one to go on the SC 14. Bull took a handoff, headed wide around left end, faked a cut and then raced for the flag.

A second-quarter fumble put the Bears on their own 25, and Ply threw three straight strikes for a total of 58 yards, before three bull-dozing runs netted another touchdown. The score by Bull, a Bishop, Tex. junior, came on a three-yard run through left tackle.

Fullback Ben Wilson almost got loose for a SC touchdown late in the first half, lumbering 37 yards on a draw play before Baylor's Bob Lane tackled him from behind on the Bear 21. After two incomplete passes, Don Zachick was short with a field goal from the 27 yard line. Baylor started the second half with a 71-yard touchdown drive that was mostly Bull. He caught a 15-yard pass from Stanley and gained 34 yards on five carries, going over from the one for the score.

Kilmer Paces Bruins' Romp

By DAVE LEWIS

With their chief gunner, Bill Kilmer, directing operations, the Bruins of UCLA sent the Air Force Academy Falcons crashing to a 22-0 defeat in a sea of mud Saturday in the Coliseum before a small band of 21,914 hardy fans who braved the rain to see the intersectional struggle.

The game proved to be another showcase for Kilmer, the Coast's leading candidate for all-America honors.

Kilmer scored two touchdowns, one on a spectacular 88-yard run; passed for a third, and picked up 192 yards in his drive for the nation's total offense crown.

Bill netted 124 yards rushing on 12 carries and completed four of 12 passes for 68 yards. This boosts his season's total offense record to 1,340 and helped him zero in on the present leader, Terry Baker of Oregon State, who was only 205 yards in the lead despite playing two more games.

The Air Force found it could move against the Bruins, but just couldn't pick up enough momentum to get it over the final stripe.

Despite the mushy going, the Air Force's great bomber, Rich Mayo, threw 40 passes in a vain effort to pierce the Bruin defenses. He completed 20 for 194 yards... but had four picked off.

The shutout was UCLA's third in a row and was a tribute to the Bruins' alert defensive play for they had their hands full holding off the attack-minded Falcons.

THE "FLYBOYS" piled up a 22-14 advantage in first downs and a 336 to 330 edge in net yards as they registered no less than six scoring threats.

The halftime gun stopped one Falcon drive on the one-yard line and a fumble stopped another on the five. Four others carried to the 19, 20, 22 and 29-yard lines before being checked.

Scorewise, though, the Air Force was never in the game after the Bruins struck for their first touchdown midway in the first quarter on Kilmer's 29-yard pass to Chuck Hicks.

Bill then broke things wide.

PASSES NET 23-14 WIN

1st Place Gophers Rocked by Purdue

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI)—Passing wizard Bernie Allen Saturday pitched Purdue to a 23-14 upset victory over previously unbeaten Minnesota, the nation's No. 1 football team, to crumble the Gophers' bid for the national football championship before 61,348 howling fans.

Allen, a 6-foot senior quarterback, set up the Boilermakers' first two touchdowns with brilliant passing, and booted a 35-yard field goal in the third period to put the game out of reach for the Gophers.

Minnesota remained in contention for a Big Ten title despite the loss, the first of the season against seven victories.

The Gophers must win in their finale against University of Wisconsin at Madison next week to tie for the crown.

The Boilermakers got their last touchdown in a freak play with the clock dead.

Tom King fumbled Allen's punt in the end zone, and Jim Tiller came up with the ball to give Purdue a touchdown.

The game was going to a photo-finish before the freakish Boilermakers' score. Minnesota had three chances to score within the last seven minutes, but an inspired Purdue line rushed the passers to stop the Gophers.

Allen passed for 131 yards.

49ers, Diablos in 3-3 Mud Standoff

By AL LARSON

PASADENA—Tom Turritt's muddy but trusty toe and a tremendous goal line stand earned Long Beach State a 3-3 tie with Los Angeles State and second place in final CCAA standings Saturday at the Rose Bowl.

The attraction was billed as a football game, but the 1,527 brave souls must have thought they were watching an old-time minstrel show. By the time the game was five minutes a'long, the players were caked from head to toe with mud. Only thing missing was banjo music.

Los Angeles grabbed an early third quarter lead when Dick Carey kicked a 32-yard field goal.

It was Turritt's turn next. The splendid sophomore wingback, who had kicked three previous three-pointers this season, split the goals posts from 30 yards out with 8:36 remaining in the game to pull the 49ers even.

Turritt scored the points but it was Long Beach's magnificent line play which kept LASC from denting the end

Sam Hankerson recovered one of Long Beach's five fumbles during the rainy-day session to present the Diablos with a golden opportunity on the four-yard line.

But Long Beach's line turned into Lyon-tamers at this point. Four times fullback Bob Lyon carried into the center of the line, but by the time the final pileup was unscrambled Mr. Lyon still was one foot short of paydirt.

This was the 49ers' finest defensive hour of the season.

During the 60-minute mud-fest, Los Angeles threatened only three times. After Mr.

Evashevski Bows in Grand Manner

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI)—Forest Evashevski made his last home appearance as Iowa's head football coach a success Saturday as the Hawkeyes drubbed Ohio State, 35-12, to clinch at least a share of the Big Ten title.

Seniors were honored at the traditional Dad's Day game but it was a set of fleet underclass backs which turned the game into a rout and moved Iowa back into first place in the Big Ten with a 5-1 record.

The Hawkeyes, beaten by Minnesota last week, were given the opportunity for a share of the crown when Purdue edged the Gophers, 23-14.

sin next week to tie the Hawkeyes for the crown.

The defeat ended Ohio State's hopes for a share of the title as the Buckeyes, rated a slim favorite in pre-game odds-making, were out-rushed, out-passed and out-played in the line.

Sophomore fullback Joe Williams paced Iowa with two touchdown runs, one a 43-yarder that opened the scoring in the first period. He added another on a one-yard plunge in the closing seconds of the first half to give the Hawkeyes a 28-6 halftime margin.

Houston 1-Point Pick Over Chargers

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH

Lou Rymkus' Houston Oilers, featuring the "new" Billy Cannon, will invade the Coliseum at 1 p.m. today to oppose the revived Los Angeles Chargers in the infant American Football League's first clash of undisputed leaders.

The Oilers (6-2) top the Eastern Division, while the Chargers (5-3) lead the Western Division.

Odds shifted mysteriously in the past 24 hours and the Oilers, once favored by three points, are picked by only one.

Houston downed the Chargers, 38-28, in Texas earlier this season. (However, the Chargers bumped the Oilers, 22-13, in a pre-season contest).

Barring more rain, a crowd of about 30,000 is expected today.

SID GILLMAN'S Chargers are riding the wings of a three-game win streak on the road against Denver, Boston and New York, and appear at the peak of their game.

Whether this peak situation will be enough to roust the tough Oilers will be determined this afternoon.

Houston apparently boasts the strongest personnel in either division of the AFL. The Oilers are so solid they could afford to place all-America fullback Bob White active list last week. Offensively, the Oilers are the best in the AFL, averaging 31 points-per-game. Their running attack features the league's 1-2 rushers, Dave Smith (Ripon) and Cannon, 1959 Heisman Trophy winner and LSU all-America.

In the air, Houston is just as potent, with former Chicago Bear ace George Blanda doing the pitching. Blanda has two excellent targets in Bill Groman and Johnny Carson, the latter many times all-pro with the Washington Redskins. Groman (39) and Carson (27) have latched onto 66 Blanda tosses.

Defensively, the Oilers are complex. They lead the league in defense against ground attack, but they're at the bottom of the ladder in air defense. The reason is simple: Houston employs a virtually unheard-of consistent 8-man rush, with only three men deep. If the enemy passer gets rid of the ball, his chances of completion are excellent. His problem is to flip the pigskin—or get clobbered by the eight onrushing bulls!

Houston's top defenders are such well-known personalities as Hugh Pitts (TCU), Dan Lanphear (Wisconsin), Jerry Helluin (Tulane), Don Floyd (TCU), Chuck Kendall (UCLA) and Al Witcher (Baylor), among others.

JACK KEMP will key the Charger attack again today, with Paul Lowe and Howie Ferguson as his chief ground engineers. Ralph Anderson has shaken his diabetic problems and will be ready to return as Kemp's principal receptionist.

Today's contest is a critical one for the Chargers. A triumph would almost assure them the Western Division championship. A loss would throw the division flag up for grabs once more.

If Kemp can outlog those eight stampeding bulls, the Chargers could spring a big win. But—as six other foes have learned—that's a mighty big "IF."

Lions (3½ Pick) Growling for Rams' Horns Today

By JERRY WYNN

DETROIT—Man the cages, the lions are growling for revenge today!

For it was just two weeks ago that the Detroit club had an unpleasant visit to Los Angeles. (1) They lost a game to Rams, 48-35, they thought they deserved to win.

2. They got socked with a $60,000 assault suit by a model who claims Lion line-backer Carl Bretschneider was guilty of a personal foul.

Not that the Rams had anything to do with the latter, but it did add insult to injury.

SO THE Lions are hoping to get even today when they entice the Rams into their Briggs Stadium den for the 10:35 (PST) kickoff of a game that will be televised in southern California over KNXT (2). Detroit is favored by 3½ points.

There's more that is appealing about the contest than the revenge motive.

Both teams are deadlocked for fifth place in National League Western Division standings with records of 2-4, a tie for the Rams not counted. Both are vastly improved clubs that have shaken early-season slumps.

SANDWICHED around the loss to the Rams, the Lions have beaten the Colts, 30-17, and the 49ers, 24-0. After 13 straight league losses, the Rams are now riding the crest of a tie and two wins in their last three games and in goal toe of Jim Martin.

As the Rams well know from personal contact at the Coliseum, Detroit can hurt you all ways. In the last game, the Lions gained 242 yards in the air and 241 more on the ground. And if needed, they boast the accurate field

UCLA Frosh Win

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Halfback Don Rojas ran for two touchdowns and passed for another Saturday as the UCLA Freshman football team defeated San Diego State Frosh, 29-6.

Post-Game Consensus:

Kilmer Best, Weather Worst

By JEROME HALL

Take it from the entire Air Force Academy team: Bill Kilmer is a great football player.

Take it from UCLA coach Bill Barnes: Bill Kilmer is a tremendous football player.

And take it from the 21,914 in attendance at the Coliseum Saturday:

Bill Kilmer is the kind of ballplayer who is worth sitting in the rain to watch.

This was Kilmer's big chance to push his all-America campaign and he made the most of it. He ran since he went into the game, and passed for 175 yards in No. 6 on the list with two sideline and waved for some of the first two quarters of the fewer games played than blocking assistance. Then he 22-0 romp over the Air Force, those ahead of him.

Falcons and then retired Kilmer's 88-yard end sweep in his way. The Bruin block while the reserves wrapped it in the second period was "theers leveled them and he con-easiest run I ever took," he limned on.

Kilmer's total offense fig-commented. "You know, I At the five Kilmer stopped the day was 192 wasn't even running. I wasn't a chance at him committed The slippery tailback himself one way and Kilmer stopped twice during the long pivoted the other into the end run to wait for blockers. At zone.

It was just like the movies.

"IT WAS THE longest run I ever made anywhere," he admitted. He credited Jack Metcalf and Duane Wills, interior linemen, with the blocks that cleared the way.

Kilmer was called "the best all-around back in the country, as far as I can see" by Air Force QB Richie Mayo. In turn, the UCLA locker was filled with praise for Mayo.

"He's just great," lauded Kilmer. Mayo completed 20 of 40 passes for 194 yards under miserable playing conditions. He had four intercepted and a number of his throws were dropped.

UCLA COACH Barnes said he couldn't recall worse playing conditions in his more than 25 years in football. Rain fell all through the game.

But Air Force coach Ben Martin was unimpressed by our little rain storm. "Two weeks ago (against George Washington U.) we played in a snow storm and a 40-mile-an-hour wind," he said.

It was the third successive shutout victory for the Bruins. Not since 1938 has a UCLA team turned in a three-in-a-row blank.

"I thought we played a terrific game," chirped Barnes. "Probably as good as we've played all year. Remember, this is the same Air Force team that beat us 20-7 last year."

BARNES SINGLED out — besides Kilmer, whom he described as "absolutely brilliant" — his two wingbacks, Gene Gaines and Jim Johnson. "They played solid football games," he commented. To his praise list he added fullback Almo Thompson and Marv Luster.

The players voted the game ball to Luster, who made three fingertip catches of the muddy ball for 39 yards and intercepted one, returning it 11 yards.

Curiously, both team's passers said they were not bothered by the weather.

"It's more of a handicap to the receivers than to me," said Kilmer.

"As long as the officials keep the ball dry, it doesn't bother me," explained Mayo. "But it keeps the receivers from running their patterns."

MAYO COMPLETED his 300th pass in college competition during the third period, ranking him on a select list with only seven others in all the history of collegiate competition.

"He paid no attention to any 300 completions," said the Air Force coach. "And neither did I. Personal accomplishments never enter Richie's mind."

Mayo, who is studying to be a lieutenant, said "Yes, sir."

UCLA coach Deke Brackett pointed out that, despite the sloppy field, the Bruins did not lose the ball on a fumble. Which brought the conversation around to SC, the Bruin opponent next Saturday.

But that's another story. And there's a whole week to tell it.

Delay Gold Cup

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — After a four-hour wait for good weather conditions which failed to materialize, the start of the 53rd annual Gold Cup race on Lake Mead Saturday was postponed until today.

YALE ROUTS TIGERS TO CINCH IVY TIE

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — Quarterback Tom Singleton threw three touchdown passes and scored once himself Saturday in leading Yale to a 43-22 rout over Princeton that clinched a tie for the Ivy League football championship.

The Elis' scoring total was the highest against Princeton since 1931 and averaged a 50-14 Yale trouncing at the hands of the Tigers two seasons ago.

The victory assured the undefeated Elis of at least a tie for the Ivy League championship. A Yale win at Harvard or a Princeton defeat against Dartmouth would give the title to the Bulldogs.

The smooth quarterbacking of senior Singleton made the difference in the battle of the league's unbeaten. Three times, Singleton fired the ball into the waiting arms of his receivers for touchdown passes of 13, 43 and 37 yards.

Fernandez Stops Moyer in Fifth

NEW YORK (AP)—Hard-hitting Florentino Fernandez of Cuba made a successful step up to the middleweight class Saturday night by stopping Phil Moyer of Portland, Ore., in 50 seconds of the fifth round of their television bout at Madison Square Garden.

The referee ended the scheduled ten rounder after Moyer went down for the third time.

BUT THE fight-to-the-end Cadets salvaged a tie—the third 7-7 deadlock on Pitt's record this season—by moving 26 yards in five plays in the third period. The scoring honors went to fullback Al Rushatz of Allentown, Pa., one a one-yard off-lackle slant. Quarterback Tom Blanda, who attempted the final pass, was intercepted by a Bruin defender.

EASTERN BOWL BID LOOMS FOR SYRACUSE

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Heavy Syracuse pounded Colgate 46-6 Saturday on the running of Pete Brokaw and Ernie Davis and closed in on a bid to the Liberty or Gotham football bowls.

Syracuse, snapping a losing slump, scored on drives of 63 and 65 yards the first two times it got the ball and tallied five touchdowns in the second half.

Brokaw, a 190-pound junior scored three times on runs of 16 and 53 yards and a 16-yard pass from quarterback Dick Easterly. He gained 90 yards on five carries.

Bob Kelley Says—

Casey's Out in New AL Plans
MADISON, Wis.—Flying back here, I tried to figure out where Casey Stengel fits in the plans of Hank Greenberg's new American League club. From a pretty good source, I have been told he doesn't.

It is very easy for a reporter to tell an owner how to run a ball club. When you get right down to it, if I knew more about running the Dodgers than Walter O'Malley, for instance, then I would own the team.

If it is true that Stengel does not fit into the plans of the new American League club, I am pretty sure there's a good reason for it.

One might be that they want a younger man, feeling a building job has to be done. They want somebody to start at the bottom, and stick with the team. In Stengel's case, he would not be the answer. It is doubtful if Casey wants to manage many more years.

The obvious advantage to having Stengel as your pilot is . . . well, I guess it's sort of negative.

First of all, we can agree that Greenberg's club isn't exactly going to be battling the Yankees for the pennant the first couple of years. It will take a little time to develop.

After you lose a few games, who's better than Stengel to start rallying off to sports writers. By the time he's finished, they're writing about Casey—not the fact that you've lost three in a row.

Frankly, I don't believe Stengel could do any better with the club than a number of other managers around.

My choice for the job would be a younger man, who'll stay with you for a few years. Somebody on the mold of Bobby Bragan. But Bragan, of course, has already been picked off by the new Houston team.

You get the impression Greenberg has somebody definite in mind. It's almost a cinch, because Hank doesn't have an awful lot of time to get going, and he knows it.

I have the strange feeling that the new club will do well at the gate. They won't be sensational, like the Dodgers the past three years. But they'll do just fine.

People have asked me if I figure two baseball teams in town is too many. Will it result in financial havoc for all concerned?

I don't think two is too many. I believe two pro football clubs here is too many. Two basketball teams would be too many, etc.

But baseball, I believe, can have two of its teams supported.

After all, we had the Trojans and Bruins who did well for years.

We have two race tracks, who coin a few groceries for the stockholders.

Baseball is a strong lure to bring enough fans out for both teams to make money.

Mich. Blasts Indiana

By JERRY WYNN

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Mail to the victors' vaunt . . . Michigan 29, Indiana 7.

On a perfect sky-blue day in Big 10 football country, the Wolverines sent a crowd of 51,936 home happy with their anticipated triumph over the downtrodden Hoosiers.

But not all the fans left vast Michigan Stadium after the game. They remained to hear a command performance by the famed 170-man Michigan marching band, which struts and dances as smartly as Jon Arnett evades an enemy tackler.

In fact, this is the only campus where it is said that a slim piccolo played commands as much respect as a beefy linebacker.

Not that Michigan lacked for football players Saturday. Coach Bump Elliott used 56 in saddling Indiana with its seventh loss in eight games.

For the Wolverines, it was their fifth win against three defeats.

Michigan won the toss of the coin for the first time all season, and it proved a temporary bad omen. A 56-yard touchdown run by Hoosier Mike Lopa put the Wolverines behind, 7-0, in the first quarter and had local slant. Fourth-stringer John Kowalik plunged over from two yards out for the victor's final score in the fourth period.

Starting for Michigan was fleet halfback Rennie McRae who gained 67 yards in 12 carries. Indiana's only bright spot was the punting of Jake Olsavsky, who averaged 43.3 for eight tries. Both men were worth a couple of piccolo players apiece!

Michigan snapped back midway in the second quarter on a 31-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Dave Glin-ka to end Scott Maentz and added the two-point conversion on a pass from Glin-ka to Dennis Fitzpatrick to take an 8-7 halftime lead.

MSU Ekes Out 21-18 Win

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI)—Touchdown runs of 32, 51 and 74 yards by Michigan State turned into a 21-18 victory Saturday when Art Brandstatter kicked three extra points while Northwestern's Mike Stock missed on three conversion attempts.

Northwestern, aided by a pass interference penalty, nearly pulled the game out with a drive from its own 20-yard line. But the march ended on the Michigan State 2-yard line when a pass by Dick Thornlon soared over the Wildcat receivers in the end zone.

Northwestern blew hot and cold. In the first period the Wildcats moved to a 12-0 lead when Stock plunged over from the one for a touchdown and Larry Benz ran over from the eight for another.

But in the second half, Michigan State came to life. Ron Hatcher ran 32 yards for a touchdown on the fifth play of the third period and, the next time the Spartans had the ball, Gary Ballman broke loose 74 yards for a score on the third play from scrimmage.

Available Industrial Land in L. B. Checked

By GEORGE WEEKS (west corner of Spring Street and Orange Avenue.)

The city's new Economic Development Committee has begun work on two research projects which its members hope will provide a solid basis for attracting new industry and business to Long Beach.

First is an inventory of unused land possibly available for industrial development.

City officials last week gave the advisory group complete maps of such parcels owned by three divisions of the municipal government—general city, Harbor and Water.

Chairman Darrell Neighbors of the committee said the material will be referred to a subcommittee headed by Victor H. Mingers for recommendations as to future uses.

AN ANALYSIS of privately owned land also regarded as potential industrial or business sites will be undertaken soon, Neighbors reported.

The report covering general city land, prepared by City Manager Sam E. Vickers, showed sites not already under lease in the Municipal Airport area: surplus property along the east side of the Long Beach Freeway between Pacific Coast Highway and Anaheim Street, and limited areas farther south in the vicinity of the Freeway Terminus.

The terminus properties, however, are clouded by problems of access and also uncertainties as to the future locations of traffic arteries, Vickers noted.

General Manager Brennan S. Thomas of the Water Dept. listed a seven-acre parcel on the west side of Redondo Avenue, south of Spring Street, 40 acres south of Spring Street between Orange and California Avenues and about five acres at the north-

A SECOND STUDY under way at the same time covers city ordinances relating to building and kindred subjects—particularly those where restrictions now in force may be hampering industrial and business expansion.

Everet Houser, an attorney which require that uses be limited to commerce, navigation and fishery.

Two additional parcels purchased for port and cargo terminal development could possibly be used in part, he said, although large portions of them are subject to filling and reconstruction plans.

An additional report from Long Beach Unified School District listed sites at Hillport and Webster Avenue and at 36th Street and Linden Avenue, both purchased for educational purposes, and another between Centralia Street and Arbor Road east of the Bancroft School site. The latter is for sale to semi-public organizations.

Chairman Neighbors announced that the committee will continue to meet weekly on Wednesday afternoons. Last week's session was an inspection tour of the Municipal Airport, where the group was accompanied by Paul Deats, chairman of the Air District Advisory Committee, and Thomas Rafferty, head of the Aeronautics Dept.

Other members of the Economic Development Committee are Nelson McCook Jr., vice chairman, Gene Curtis, Wayne J. Hull, Charles P. Morgan, William Sorenson and Charles C. Weidlein.

Concern Is Voiced Over Out-of-State Land Sales

Offering of out-of-state subdivision lots to California residents is causing some concern to this state real estate officials, W. A. Savage, real estate commissioner, reported to Gov. Edmund G. Brown last week.

"The extent of the problem stemming from the types of property sometimes involved may be indicated by a direct quotation from a factual report on one such subdivision," said the commissioner.

"THE REPORT READ: There is no possibility in the foreseeable future of using the land for residential purposes. Not only is the land not usable at this time, but ... after it has been sold to hundreds or thousands of purchasers, the possibility of developing the land, with such varied ownership, actually diminishes as the number of owners increases."

The commissioner quoted one out-of-state authority as saying: "Unfortunately, we have little or no control over operators and owners of lands being offered on this basis."

New treasurer named by the board of directors is D. W. Russell.

First Family Occupies Big Mesa Del Mar Home

A combination of coincidence, sentiment and logic played a key role in the decision of the Capt. John Sullivan family to become the first owners to occupy a new home in the Macco-built Mesa del Mar residential community in Costa Mesa.

The Sullivan family became the first residents of the new community last week when they moved into their just-completed home less than a week before Capt. Sullivan's departure for Japan where he has been ordered for duty with the 1st Marine Wing. Mrs. Patricia Sullivan and their two daughters are remaining here during his final tour of duty prior to retirement from active service next year.

THE SULLIVANS were one of the first families to visit Mesa del Mar early this spring when plans were still on the drawing board. During their first visit, coincidence entered the scene when they met a familiar face in the person of Chuck Sampson, construction foreman, who was a childhood neighbor of Mrs. Sullivan. Far East, the developers rushed the completion of their home so the family could move in before he left.

THE HUGE Mesa del Mar development, when completed, will include more than 1,000 homes, 102 of which are now nearing completion.

Distinctive features of the homes include an interesting variety of exterior styles and floor plans with three or four bedrooms, two baths, family or dining room and a host of features providing everything needed for comfortable family living except furnishings.

Prices range from $18,900 to $20,200, according to McFarland & Mallocks, sales agents. Excellent financing terms are offered with down payments as low as $395 plus costs, and moderate monthly payments on 25-year low-interest loans on the balance.

Furnished model homes are open daily at the Mesa del Mar entrance on the corner of Newport Blvd. and Bristol St. in Costa Mesa.

This, coupled with her husband's military career, made Mesa del Mar a logical place for a home.

Because of Capt. Sullivan's departure for Japan where he has been ordered for duty with the 1st Marine Wing, Mrs. Patricia Sullivan and their two daughters are remaining here during his final tour of duty prior to retirement from active service next year.

Barbara Moss, Long Beach Realtor, and member of the firm of Steele & Moss Enterprises, will serve as a member of the board of governors on the three-day panels, being sponsored by the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, of which she is vice president. These broker roundtables will be held in conjunction with the national convention in Dallas Nov. 11 to 17.

MESA DEL MAR STUDENTS

Marine Capt. John Sullivan and his family became the first family to occupy a new home in Mesa del Mar last week when they moved into the new $25-million-dollar residential community in Costa Mesa. Completion of their home was rushed by Macco Corp., the developers, so they could move in prior to Capt. Sullivan's departure for a year's tour of duty in Japan with the 1st Marine Wing. Mrs. Sullivan and daughters Sandy, 11, and Cindy, 10, will remain in their new home during the captain's absence.

Nation's Superhighway System Now Is One-Fifth Completed

By United Press International

This nation's 41,000-mile Interstate Superhighway System, inaugurated four years ago, is more than one-fifth completed, according to the latest figures available from the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads.

Actually, the bureau said, 9,107 miles of Interstate highways are now in use. They consist of 3,693 miles built to 1975 traffic standards, 3,140 miles that are adequate now but will need improvement to reach 1975 expectations, and 2,274 miles of toll expressways incorporated into the Interstate system.

Conventional primary, secondary and urban highways that during the first four years of the program have received federal aid also have years, the federal government experienced a tremendous spending spree during the same period. ## Sound Construction Shown During Rains

Recent rains, instead of slowing sales at Imperial Estates No. 25 in the north Long Beach-south Norwalk area, impressed buyers with the importance of the "high and dry" raised foundations incorporated in the construction, Frank Chandler of Key Land Co., sales agents, reports.

"All of the 'one price' residences in this new Imperial Estates community are constructed with raised foundations on concrete piers and hardwood floors with sub-flooring," Chandler explained.

Full price, no matter what the buyer's choice of exterior design (there are 15 from which to choose), flexible plan or homesite, is just $15,750.

Veterans may purchase on VA loans with terms of nothing down except im-pounds and costs, and monthly payments of $87.18 principal and interest. For "every-one," Chandler said, there is FHA financing.

IMPERIAL'S "1961 Golden Crown Series" of larger homes, despite the addition of many luxury and convenience features, boast one low price.

Individual Savings Invested in Home Mortgages

By EDWARD COWAN
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Last year Americans added a record $13.1 billion to the mortgages they owed on one-to-four family non-farm houses. Where did these billions of dollars come from?

In great part, from individuals' savings. Few individuals, however, invested directly in mortgages. Most put their money away in the form of thrift deposits and life insurance premiums.

Banks, savings associations and insurance companies—the major suppliers of mortgage money operate. Writing diaries—took in billions of dollars and put them into mortgages.

THESE THREE TYPES of institutions held $121.9 billion of the $148 billion of mortgage debt outstanding on non-farm properties at the end of 1959.

The balance was held by individuals, mortgages companies, credit unions, fraternal groups, pension funds and a sprinkling of other investors.

Two government housing experts have described how the major suppliers of mortgage money operate. Writing in the Commerce Department's monthly construction review, Henry B. Schecther and Milton B. Davies give the following picture of the home loan market as of the end of 1959:

THE NATION'S 6,200 savings and loan associations pour more dollars into the market than any other single group. They held $52 billion of non-farm home mortgages, equal to 33 per cent of the $148 billion outstanding, or 82 per cent of their own assets.

Savings associations mostly make conventional loans—those neither insured by the Federal Housing Administration nor guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. About 80 per cent of the associations' mortgage values were in conventionals with only 14 per cent VA and 6 per cent FHA.

Life insurance companies ranked second in holdings of home loans with $27.1 billion, or 18 per cent of the total. Their mortgages were only 24 per cent of their assets, reflecting the fact that these companies go in heavily for other types of investments.

PERHAPS ONLY 100 of the 1,400 life insurance companies engage in mortgage lending on a nationwide scale. Like many lenders, most prefer to invest their money close to home, where they have better information on business conditions and people.

The large companies operating nationwide may get around the problem of not knowing local conditions and borrowers by buying their mortgages from a correspondent, probably a mortgage company.

ONE APARTMENT—COMING UP

Construction goes on in Moscow all the time, even through the bitterly cold winter. Here a prefabricated wall is lowered into place. Sometimes prefabricated rooms—part of the plumbing already attached—are fitted in.—(AP.)

Russia Is Rushing Apartments But Construction Is Faulty

By PRESTON GROVER
MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union has gone on such a building spree to get its population into acceptable living quarters that apartment houses are sprouting like mushrooms.

Not all the building is good. Some of it is well nigh unacceptable even by Soviet standards.

In Moscow new blocks of 60 apartments are being completed at the rate of one a day, said V. Lagutenko, chief engineer of the Moscow Department of Architecture and Planning.

But in the same breath he said some of the new blocks leaked water through the roof and sound through the walls. There have been some improvements.

The seven-year plan for Moscow is to have 700,000 new flats by 1965. This city is setting the pace for other cities in developing streamline production, but Leningrad isn't far behind. Everywhere else it is dragging.

THE CONSTRUCTION METHODS are more fascinating than the apartments. In Moscow whole rooms prefabricated from reinforced concrete are hoisted into place all in a piece. But most of the rooms go into place one wall at a time.

Leningrad has gone one better. There the 10 main supporting pillars of a block of flats were erected. On top of each was mounted a powerful hydraulic jack. Four floors and a roof, all prefabricated, were laid out on the ground between the uprights. The jacks hoisted them into position, the roof first, then the successive floors. When it was finished, helicopters came along and lifted the big jacks off the top of the supporting pillars. Walls were installed next.

THE CONSTRUCTION is not good by western standards.

The owner of one Moscow flat visited moved a dressing table against a partition and a corner of it showed up through the wall in the next room.

But speed is the thing, because housing is badly needed. Many cities were smashed during the war. Housing was very short, even before the war, and cities here are growing crazily fast.

The country was supposed to build 122 plants during 1959-60 for prefabricating walls, pillars and ceilings. Instead only 20 were built during 1959 and the first half of 1960.

While the walls are going up, the interior finish is lacking. Such things as insulation, wallpaper and a host of material for converting apartment skeletons into actual living quarters are missing.

AMONG THE WORST bottlenecks is furniture. Factories have gone right on in their old slow way building big furniture of a style fashionable in czarist times. Now, says Kucherenko, such furniture is too big for these little flats.

Some acceptable furniture has been shown in exhibits, he said, but none of it is being mass produced.

The fast building has far outrun city planning. Sewers, water mains and electricity are just beginning to catch up with some of the building plans.

PRACTICALLY everybody will have to live in apartment houses. Even in the suburbs private houses will be a rarity. They take too much space, cost too much and run up the cost of sewer and road connections.

One of the great agonies of suburban life afflicts Moscow just as New York. It takes an hour or more to get into the city.

Photo Industry Told to Halt Printing of Phony Price Tag

By ALBERT W. MCCOLLOUGH
NEW YORK (UPI)—The photo industry is seething behind the scenes with controversy over a subject that has almost nothing to do with taking good pictures but that may affect the advertised prices of cameras.

The question is that of list prices, as set or "suggested" by the manufacturer, and whether these prices mean anything or whether they are merely bait to lure the consumer into thinking he is getting a bargain if he pays less than list.

If a camera is priced at $100, for example, and actually sells for $100 in the vast majority of shops, then the buyer is getting a true bargain if he can buy the camera for $79.50 as result of a sale or some other fortunate circumstance. But if the $100 price tag is a phony, printed by the maker with little or no expectation that the camera will ever sell for that amount, and if dealers generally advertise and sell the camera for $79.50 day in and day out, then the lower price is no bargain no matter what the supposed "list" price may be.

A CRACKDOWN on the latter practice is planned by the Federal Trade Commission, over the protests of some parts of the industry.

For three or four months the FTC has been "educating" the photographic industry and other industries, too, on "fictitious prices" against "fictitious prices," and has been urging voluntary compliance with the rules.

Now the "educational" processes have been completed and time is running out," according to Paul A. Jamarik, assistant to the director of the FTC's bureau of consultation.

The agency has begun to examine specific cases with an eye to formal enforcement, Jamarik reports, and any photographic dealer or manufacturer found guilty of violating the rules against advertising false comparative prices will be slapped with a cease and desist order.

AMONG OBJECTORS to the FTC plans are the Photographic Manufacturers & Distributors Association, Inc., the New York Guild of Photographic Dealers, which is a local branch of the Master Photo Dealers and Finishers Association, and the National Association of Photographic Manufacturers.

Some officials of these groups contend that enforcement of the FTC price rules would compel elimination of all comparative or list prices from national and interstate photo advertising.

"We think this would only add to the confusion," said a spokesman for Kameny Associates, a public relations agency which handles a large number of photographic accounts. "Any move to eliminate the manufacturers list price would be detrimental to the consumer. It is directly opposite to the rule imposed on the automobile industry, for example, where specific posting of factory prices and other costs that make up the retail price of a car is required."

HOWEVER, JAMARIK REPORTS the FTC "has no desire to declare the use of list prices in advertising illegal per se. Whenever they represent the usual and customary selling prices, the commission could not prohibit their use and does not desire to do so. The use of fictitious prices in advertising or other promotional literature, however, is illegal. It diverts business unfairly from the honest competitor. And it deceives the purchasing public because the 'saving' is purely illusory and non-existent. The commission is determined to see that fictitious prices are eliminated from future advertising."

Indications are that at least some members of the photo industry will continue to contend that their price advertising has been and is completely fair and honest. They believe the FTC course is unwise and will attempt to force the commission to try to prove that their policies are wrong.

The photographic industry is highly competitive and, like every other industry, contains a vast majority of honest businessmen and a few shady characters interested only in the fast buck.

If the present controversy helps get these few back into line, everyone else, on whichever side of the showcase he stands, may be thankful.

Yacht Marina Firm in Major Expansion

Glas-Dock, Inc., builders of yacht marinas, has moved to 1340 West 7th St., Long Beach. The new plant with its own dockside facilities and large overhead electric marine railway consists of three buildings and a storage and assembly yard area covering nearly two and a half acres. One of the buildings houses both the general offices and a large inside showroom where various colored full size floats and docks are displayed.

Many special pieces of equipment have been installed in the new plant to facilitate the manufacture and testing of fiberglass pontoons. Among them, are two large water-tight exhaust paint spray booths. For inspecting and checking pontoons under water, an air operated test tank has been installed which develops more than 3,000 pounds of pressure.

Glas-Dock is finishing two local jobs, rebuilding of the recently damaged Pacific Yacht Landing in Wilmington and completion of the new 360-slip Southwind Marina on Cerritos Channel.

Report Shows Industry Growth

By TRAILER TOM
The ninth annual report on the mobile homes industry, issued by the Mobile Homes Manufacturers' Assn., reveals the tremendous progress of this section of American business.

TODAY, MORE THAN 4,050,000 people live in an estimated 1,400,000 mobile homes—some of them because of job requirements, some because of economy, but most of them because they prefer mobile homes to any other type of housing.

Although sizes range from 30 to 70 feet in length, the average mobile home is 50 feet long and 10 feet wide and sells completely furnished for $5,000. According to recent surveys, the average mobile home owner stays 20 months and more in one park. Occupations of owners are: skilled workers, 37 per cent; military personnel, 20 per cent; professional people, 18 per cent; retired, 10 per cent; students, 3 per cent; and others, 12 per cent. About 4 per cent of all mobile homes sold are put to special use, such as field offices, libraries, and branch banks.

There are the field construction workers—at first, the men building rural atomic energy plants and today, the vast army of men building America's system of tollways and express highways.

YOUNG MARRIED couples found mobile living the answer for young would-be executives who are trained by big business in its different branches throughout our country.

Many people are also using mobile homes for weekend homes; they are found in Florida, Texas, California and Arizona to mention a few states, and resort areas in luxury parks.

The increasing number of our retired people is a part of the industry growth story.

The mobile home and travel trailer industry, a billion dollar business, looks to the future with justified confidence as it continues to expand. During the last five years, sales have nearly doubled. During 1954, an estimated 76,000 units were sold with retail sales up to $325,000,000; statistics for 1959 indicate retail sales of 162,000 units with a total dollar volume of $675,500,000. Broken down further, the 1959 production consists of 120,000 mobile homes with sales of $600,000,000 and 42,000 travel trailers totaling $75,500,000.

DURING 1954, the average mobile home sold for $4,300 and was 37 feet long and 8 feet wide, but 25% of units manufactured were 40 feet or longer. Some 2,000,000 people were living in mobile homes, and it was becoming evident that many of the existing 700,000 mobile homes "gathered little road dust or mileage." Surveys showed that an increasing number of mobile homes were moved only from the manufacturers' to the dealers' lots and from there to mobile home parks where they stayed until the owner traded them in for new and larger units.

At that time mobile home parks numbered about 11,000, an increase of 8,000 parks since the end of World War II. The early trailer "camps" with their small lots were replaced with trailer "parks" with larger spaces in order to keep up with the advancement of the mobile home, which now had sanitary facilities and therefore needed parks with underground water and sewer pipes. Monthly rentals for a space ranged from $15 to $60 in the elaborate parks, but there was an acute shortage of good mobile home parks. With the tremendous growth of the industry and units not only longer but also wider, this shortage still exists in 1960 although parks have increased to 14,000.

"PROMOTE PARKS for Progress" is the 1960 theme for MHMA. The association has statistics to show investors that parks properly designed, engineered, managed, and financed, are profitable business enterprises.

Britons Buy Horses Now on $1 Down

LONDON (AP) — That old custom of a dollar down and a dollar a week will buy a horse now. People are doing it throughout rural England. One dealer in Essex peddled 10 horses on credit within a few days.

William Foyle of Wickford advertises:

"Pay as you ride. Hunters, hacks and children's ponies. Any horse taken in part exchange. All horses fully warranted."

A young lady was interested in a chestnut mare offered at 65 pounds ($182). She had a shetland pony. Foyle swept into action like the star salesman on a used car lot:

"THIRTY POUNDS for the pony, against the purchase price of 65 pounds."

The sale was made with the pony as down payment.

In came a tractor driver who liked a gleaming palomino priced at 120 pounds ($336). The customer, Frank Down of Hullbridge, made his deal—one-third down, the rest over 18 months. He commented:

Strolling Along Candy Cane Lane

Women

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, NOV. 13, 1949 SECTION W

Bazaar Promises to Please Shoppers

Looking for something unusual in Christmas decorations or for a gift with a personal touch?

St. Luke's "Candy Cane Lane" Friday and Saturday may have just the answer. This is the time of year for church bazaars and St. Luke's, which is one of the oldest, is typical of such events.

From festive candles and Raggedy Ann dolls to such gourmet "goodies" as chutney, relish, fruitcakes, pies and candy, the bazaar offers the harassed holiday shopper lots to choose from.

IT IS A fun event too. Friday booths will open at 1 p. m. and from 2 to 4 p. m. an Old English Tea will be served in a festive red and white yuletide setting. In the evening from 6:30 to 7:30 "Andy's Roast Beef Dinner" will be on the menu.

Door prizes, including a portrait painted to order by Cora Roberts (Mrs. A. J. Danstrom), will be awarded at the close of the tea. Mrs. O. P. Roemer is responsible for arrangements for the tea and Mrs. L. V. Cassaday for donation tickets. Mrs. William Kummer is chairman of the dinner.

High style fashions will be modeled during the luncheon at 12:30 Saturday with bazaar booths opening at 11 a. m. Mrs. LeRoy Bonhall is in charge of the luncheon which will feature Christmas table decorations of candy canes and pine and Mrs. Jerome Peterson has planned the fashion event.

Models will be Mes. William Wallace, Robert Brown, John Arnold, Doris Richards and Miss Emily Wiltse. Mrs. H. E. Ridings Sr. is responsible for luncheon reservations.

A COMMITTEE of 10 church women headed the bazaar work this year. They were Mes. David Seekins, general advisor; John Cottrell, merchandise; Herbert Wickstrom, gourmet corner; Frende Combs, Christmas decorations; William Morgan and Freeland Putnam, gifts; Ormond Merritt and John Nettleman, invitations; Harry McCord, decorations; Robert Snyder Jr., telephoning; and Clarence Knox, treasurer. Mrs. Herbert Fielding is president of Women of St. Luke's.

Other items to be sold at the bazaar, which was first started under the name of "International Fair" in 1939, include wreaths, centerpieces, red felt Santas, dolls with hand-made clothes, small flower arrangements and a wide range of colorful aprons and kitchen overalls.

Holiday Salon Thursday at VCC

The Edna Lillich Davidson Salon of Books, Plays and Music Reviews will open its third season Thursday at 11:30 a. m. in Virginia Country Club. After a social half-hour, luncheon will be served promptly at noon.

Books to be discussed are "Diamond Head," Peter Gilman; "The Dean's Watch," Elizabeth Goudge; "A Treasury of American Heritage," "The Public Years," Bernard Baruch; "The Sabres of Paradise," Leslie Blanch; "Born Free," Joy Adamson; "With Love," Maurice Chevalier; "Go to Heaven," Fulton Sheen; and "The Day Christ Was Born," Jim Bishop.

Paul Ashton Cox, baritone, and Leslie Sommerville, pianist, will entertain with selections from "The Gershwin Songbook." Mrs. Davidson will conclude the program with a special Christmas reading.

JUST SUCH A LOVELY LIKENESS as this portrait of artist's granddaughter will be offered as door award at St. Luke's "Candy Cane Lane" bazaar Friday following Old English Tea from 2 to 4 p. m. Mrs. William Kummer, president of Women of St. Luke's, left, and Mrs. L. V. Cassaday, tea ticket chairman, admire painting as they chat with artist Cora Roberts (Mrs. A. J. Danstrom), who will paint subject of winner's choice. Bazaar is planned from 1 to 7:30 p. m. Friday and 11 a. m. to 3 p. m. Saturday. Roast beef dinner and fashion show are among scheduled events.—(Color photo by Staff Photographer Roger Coar.)

California Forecast: Stripes, No-Backs, Tunics, Pleats

Fashion Ed to Cover Showings

Fashion editors from hither and yonville are arriving in Beverly Hills today to see what California fashion designers have "in store" for milady come spring and summer.

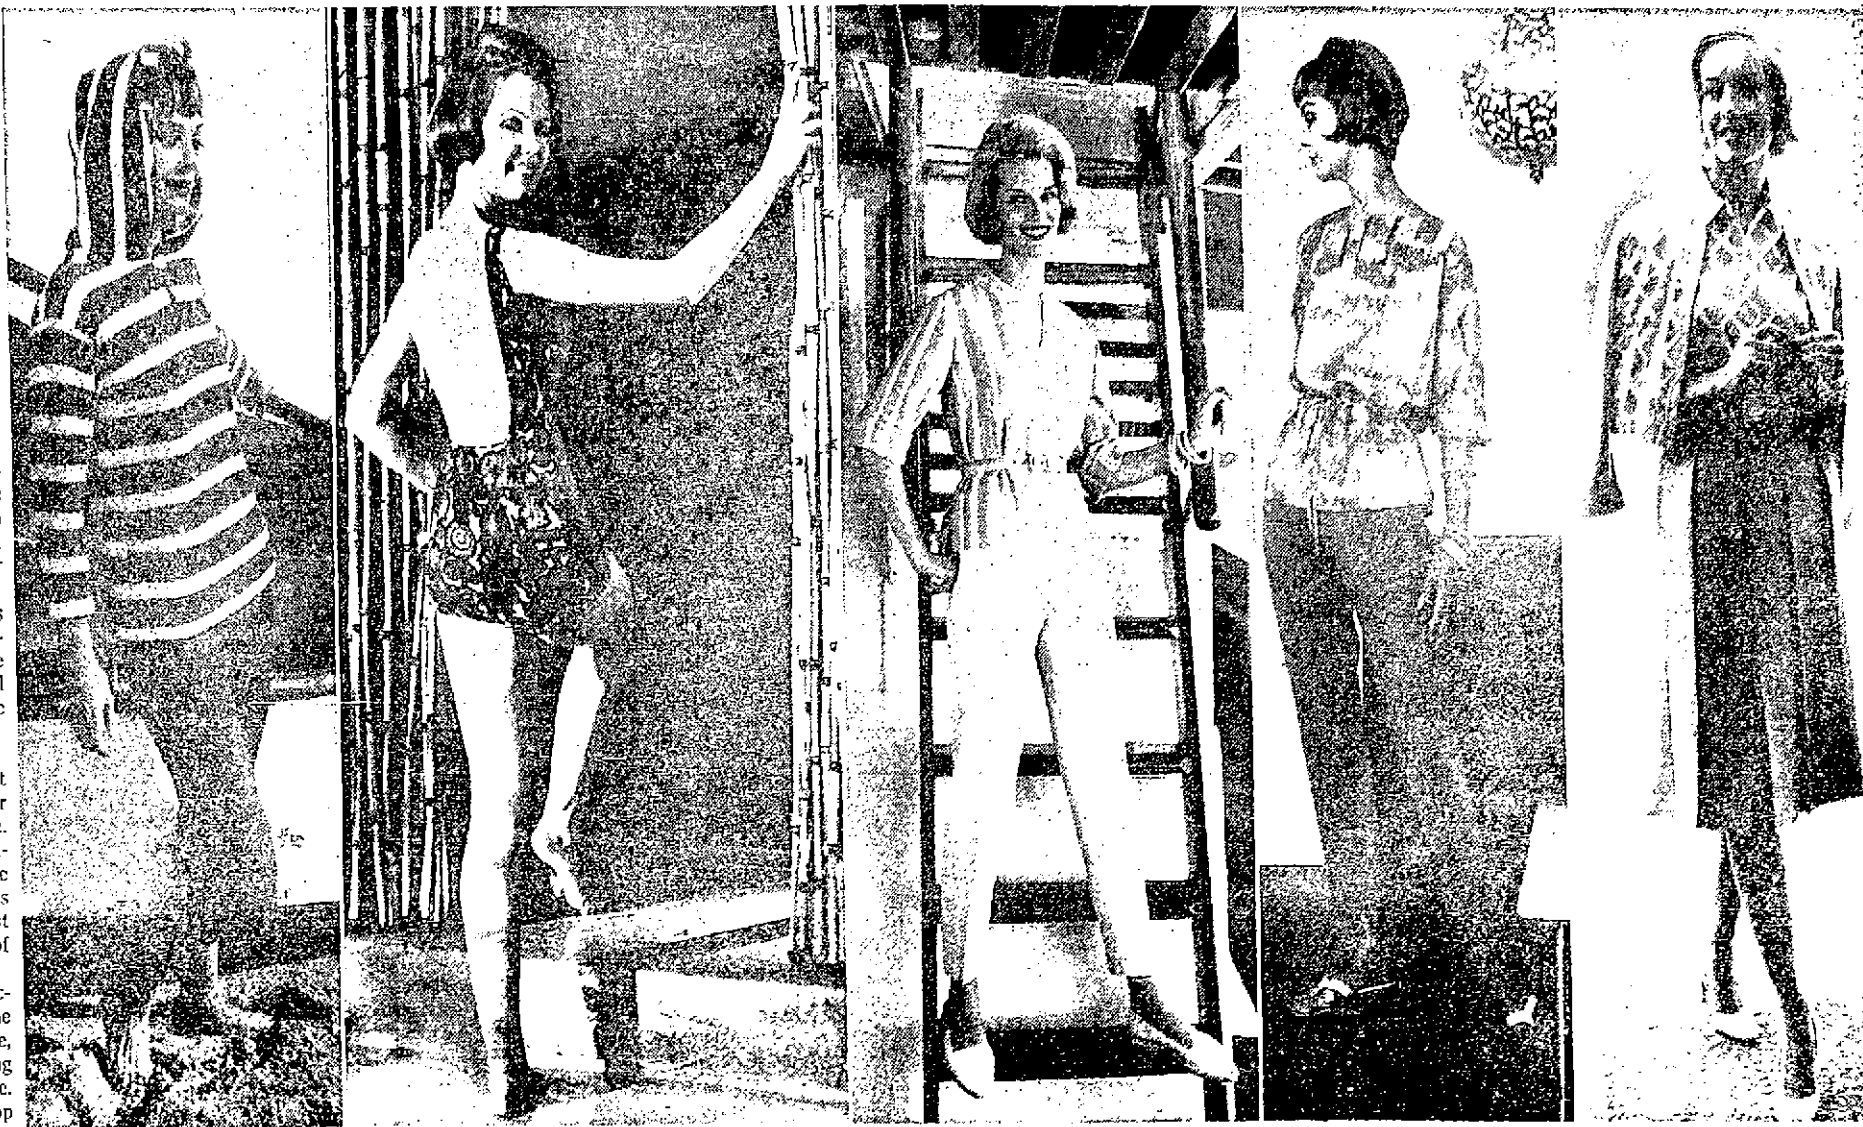

In daily wire stories Monday through Sunday, Mary Ellis, fashion editor for the Independent Press-Telegram, will report on trends in resort and spring wear to be previewed by California Fashion Creators in their tenth annual Press Week.

Some 40 of California's top fashion moguls will parade their "wears" for the nation's press in special week-long showings at the Beverly Wilshire.

RUMORS HAVE it that the "California Look" for 1961 will be an exciting one. And the country is watching with interest—for more and more California is emerging as a foremost trend-setter in the world of fashion.

Advance releases and pictures tell us some of the trends. Stripes, for instance, are everywhere—ranging from pin size to barber pole. Loose overblouses are top fashion news... also pleats.

But the full story is yet to come. Watch the women's pages for on-the-scene, ramp-side reports throughout this week.

FASHION PREVIEW—Stripes run through all California resort-spring collections. This hooded style is by White Stag... Down in back is the trend for the coming swimsuit season, says trend-setting Cole of California, who squares off the contour for an even suntan... Tunics, belted or not, are tops in fashion news. The striped version is by Ardee Sportswear; the printed style, White Stag... Pleats march into spring in a variety of sizes. Here Alex Colman tops a box-pleated skirt with matching blouse and cardigan. These are new trends being previewed at California Press Week showings.

I. P.T. Fashion Editor

American women these days are accused of wearing the pants in the family. Not only that, they're seen wearing them to the supermarket, on the golf course, at football games, in swanky dress shops, at the beauty shop and for afternoon hen parties.

In fact, California designer Alex Colman believes the slack-happy modern housewife has a wider selection of pants in her wardrobe than hubby does.

Another West Coast designer, glamorous Stephanie Koret, estimates that practically every woman from 2 to 92 has some version of shorts or slacks in her wardrobe. (She personally has three dozen pairs.)

AND HOW do local men feel about this latest infiltration into another one-time male domain?

Well, you might say they view the trend with interest—before and after. At least that's our conclusion after surveying the situation among members of the local girl-watchers' society.

"I enjoy looking at a pretty girl no matter what she's wearing," said one local male who asked not to be named.

Dick Browning, automobile retailer, thinks some women should wear slacks—some shouldn't.

"It depends on the woman," says he. "I don't think great big fat gals should wear shorts or slacks any time—for obvious reasons."

DO MEN feel that women in pants are less feminine than women in dresses?

"That depends on the woman, too," believes Mr. Browning. "Also on her choice of slacks and whether or not the apparel is well tailored. Of course, some really feminine gals look feminine in anything. They can't avoid it."

Howard "Jack" Jackson, marine accessories wholesale distributor doesn't agree—at least in most cases. "I think women look less feminine in pants or shorts. They certainly are less glamorous," says he. "Of course, I have no objection to pants for recreational activities, especially if the garb is consistent with the sport the lady is pursuing."

TED KREC, public relations man for KTTV television station and a former I. P.T. staffer, takes a much dimmer view of women in slacks.

"I don't think they should wear slacks on the street at any time," says he with determination. "I don't think they should wear them to the supermarket, to the beauty shop or to the dime store."

And he has many reasons for his attitude. "For one thing, I think women are much less feminine in slacks. They have a cheapening effect."

He chalks the pants mania up to laziness.

"From Jackie Kennedy on down, it's just a bunch of laziness," says Krec, whose wife is staff member for a local modeling school.

"It's just easier for a woman to slip on a pair of slacks to run here and there. We're supposed to excuse them because they're women."

"But just think how any member of the feminine sex would hoot and holler if hubby should suddenly blossom forth in a skirt!"

AND WHAT about the psychological significance of the pants craze? Is it another combat area in the battle of the sexes?

Prof. Russell Orpet, educational psychologist at Long Beach State College, believes it's more a part of the general trend toward more casual living than a deep-seated psychological motivation.

"I think the main reason women wear slacks is that they find them more practical for some type of activities. It's all part of a nationwide trend to more comfort and more freedom."

THIS IDEA is seconded by John Hersey, fashion coordinator for a local department store, who believes a country's way of life is reflected in its mode of dress.

He predicts the new trend toward culottes will put more women in pants come spring and summer.

Just back from New York to view next season's fashions, he notes that most suit and dress houses are showing some type of pants suits artfully camouflaged with pleats or a section of wrap-around skirt to lend femininity.

About if and where a woman should wear pants, he has this to say:

"If pants are properly tailored and the lady has a figure for them, I think they're fine in their place—like a football game or at a friend's house. But not downtown."

So there you are gals. That's the way our pants survey stacks up. The male opinion, generally, seems to depend on how well YOU stack up in pants.

Little Things DO Count

L.P.T. Staff Reporter

It is the little things that count. At least when it comes to comfort, convenience and decoration, little things make a lot of difference. The following list includes a number of small items that are far more useful than their size . . . and price . . . would indicate.

Under $1

Those who look ahead won't leave address books behind. Purchase of a snappy address file key-ring combination, keeps names and numbers within reach and not at home in desk drawer. Small file cards in protective cover fan-out for easy reading.

A key of a different sort is the one to earring comfort. Prongs of key fit on back of clip-on earrings. One twist and earring is custom fit to wearer. Key comes on card with four slide-on foam rubber earring cushions, adding up to small package of big comfort.

Baubles, such as beads, and bracelets, are necessary travel companions. They dress up the most practical ensembles. Tucked in a corner of a suitcase however, they can spell trouble. They tangle with each other, are lost, or worse still, snag that last pair of hose. A lightweight, inexpensive jewel case keeps them in their place and easy to get at. Attractive cases are quilted and come in light blue and deep rose.

Another key-ring combination includes key to losing weight, along with those to office, home and car. Handy, or not so handy according to one's appetite, attached calorie counter makes dining out no excuse for not dieting. A flick of dial and news of calorie intake is there for the reading.

Under $2

Versatility is second nature to new arrival in corn popper line. The popular popper is available in a large range of pastel colors. It can be used to warm rolls, heat cereals and baby bottles or may be plugged in at kitchen counter for table soup or cream sauce mixing. It's bound to be as handy for mom as fun for the youngsters.

A queenly, jewel adorned, golden pin cushion is a little but useful item for vanity counter display. For anyone who sews or repairs rips and tears, the pin cushion makes a thoughtful gift. Straight pins and safety pins along with different sized needles can be pinned in cushion. A measuring tape pulls out from underneath for convenient inch, foot and yard estimates.

Under $5

A children's plate, cup and saucer set from Denmark will be warmly received at the baby shower. Bright, gay colors and charming stylized pictures make stand-by shower present an unusual gift. The cleverly decorated cup and plate is well designed and of the finest china.

Under $10

Young couples on a budget will particularly appreciate the latest in inexpensive stainless steel table wear. Plain but well designed the boxed service for eight includes 50 pieces and will blend in with informal or formal china wear. As with all stainless steel, knives, forks and spoons are easy to keep bright and shining with no polishing needed.

Cats by Lisa Larson are just that. The charming figures are purely decorative and fit into a modern setting. In tabby colors they are made of a glazed ceramic material that gives appearance of stone wear. Imported from their home in Gustavberg, Sweden, they are typical of beautiful art objects being made in the Scandinavian countries.

For additional information about the items mentioned and the stores where they may be purchased, telephone The Independent, Press-Telegram, HE 5-1161, Ext. 348.

Philharmonic Season Opens in L.B. Nov. 20

Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra will play the first concert in its current four-program series in Long Beach next Sunday at 8:30 p.m. in the Concert Hall of Municipal Auditorium, with Georg Solti conducting.

Michael Rabin

Beach next Sunday at 8:30 p.m. in the Concert Hall of Municipal Auditorium, with Georg Solti conducting.

Violinist Michael Rabin will play "Concerto for Violin and Orchestra, Op. 78, No. 2" by Paul Creston. The concerto was commissioned by Rabin in 1959 when he was one of ten top American artists to win a Ford Foundation grant which permitted him to select a composer to write for him.

A native New Yorker, Rabin started piano lessons at the age of five. His father is a violinist with the New York Philharmonic and his mother is a pianist. When he was seven, Rabin began studying with Ivan Galamian of the Juilliard and Curtis faculties and in 1951, when he was fourteen, he played a number of concerts with the New York Philharmonic.

RABIN's past season's schedule included his eighth transcontinental North American tour, his fourth extensive European tour and his second tour of Israel.

The soloist also will play "Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso, Op. 28" by Saint-Saens. Other numbers on Sunday's program will be Haydn's "Symphony in D Minor, No. 104" and Bartok's "The Miraculous Mandarin."

SOLTI, a Hungarian, is Los Angeles Philharmonic's seventh permanent conductor and musical director since the orchestra was founded in 1919. He first appeared in the United States in 1953 with the San Francisco Opera and his conducting of "Electra" is still remembered as one of the most exciting opera performances ever given in Los Angeles.

Solti has led the symphony orchestras of Chicago, London, St. Louis, Mexico City, New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, San Francisco and Los Angeles. He will make his debut at the Metropolitan Opera this season.

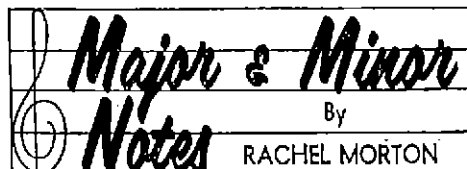

WEDNESDAY at 10:15 a.m. Owen W. Brady will discuss the concert program at a salon symphony preview for members of Long Beach Auxiliary of the Southern California Symphony Association in Assistance League Clubhouse. Brady is music director and teacher at Harvard School in North Hollywood; is organist and choir director at St. John's Episcopal Church, Los Angeles; and is organist and music director of Westwood Temple in West Los Angeles. A graduate of Juilliard School of Music, he has worked with Roger Wagner and Robert Shaw, has appeared on the Ojai Concert Series and Monday Evening Concert Series, and played the organ for the film, "Song Without End."

Other concert dates and conductors for the Philharmonic series here are Jan. 11, Walter Hendle; Feb. 5, Igo Markevitch; March 11, Arturo Basile with pianist Philippe Entremont, soloist. Season tickets are available at Humphrey's Music Company, 130 Pine Ave. or from Mrs. H. G. Randall, 2021 Pine Ave. and Mrs. T. J. Russell, 33 The Colonnade.

IN COMIC BALLET

Alexander Grant dances the role of Alain, the rich farmer's son, in "La Fille Mal Gardee" (The Badly Chaperoned Daughter), to be seen during the Royal Ballet's run of 11 performances at Shrine Auditorium. Opening production Nov. 18 by the famed English company will be "Sleeping Beauty"; others are "Giselle," "Ondine" and "Swan Lake."

The sudden death the other day of the world-famous conductor, Dimitri Mitropoulos, in Rome, shocked the entire musical world. Like that other world-renowned conductor, Eduard van Beinum, he died while conducting an orchestra rehearsal.

Mitropoulos, 64, was a controversial figure among musicians, but when one knows his background, his eccentricities are more understandable. Born in Athens on Feb. 18, 1896, he came from a deeply religious family and had two uncles who were monks in the Greek Orthodox church.

His father wanted to become a priest, but instead he devoted his life to his family and to good works. Actually, he gave his life for his fellow man. Two million Greeks fled Asia Minor in 1921 by order of the Turks. Aiding and comforting these refugees put him in prison where he died of the plague. All of this greatly influenced the young Dimitri and he spent days and nights at the monastery sleeping on the floor and eating the black bread and thick soup of the hermits.

LOVE OF music was as deeply ingrained in Mitropoulos as was love of religion. He had studied the piano from the age of nine. The trend of his life was decided when he realized that the strict rules of the Greek Orthodox church would allow no music. So he became a musician, but always with an almost fanatical spiritual side. At the age of 12 he became a pupil of Marsick, a professor at the Odeon Conservatory and conductor of the Athens Symphony.

MARSICK took the boy to Rome on his vacations where he became intrigued with the mystical writings of St. Francis of Assisi. At 23 he wrote his first opera, "Sister Beatrice," which was performed at the Athens Conservatory. Saint-Saens happened to be in Athens at the time and hearing it took back such glowing reports to Paris that funds were provided to send the young composer abroad for further study.

In Berlin he worked with Busoni who, upon hearing a 45 minute long sonata of his, cried: "Too much passion. Go back to Mozart." This ended Mitropoulos' ambition to become a composer.

"So," he related, "I deteriorated into a conductor." This was a wise decision since he became the leader of many of the important orchestras of the world. He served as conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony for 12 years and in 1949 became the regular conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra.

A DESCRIPTION of his unorthodox podium methods is described by Brenda Nealand. "His face is lighted with joyful excitement; he springs down among the violins, pulling out their theme; bounds into the horns; points with a fierce index finger. To whip the rhythm he leaps high, stamps his heels in pistol shots. Pulling out his turtle neck sweater he shouts: 'Don't act Hamlet. Be Hamlet. Don't act music; be the music.'"

At his penthouse in New York City he arose at five in the morning, studied scores till rehearsal time at 9:30, ate a scanty lunch and only one meal a day and studied far into the night. Mitropoulos was a truly dedicated man—dedicated to music and to his God.

Indonesian Art Expert to Speak

By VERA WILLIAMS
L. P. T. Art Editor

Dr. Karl With, professor of art history at UCLA, will tell the history of Indonesian art and show rare photos of arts and life in Bali and Java before the Long Beach Art Association at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

The speaker will describe the Boro Budur in Java, little known but one of the most amazing monuments in the world. Built 1,000 years ago it consists of 2,000 terraces adorned with 2,000 reliefs and 500 statues, all dedicated to Buddha.

Dr. With, who received his Ph.D. summa cum laude from the University of Vienna, directed museums and art schools in Germany, Holland and Switzerland. He is the author of 21 books, including a comprehensive book on Javanese art and architecture, and has traveled through Indonesia, Asia, Europe and North Africa.

Dr. Eugene Wallin, president of the Art Association, will conduct the meeting.

PRINTS, portraits, paintings and posters by Audre Gaddis Hutchins will be shown for two weeks, opening with a reception this afternoon in the Cytron Jensen Gallery, 1711 E. Fourth St. The gallery is open 1 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m. seven days a week.

Mrs. Hutchins, a busy mother of three, always has found time to paint but has not shown until this year. She has won awards in oils, watercolors and mosaics. This is her first one-man exhibition.

Documentary Film Shows Nova Scotia

Documentary and travel film producer James W. Metcalf will present "Nova Scotia: the Sunrise Province" at five local high school auditoriums this week.

Second in the Long Beach City College General Adult Division's 1960-61 series, the all-color film lecture will open at 8 p.m. Monday in Wilson auditorium. The program will be repeated Tuesday at Jordan, Wednesday at Millikan, Thursday at Poly and Friday at Lakewood High School.

Season subscriptions and single-admission tickets will be available at the box office each night or at adult centers during the week.

The people of Nova Scotia, predominantly Acadian French and Scottish Highlanders by origin, co-star in Metcalf's film along with the spectacular scenery of Canada's "ocean playground."

One sequence, using the time-lapse technique, compresses the 52-foot rise and fall of the Bay of Fundy tides into less than a minute of screen time.

'This Is Russia'

"This Is Russia," second offering in Long Beach State College's current film series, will be screened at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Little Theater on campus. The public is invited.

He is one of 22 Western painters whose works have been assembled in the Heritage Gallery, new art rental center at 426 N. La Cienega Blvd., Los Angeles, in an exhibition opening today. Benjamin Horowitz, a lifelong art collector, and Paul Gerchik, for 20 years a New York and Southland artist, direct the gallery.

"ART FOR THE HOME," 100 art works by 15 Southern California painters, all appropriate for the home, will open Tuesday in the Belmont Heights Methodist Church, 3rd St. and Termino Ave. The exhibition, free and open to the public, may be seen 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily including Sunday through Nov. 30.

Gals Get Pro Vote

By ILKA CHASE

We hear a great deal about career women, some pro, an awful lot con but I have recently met three examples of the critters and I vote pro. They were all amiable and admirable ladies.

The most sprightly possibly is young Eileen Ford, who with her husband Jerry runs the Ford Model Agency in New York, an organization that claims to do 75% of the photographic model business. The Fords have about eighty girls on their list who average between $50 and $60 per hour.

When Eileen was asked whether she worried about all those pretty wenches her husband was constantly in contact with, she laughed and said, "I have to go on the candy-factory theory — work there a while, you become indifferent to sweets."

Slim and pretty enough to compete with any of the models she books, Mrs. Ford is the mother of four children ranging from 2 to 13. She feels that a working mother has perhaps a more satisfactory relationship with her children than one who has them underfoot all day. When they are together her concentration upon them is absolute and they have grand times.

Actually it was Mrs. Ford's first baby who served as her springboard into business. During her first pregnancy, bored and broke, she got the idea of booking models and started out with two girls whom she knew.

Others gradually gravitated to her until presently she was running such a flourishing concern that her husband had to take a hand in it too. Among their clients are Millie Perkins, Bellina, Suzy Parker and her sister Dorian Leigh, and the beautiful Italian Elsa Martinelli.

MY NOMINATION for an intellectual plus attractive candidate among career ladies is Pauline Frederick of NBC News Staff, the only woman to have served the year's term of president of the United Nations correspondents' organization.

She is also something of a slight-of-hand artist. Probably no one who isn't a writer realizes how long and hard you have to work to condense voluminous copy into limited space or accurately to describe a complex occurrence in a minute and a half. To compress her reports on the United Nations week into that fraction of time sometimes takes Miss Frederick two hours.

She appears daily on TV, does a radio feature on the United Nations three times a week and has four five-minute shows on Saturday. In time of crisis, as the case of the U2 and the Belgian Congo revolt, she's on tap twenty-four hours a day. She feels that the impact of radio and television news on the public is strong and for that reason responsible reporters and commentators must be as dispassionate as possible.

Possibly due to her close association with it she considers the Security Council an excellent safety valve. As long as the delegates can swear at each other and insult each other it gives their tempers and missiles time to cool off.

PAULINE FREDERICK is one of the few women accepted as a serious reporter of world news and takes a certain grim pleasure in being released from having to treacle out the low down on Lady Dainty Cookie Mix or how to turn a paper bag into a boat for Junior's bath, topics considered by newspaper editors appropriate for what they refer to as the Woman's Angle.

A true woman's angle advocate however, and proud of it, is that peripatetic lady Myra Waldo who has recently published her own Travel Guide to Europe, a companion piece to her Round the World Cook Book.

In her capacity of food consultant to one of the large airlines, Miss Waldo is a pretty global character. She once carried 200 pounds of food to Russia — $461 worth of excess baggage — and cooked an American Thanksgiving dinner for members of the Institute of Food and Nutrition in Moscow. The Russians dove into the turkey and cranberry sauce with the ardor of Pilgrim fathers.

Myra says that in Russia the caviar and soup are great but dinner then comes to a halt, the rest of the food is awful and desserts nonexistent, an occasional melancholy apricot floating alone in a puddle of syrup is considered tops.

A safari in Africa on the other hand may be a gourmet's delight. The native way with meat is to shoot it and grill it but moist heat is necessary to eliminate parasites so Myra taught them about marinating in wine, braising and stewing. The birds they trapped they kept for a few days feeding them

"Fiesta of Roses" is the theme of a semi-formal dance to be given by Juniors of Los Cerritos District, California Federation of Women's Clubs, Saturday in Long Beach Mounted Police Clubhouse, Spring near Palos Verdes.

Mrs. Kenneth Newton, a member of North Long Beach Juniors who serves as second vice president on the district board this year, announces that the Tune Toppers will play for dancing from 9 p. m. to 1 o'clock. South Gate Juniors are in charge of arrangements for a midnight buffet. Wilmington Juniors are creating decorations; Huntington Park Juniors are furnishing tickets.

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS
—by PLACER MINER

Big event at Long Beach State this week is Saturday's Homecoming. We won't go into details, because the story should be covered elsewhere, but we want to join others in extending you a cordial invitation to attend Open House from 2 to 5 that afternoon.

Next Saturday also is the date of the Omega Alpha Delta (women in extended day classes) monthly luncheon. Some 40 of the gals will gather at Welch's to eat, see a fashion show, and then look pretty themselves for the camera as they have their pictures taken for the annual.

Dear Abby

Romance 'Divides' Town

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our pastor's wife died a few months ago and the whole town is running after him to help him replace her. He's in his early fifties and seems interested in a pretty little school teacher who is 33.

She has never been married and would make him a good wife. The problem is she has an older sister who has never been married, either. She is 38 and gives piano lessons. The 38'er wants this pastor very much, but I think the pastor prefers the 33'er. I'm sure the 33'er would grab the pastor fast if her sister weren't in the running. The town is divided. Who should get him? Some say the 38'er, as it may be her last chance. We'd like your opinion. — FRIENDS OF BOTH.

DEAR FRIENDS: The town should stay out of it. The pastor should court whom he wishes. And the sisters should wait to see which (if either) he selects.

DEAR ABBY: I went steady with Russell for three months. He's a wonderful guy but he was tagged for speeding twice and was cited for three other traffic violations in the past six weeks. He had his license taken away from him but he drives anyway. My Dad found out about it and made me break up with him. I don't think this was fair. Wouldn't it be punishment enough to forbid me to ride with him? I am 16 and Russ is 17.—RUSS' GIRL.

DEAR GIRL: I agree with your dad. How "wonderful" could a guy be who con-

West opened the ace of diamonds and shifted to a club. South had lost the first two tricks and had no way to avoid the loss of a heart later on.

This is really a tough luck hand. You can't blame South for trying for a slam or for planning to bid the slam should North show up with an ace. The chance that North would show up with three hearts was too small to worry about.

THIS HAND illustrates the greatest weakness of Blackwood. Once you use Blackwood you are committed to playing for eleven tricks or more and because there is no bonus for bidding five of a major you would much prefer to stop at four any time you miss two aces.

The Gerber convention is similar to the Blackwood, except that it uses a four club bid to ask for aces. A four diamond response shows no aces or four aces; a four heart response shows one; four spades shows two; and four no-trump, three.

Playing Gerber South would ask for aces by bidding four clubs. North would respond four diamonds to show none and South would stop safely at four spades.

Prof to Speak on Far East

Dr. Theodore H. Chen, professor of School of Asiatic Studies at USC, will be guest speaker Tuesday, 10:15 a.m., at a meeting of Inter-sorority Mothers Club at Town and Gown on campus. His subject will be "New Interests in the Far East."

tinually breaks the law, has his license revoked but drives anyway? He's bad news. Stay away from him.

DEAR ABBY: I am a size 12. My sister should be a size 12, too, but she is a size 14. She is always "going on a diet tomorrow." Last January she admired a dress of mine, so I gave it to her hoping it would be an incentive to stick to her diet. She seemed delighted with the idea, accepted the dress and promised she'd stick to her diet this time.

Well, she's had the dress for nine months, and instead of losing weight, she's gained. The dress has been hanging in her closet and I would like to wear it this winter. How can I get it back without hurting her feelings?—SIZE 12.

DEAR SIZE 12: Ask her if she would mind letting you wear the dress until she is able to wear it.

Needs Self-Confidence

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: Molly, my fiancé is superior to me. We are very much in love and plan to marry, but sometimes I get queer notions that I'll never make him happy. For that matter, that I could never make any man happy. Am I being cowardly? My one ambition in life is to be a good wife and mother. I dream and dress up a future together. Paint each hour with joyous color. I thumb recipe books. Yet all the time, underneath, I know I'll fail.

I've been brought up to sit in an office and look efficient and smooth. But I don't want to just catch a man. I want to keep him. My fiancé laughs and says he'd want me if I burned steak.—PROBABLY WILL. DEAR PROBABLY WILL:

Girls brought up for marriage may be able to whip up a standing soufflé or sew a straight seam, but they may totally lack other prerequisites which you have—eagerness to be a good wife and deep respect for the party of the second part.

All you've learned about business management will stand you in good stead. For managing a home is similar. Never, never let him know you think he is superior. It gives him too much of an advantage. Make your marriage a career and you'll smooth the corners successfully.—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: Every time Dad's mother comes to visit us she causes trouble. She spoils me, and I'm crazy about her, but this burns Mom up. Then she tries to tell Mom how to do things her way—and Mom prefers doing them her own way.

She treats Dad like a baby boy, and this burns Mom up, too. The whole atmosphere changes the minute she walks in. How can I help relieve the situation? I'm only 14 and don't have much say around three adults.—MARIAN.

DEAR MARIAN: Listen, my dear, these visits are strictly your mother and dad's affair, and it's up to Mom and Dad to handle them. Remember, your Mom is a big girl now and must cope with such situations on her own. M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: How do you get rid of someone's silliness? My husband and I like to eat by candlelight. Every night is a party, so to speak.

Now, however, we wonder. Friends and well-meaning relatives raise their eyebrows and accuse us of being Catholic. At first we thought it was just too funny but it's gone on so long we're getting sick of it.

When we have dinner guests join us, they note our candles, ask if we always have dinner by candlelight, then out with the inevitable, "But we didn't know you were Catholic."—PUZZLED PROTESTANTS.

DEAR PUZZLED: You amaze me! It never occurred to me, and I imagine it hasn't to most of my readers, that candles for dinner light is a religious ritual. Why should it be more Catholic than Holy Roller or Buddhist or Baptist?

I'd laugh at their ignorance. I don't see how I can help, but I, for one, think you should be congratulated for continuing your candlelight.—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My mother is insisting that I take dancing lessons. I'm a 14-year-old male, and I'm not attractive to girls, and probably never will be, so why should I take dancing lessons?

Please take my side in this so I can show your answer to Mom.—DICK.

DEAR DICK: But, darling, I can't take your side. Young people who are offered the advantage of dancing lessons don't know how lucky they are.

Dancing is a definite social asset. And let me tell you something else: The male who is a real good dancer never need worry about his popularity with the ladies.—M.M.

Delayed Punishment Confusing to Child

By RICHMOND BARBOUR, Ph.D.

"My wife never punishes our children," a father writes. "Instead, she makes a list of their offenses. When I get home I whip them. They hate to see me coming, and I don't blame them. Our children are 7, 8 and 9. How should we handle their punishment?"

Mothers and fathers should share the job of punishment. It's a mutual obligation. Children make mistakes. All normal boys and girls are deliberately bad at times. They break important rules on purpose and when they do they usually should be punished.

HOWEVER, children are different; what works with one won't work with another. Punishment that succeeds today fails tomorrow. The rule is to use the mildest punishment that will teach the needed lesson and teach it to the particular child at the particular moment.

Punishment works best when it comes immediately after an offense. A long delay clouds the issue. Your wife should punish the children during the day, when punishment is needed, without waiting for you.

Since your children might not know what is expected you should write out your rules and discuss them. Then be consistent in following them.

HAVE YOU tried praise or reasonable rewards? Do you expand your children's freedom as they prove they're responsible?

Excellent Choice

A stainless steel corner sink with two contour bowls is an excellent choice for a small kitchen. The right-angled placement of the "wells" saves valuable space, and provides counter surfaces on both sides as well as in the rear.

Wonderful for either left or right-handed homemakers, this compact twin sink permits sudsing in one bowl, and then rinsing conveniently in the other.

Ten Long Beach City College student leaders fly to San Francisco this week for the California Junior College Student Government Association convention Thursday through Saturday.

Heading the two local delegations are presidents Dier Heuser of the Liberal Arts Division and Bruce Hatch of the Business and Technology Division student bodies.

Other BTD delegates include vice president Joe Lussier, secretary Merriidy Casner, treasurer Judy Lundquist, Interclub Council president Tom Brown and activities director Mrs. Joyce Clark. LAD delegates include vice president Rudy Shepard, secretary Sandy Hogan, representative of arts Andree Sauve, AWS president Judy Goodwin and activities adviser Kenneth M. Nitzkowski.

More than 500 delegates from some 65 colleges will attend the three-day conference (with a little time off for sightseeing in the scenic SF Bay area).

MONA HAGAN, regular "Voice of the Viking" columnist, is about to enter a hospital for surgery—and her stand-ins wish her a speedy recovery. Mona promises us a few bedside paragraphs for a later issue.

GENERAL Adult Division, though heard from less often in this column than the other two LBCC divisions, is planning two student body-sponsored events in the near future. One is the second annual Folk Art and Music exhibit and program at West Adult Center Tuesday evening (6:30 p.m.), and the other is "Holiday Moods in Flowers With J. Gregory Conway," scheduled for Nov. 28 in the college auditorium.

Admission to the West Adult Center program is free to all comers (and come early). The presentation by Mr. Conway, noted authority on flower arrangement, is admission-free to all GAD student body members. General admission tickets will be available to the public starting Nov. 21.

AT THE Pacific Coast Highway campus: It will be Co-Rec night again next Saturday, as both day and evening students of BTD enjoy a program of informal dancing and games in the Student Center. Sponsoring clubs are Theta, Order of Kisaab, Circle K and Volsen.

Volsen is also sponsoring a demonstration of office machines at noon Thursday in the Horseshoe Theater. President Joan Metcalf will introduce the speaker, Carl Oltebroe of the Monroe Calculating Machine Co. (And speaking of the Horseshoe Theater, director Herberti Caesar and his cast still are receiving plaudits for the recent production of Noel Coward's "The Fumed Oak.")

THOUGH THIS isn't the sports page, we should note the LBCC women's basketball team (not to be outdone by the men's water polo and football squads) was going against El Camino coeds last week for an intercollegiate championship. Captain of the "Viqueen" squad is Pat Stirling.

Then there's the continued excitement (pending results of last Friday's game at Valley and the regular season finale this week at East L.A.) over the prospects of LBCC's first Junior Rose Bowl bid since 1950. Alumni president Mason Kight, who was ASB president in '50, indicates that an effort will be made to arrange a reserved section and bus transportation to the JRB for LBCC old grads, if all goes well.

Scholarships totaling $500 have been awarded to LAD business majors Marshall Fried and Leo Lutz by the Vita Craft Corp.

OUR COVER

Basketball bids professionally for Southland sports fans' interest—and dollars—and hopes to share in the tremendous upsurge of grandstand population which the Los Angeles Rams shook out of the football trees and the Dodgers herded out of the baseball hinterlands when these fine clubs trekked west. Now the Lakers have been transplanted from Minneapolis to espouse the cause of pay-for-play basketball in Los Angeles. Southland's cover salutes them today with an action scene from one of their exciting games, with Laker Rudy LaRusso (35) leaping for a rebound in a tilt with the world champion Boston Celtics. Teammates Hot Rod Hundley (33) and Elgin Baylor (22) are in on the play. In center is Jim Loscutt (18) of Celtics. For more about the Lakers see Page 8.

NEXT WEEK

When Long Beach area families sit down to their Thanksgiving Day dinners, they could well give thought to the manifold blessings of freedom which is their heritage from the nation's forefathers. Today's bounteous table is far different from that of the Pilgrims who were forced to wrestle their plain rations from Dame Nature amid the hardships of an untamed land. The evolution of 1960's season of accounting for good things is traced in "Our Changing Thanksgiving Day," by Maymie R. Krythe, in next week's Southland Magazine.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give genealogy on VERNON?—C. V., C. J., E., Long Beach.

C. V., C. J., E. C.: VERNON, famed in English history and literature, is from a French town-name. Vernon meant "place of the alder grove" in old France. The Vernon ancestor accompanied William the Conqueror from Normandy during the conquest of Britain in 1066. The Vernons were prominent in Derbyshire where they gained ownership of Haddon Hall Castle in 1170 and kept it until 1567. It is an enormous manor house 110 feet by 220 feet. The romance of "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," a historical novel of this family, brought world renown to the name. The Vernon coat-of-arms from Derbyshire has a black rope knot as an emblem on a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give data and the coat-of-arms on HINE and HINES.—Mrs. F. H., H. H., Long Beach; Mrs. H., Compton.

F. H., H. H., H.: HINE and HINES represent "Son of the Hyne," ancient English word for "servant" (to a high ranking nobleman). Chaucer in the 14th century wrote, "There nas baillif, ne hierde nor oother hyne." (There was not baillif nor herder nor other servant.) The Hines coat-of-arms, granted in Ireland, has three red crescents on a diagonal gold stripe across a blue shield. Connecticut forebears include Thomas Hine in the 1640s and Samuel Hines in the late 1600s.

DEAR MISS RULE: Could you give the meaning of CONWELL?—O. E., Long Beach.

O. E.: CONWELL, an English surname, was formed in the early Middle Ages from "Coni-Welle," meaning "Rabbit-spring." This evidently alluded to an area where rabbits were abundant. Yeates Conwell of England settled in Delaware in 1699. No coat-of-arms or other data are known.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you analyze BABCOCK?—B. B., R. B., L. B., Long Beach.

B. B., R. B., L. B.: BABCOCK is from Old English "Bab" meaning "youthful" plus the suffix "-cock" meaning "little." No coat-of-arms is available. Babcock forebears were 17th century settlers of Rhode Island.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you data on GUMMER and GUMMERT?—Mrs. C. T., E. J., Long Beach.

C. T., E. J.: GUMMER and GUMMERT are spelling variations of Gumpert. Eight centuries ago the old High German name Gund-Pert, awarded to a soldier, described his leadership and excellence in battle. Gund-Pert meant "celebrated in war." Many generations later Gundpert was changed to the French spelling Gumpert after some of the family moved to Alsace-Lorraine on the French-German border. The family coat-of-arms, granted in Prussia, has a gold hunting horn on a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have genealogy on ATTAWAY?—Mrs. C. A., Long Beach.

C. A.: ATTAWAY is from the old English phrase "Atte-Way" meaning "residence on the roadway." This description distinguished the ancestor's home from most of the homes of his neighbors which were on paths or byways.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the source of ENGLISH?—M. G., Oildale.

M. G.: There were sharp divisions between England, Scotland, and Wales before the 1100s. Englishmen living on the Scotch border were called "Ingills"; those near Wales were the "Anglici." These two terms were changed to "English" and borderland residents adopted "English" as a name. The English coat-of-arms has three silver lions on a black shield. Thomas English was a Mayflower passenger who arrived in Massachusetts in 1620. He died there in the same year.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you data on CHOISSER?—A. C., Long Beach.

A. C.: CHOISSER is a French name respelled from "Chaussier," a strange medieval occupation description. "Chaussier" meant "maker of hose and tights," the long, cotton stockings worn by men in the Middle Ages. No other data is available on this name.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give information on WARFIELD?—N. W., J. R., J. W., T. W., Long Beach.

WARFIELD, an English locality-surname, was formed from "Weir-Field." A Weir or millpond-dam landmarked the field where the family had its home. I find no coat-of-arms listed for this family. New England records list Samuel Warfield and his wife in the late 1600s, and disclose that they had seven grandchildren born from 1702 to 1717.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the source of DITTER?—L. T., Long Beach.

L. T.: DITTER, genealogy records state, is shortened from Ditterich, a well-known German surname based on Dieterich. The source of Dieterich was the Roman Latin imperial title Theodoric meaning "Gift of God," which was dialectically altered to Dieterich in ancient Germany.

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning, and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

By Ruth C. Ikerman

Sometimes I think this housewife by hanging on to things is just proof of a lazy brain, too weak to make up the mind about what not to keep and what to save. Then is when I start to heave things out the back door with a vengeance, to prove I do have a brain.

THE CRISIS came when once in a decade I finally finished the rainbow colored afghan despite all the competition from watching color television. What to do with that big box of stray ends of yarn was the question.

Instantly there was a flash of wings as an advance messenger arrived to inspect this bright addition to bird diet. Finding it was not a new bird vitamin, the scout apparently decided it would make excellent building material. Away went the "timber" in the bird beak between outstretched wings.

Or perhaps the yarn was to be woven into a new tapestry pattern wallpaper for the snazzy bird nests. My sewing closet is gradually losing its clutter as its floss odds and ends are used up by the birds who say thanks from the garden as they sing joyously from the trees near the bird bath.

Another pro team leaves barren ground for greener pastures

The Lakers Bid for West Coast Gold

By Don Hardin

JERRY WEST hails from a little home atop a West Virginia hill on the outskirts of the tiny town called Cabin Creek.

The story goes that years ago there was only a winding path through the brush to his front doorstep. But today there is a road, one rutted and widened by the countless number of basketball coaches and scouts beating their way through the bramble in an effort to sign West.

Fred Schaus claims he was the traffic director during this period.

Schaus is the coach of the new Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Assn. West, an unassuming Mountaineer—one of the most heralded college players of all time while playing under Schaus at West Virginia U., is now a member of the Lakers and still a prize pupil of Schaus.

THESE ARE JUST two of the interesting young men who comprise the Laker group, but they are principals in the scheme to make the Lakers as successful and appealing to Southland sports fans as the Rams and Dodgers, who left barren pastures in the Midwest and East for greener ones here.

It won't be an easy task for the transplanted Minneapolis team, the latest professional group to locate in Los Angeles (along with the Chargers).

But the Lakers have good, colorful players to give rival pros, and fans, a run for their money. Southland fans have had a generous sampling of the Lakers and have loved every minute of every action-packed game.

Results of the pre-season tour with the Boston Celtics did, indeed, raise a few eyebrows, but the results were nothing of which to be ashamed. The world champion Celtics won 12 and the Lakers only 4. But in contrast, the Lakers won but two of 21 last season against the Celtics.

THE MINNEAPOLIS team of the late 40s and early 50s was the scourge of the NBA just as the Celtics have been for the past four years. And now, with a new home (the Sports Arena), a new and sound coach, and new players mixed with a nucleus of veterans, the Lakers hope to regain supremacy.

Fabulous Elgin Baylor, the Lakers' meat and potato man, is considered by many to be the best all-around player in basketball. He is short as basketball players go today. At 6-5 he only comes to the chin of giants such as Wilt Chamberlain and Bill Russell. But what he lacks in height, he makes up for in strength, speed, deception and deadly shooting.

Hot Rod Hundley and West, along

Dale Velzy, who has run a back-yard surfboard hobby into a successful business, poses on the beach with three of his boards and two surfing fans.

By Jack B. Kemmerer

NINETEEN YEARS ago an 11-year-old boy worked industriously in the back yard of his home. Despite the pleas of his playmates, he refused to leave—even for a moment—the long rectangular piece of balsa wood that looked like an ironing board. The boy, Dale Velzy, eventually finished his laborious task and triumphantly rode his first surfboard to sea.

Velzy did more than just ride this board to sea—he rode it into his life work and today is the largest surfboard manufacturer in the world. His modern $60,000 plant in picturesque San Clemente on Southern California's coastline is his headquarters, turning out more than 60 custom-made boards each week. This bustling plant is backed up by smaller manufacturing units at San Diego and Venice, and another at Honolulu. In addition, Velzy maintains sales outlets at Hermosa and Malibu.

Although surfing is a comparatively new sport in the United States, actually it is ages old and dates back more than 1,500 years with most experts placing its origin in the Pacific's Polynesian Islands. At first it was a sport for kings and Hawaiian royalty once rode the frothy surf of Waikiki to the envy of their subjects.

IN MORE modern times, the great Olympic swimmer of Hawaii, Duke Kahanamoku, took his surfboard to the Olympic trials in Australia. The tricky, hounding board received immediate acceptance by the water-minded Australians and today Duke's original board is enshrined in glass on an Australian beach.

In 1907, George Freeth, considered the mainland's first surfboarder, introduced the sport to Southern California. Businessmen lured him from Waikiki "to create an outstanding aquatic attraction." Following Freeth's appearance, a few hardy souls took up the challenge and by the 1930s the West Coast had a considerable number of devoted enthusiasts. The fast-moving sport received its biggest boost when teenagers took it up in the late 1940s.

In the last few years surfing has really reached its own and has earned a permanent niche in water sports. Dale Velzy says, "I've been in surfing all my life. And now it's the biggest . . . a mad, crazy thing."

After Velzy turned out his first surfboard at the age of 11, he continued to make surfboards for his friends. As the years passed he outgrew the back-yard workshop and moved to a small wooden building near the pier at Manhattan Beach—first working alone and then gradually adding employees as the fame of his surfboards spread up and down the coast and even to Honolulu. Still, his output of boards wasn't too large for in those early days surfing was still considered a sport for people who were part of the "lunatic fringe."

Velzy lays his success almost entirely to the extremely fine board turned out by his company—each completely tailored to the customer's individual demands.

"MANY MANUFACTURERS make a couple of different sizes of surfboards and let it go at that," Velzy says. "However, we try to cater to the person who is particular and wants only the finest in boards. Most people who have been surfing for some time have their own ideas as to what measurements and weights are best in a surfboard. We give them exactly what they want."

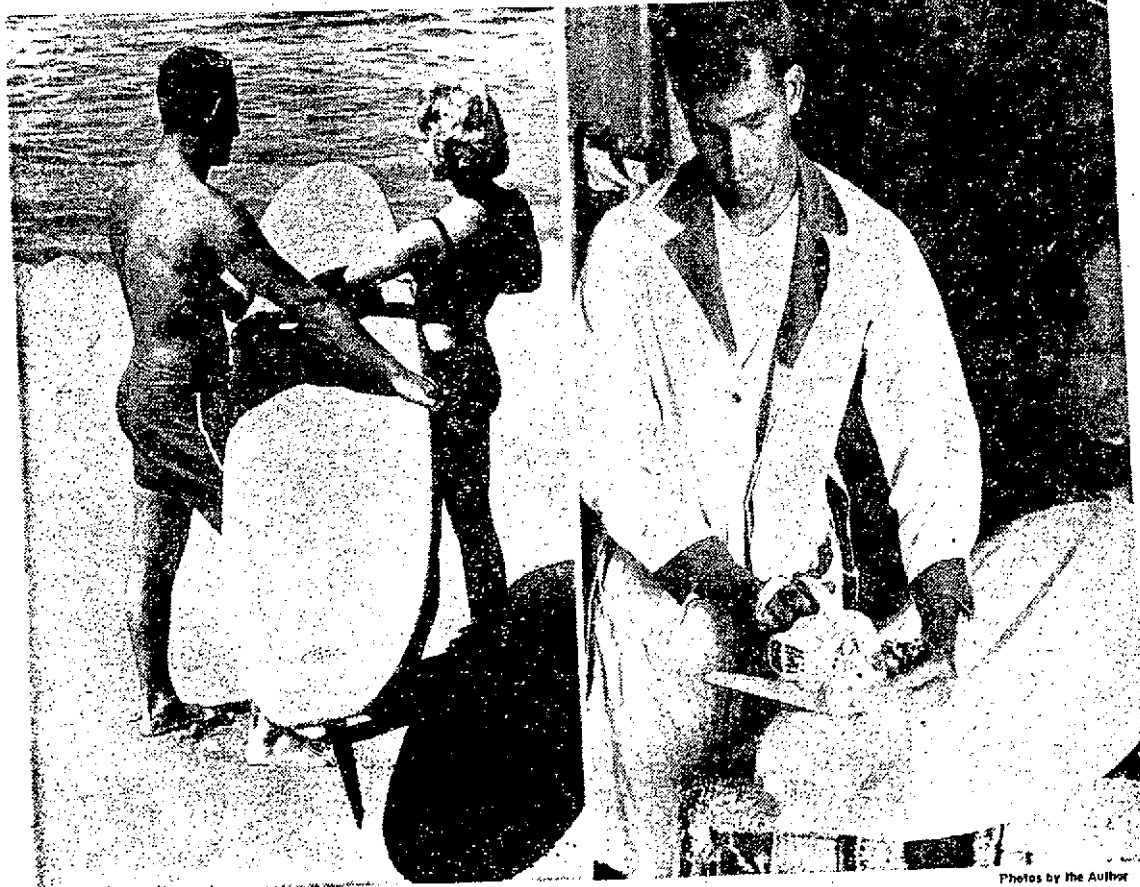

Balsa wood—imported from South America—was used in the beginning for most boards but today many makers like Velzy have shifted to a new foamy plastic that is just about perfect for the job. The plastic used is polyurethane, which is available in several densities and Velzy has worked out a formula which he thinks is best. Its exact composition is, of course, a closely guarded trade secret.

Norry Hastings, one of the local manufacturers of polyurethane, estimates surfboard manufacturers will gross close to $500,000 this year. He further predicts the industry will grow to 5 million dollars in the next five years. "There's no holding it back," Hastings says.

Velzy has his surfboard blanks made to order from his own molds. The blanks are then split down the middle and a piece of redwood inserted and the two halves are glued back together with a strong waterproof glue in a specially designed glue press. This adds considerable strength to the blank.

THE BLANK is then carefully shaped by hand by skilled craftsmen to the customer's specifications. The blanks now move to the "glass" stop where a coat of tough, laminated fiberglass is applied; the fin attached and the entire board is painted to the

Michelangelo of the Flowers

By Irma McCall

THE MOST electrifying experience in J. Gregory Conway's 20 years of lecturing on flower arrangements occurred in Shreveport, La. While 3,000 women watched eagerly for the red velvet curtains to part, a handsome, silver-haired matron on the stage gasped, "I just can't introduce you, Mr. Conway. I'm frightened out of my wits!"

"Would a glass of water help?" asked Conway, praying she wouldn't fall flat on her face.

"No, but a cigarette—only a lady wouldn't smoke . . ."

"Nuts, I'll light one for you."

The lady tottered to the mike, clutching the burning cigarette behind her, and spotlights framed her in a golden circle.

"Ladies of the garden clubs," she began, "a great spiritual event is in store for you—"

SUDDENLY THE audience leaned forward, better to note a strange phenomenon—a spiral of silvery smoke curled heavenward from behind the chairwoman.

Tense women in the audience gazed pop-eyed at a possible reincarnation of the priestess Oracle of Delphi, who might go up in smoke at any moment.

It was a moment of near hysteria, quieted only by the end of the introduction and vanishing of a chairlady trailing smoke.

VISITORS IN Mr. Conway's unique Oriental home in Fullerton, may hear more of his fascinating experiences. He lives in a sylvan paradise. Eucalyptus, native live oaks, magnolias, azaleas mingling with exotic Polynesian ginger, bamboo and Haitian banana trees dress the sides of a small ravine. A stream cascades across the two-acre estate and broadens into a tranquil pond dotted with water lilies. A footpath, crossing two rustic bridges leads to a classic Japanese dream house.

Mr. Conway greets you cordially at the entrance. Off come shoes, on go cloth slippers to protect the tatami (matting), and you enter a large room, duplicating a Kyoto palace saloon. Only flowers—an arrangement of birds-of-paradise in the tokonoma (niche). Only furniture—a low black table, where guests may sit cross-legged, to savor sukiyaki prepared on a charcoal brazier by the host. Sogetsu scampers across the forbidden tatami, and you hope this winsome black and white alley cat has sheathed his claws.

"Let's have coffee on the porch," suggests Conway.

Lulled by music from a concealed hi-fi, you relax on the "moon viewing deck" and watch a silver scimitar moon rise. Before you a tall fountain plays on the tiny lake centering the verdant Elysium. You are served coffee in rare white German porcelain.

"Mr. Conway, how did you become interested in flowers?" you ask.

"AS A BOY in Billings, Montana, I liked to raise sweetpeas, and study them, and put them in vases. Flowers became my main interest in life. Although I've owned several commercial shops in Long Beach and Beverly Hills, I just wanted to make enough money so I could concentrate on flower arranging."

He has done decorating for Mary Pickford and gave a command performance for Emperor Hirohito and family in the Imperial Palace in Tokyo. He proudly shows a copy of "The Old Man and the Sea" autographed by his host in Cuba: "To Gregory Conway, from his admirer, Ernest Hemingway."

In pursuit of his profession Conway studied flowers in Egypt, Italy, Ceylon, India, Haiti, but found the flora of Japan the most enchanting. The Japanese were amazed at this first American to study with them for a year at the renowned Ohara School in Osaka. Armed with a degree in floral art, Conway returned to the United States eager to share his knowledge with equally eager devotees. One declared what all must have felt, "The class has enriched my whole life."

"Women's interest in flower arranging is fantastic!" Conway declares. "And to me there is nothing in life more important than flowers, our starting point, the closest thing to living beauty, to life, to the purpose of living. You cannot arrange flowers without a feeling for God and the spiritual values of life." His favorite is the white hyacinth.

THE PUBLIC may see and hear Conway at the Elks' Club at 1 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 16, at a benefit sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary to the Harbor Dental Society. He will also lecture at 8 p.m. Nov. 28 at City College Auditorium.

The latest of his four beautifully illustrated books is "Conway's Encyclopedia of Floral Arrangements." Houbigant Perfumes presented him in a highly successful TV series "How to Arrange Flowers" in which he encouraged even novices to enjoy the deep satisfaction of creating delicate beauty.

In March, Conway will be the featured speaker at the Williamsburg Symposium, followed by lectures in coastal cities, where he will stress flowers in urban living. Modern home-makers prefer arrangements of some permanence. Dried materials, expressing a phase of nature, provide austere beauty for a quiet room. He always uses plant materials growing in the region of the demonstration.

When wanderlust lures the Michelangelo of the Flowers to desert his moon-viewing deck, he plans to revisit Buenos Aires and Lima and then to fly on to exciting Brasilia and the tropical wonders of the Amazon.

ing and dining rooms, kitchen and family room which lack separating doors, shutters or screens. The entire area is, in effect, a large rectangle with a center partition or wall which forms the rear of the kitchen.

Many other features tend to give the home an individual custom appearance. The entry hall is marked off from the living room simply by the clever use of a long, low, white brick settee which rises only a few inches from the floor. Covered with pillows in blue, gold, and orange, it affords additional seating area in the living room at the same time creating the entrance hall.

THE LONG living room is carpeted in off-white which is carried throughout the home except in the bedrooms. On one side, adjacent to the brick settee, is a white brick fireplace. Next to the fireplace a planter is built into the floor with a high glass window to one side. Hanging lamps are directly over the planter.

Facing the fireplace and planter is a coral couch. At the far end of the room is a curved gold couch with blue and gold pillows at either end. On the remaining wall beyond the planter white drapes match the white walls and ceiling. A handsome Oriental painting of large dimensions hangs on the far wall. Occasional chairs are covered in blue and made of light oak framed with walnut.

The dining room set is made of walnut, with hanging shelves above the buffet. Chairs are high backed, upholstered in off-white.

THE FAMILY ROOM and dining room are at either end of the center kitchen. A large window over the sink gives a picture view of the back yard and pool. A model of streamlined efficiency, the kitchen has a cupboard sized to each item. The ceiling is unusual, with square beams. a low bar on one side provides a handy eating area with chairs on the family room side.

The family room is cozy and comfortable with a couch, chair, TV, and low settee carrying out colors predominating in the living room. Its proximity to the kitchen makes it particularly functional.

The master bedroom is done in fall shades of beige and gold, with gold drapes, gold bedspread, and beige carpeting. The adjoining bath-dressing room has a center island wash basin and is carpeted like the bedroom.

ANOTHER BEDROOM is gay and attractive with pink and white furnishings. Twin beds with pink spreads have white scroll headboards with a round pink quilted center. Hanging lamps provide light for a white desk along one wall. The soft beige carpeting is like that used in the other bedrooms.

The third bedroom is tailored. A shelf on one wall is a conversation piece with its countless trophies and cups, reminders of momentous occasions in the baseball life of Franklin and his son.

The home is on a large lot which affords ample space for a swimming pool and patio-deck area. Pool and patio are a colorful background for this easy-to-live-in home with its own custom look.

Bins for a Hobbyist

Set of bins prepared from cans and boxes can be made attractively, inexpensively and will serve efficiently.

By Lorena Fleissig

ATTRACTIVE and inexpensive, a set of bins that will take care of many hobbies is illustrated in the accompanying photo.

The young collector who has an assortment of materials he or she wants to classify and store will be glad to have them, Stones, marbles, shells, etc., need sturdy containers to hold the contents and to keep them attractively available for display.

Depending on the type of collection, choose cigar boxes, oatmeal cartons, coffee and juice cans for the purpose. They may be grouped with decorations in a theme or made up in sets of the one kind. A set of four or six cigar boxes will please even the collector of bills waiting to be paid. They stack neatly on the shelf and are inconspicuous in their importance.

Before decorating, inspect the cans and boxes. They should be undented and clean inside and out. If wished, the insides of the cans may either be painted or simply waxed to prevent rusting. The round paper cartons may be lined with silver foil or wall-paper. To unify the group, choose a suitable wall paper or gift wrap that will please. A western theme is generally popular.

THE COFFEE CAN has a round bead knob fastened through the lid with wire through two holes. Twist it firmly until the bead is seated tightly. This close fitting lid might make a safe container for a coin collection. Or, in place of the bead, a slot could be made to receive coins as a savings bank.

Prepare the cigar box by cutting a V-slot in the front panel for easy opening of the lid. When pasting a strip of paper along the front, snip down to the center of the V cut and turn the paper on each side of the cut to the inside of the box and paste down. Cut a square panel to paste on the top of the lid, another panel for the underside of the lid. This box will hold snapshots, cards and trophy ribbons, the most important and personal part of any collection.

He Leads Double Life By Estelle St. George

RON MAURY, alias Moroni Leurs Lavon Kaonohio-kala Kealiokalani Medeiros, not only leads a perfectly integrated double life today, but has in the past led an unbelievable variety of lives. Efficient, impeccably groomed business man by day, this remarkable man magically transforms himself into a glamorous entertainer by night, at all times fulfilling his most important role of devoted husband and father to two small boys. However, when one looks into his background, Maury appears to have been a man who could always do anything—expertly.

Born in Hawaii 33-years-ago, the handsome dark-haired youngster lettered in football, basketball, track, swimming, and surf-riding, and was the only 12-letter athlete to come out of his high school. He was voted the most outstanding athlete at Roosevelt (Hawaii) in 1945 and 1946, and still considered to be one of Hawaii's greatest all-around athletes. Even at the age of 13 he held the world's junior surfboard sprint record!

At that time his hobby was singing, and he sang with the a cappella choir in his church (Mormon) as first tenor for three years. While this was a pleasure without purpose, it served him in great stead in years to come. He was awarded a football, basketball, track, and swimming scholarship to George Pepperdine College in Los Angeles. While at Pepperdine he organized and coached the college's first swim team. He was the first Hawaiian to attain Knighthood, the highest honor a male student can have at Pepperdine.

A broken leg temporarily halted his athletic career. However, during the convalescing period he became seriously interested in the field of entertainment and was part of the USO group from the college that entertained at service functions. His talents did not go unnoticed, and he started his professional career with the Hawaiian Roy Sang Trio in 1949 and found that show business on weekends did not interfere with school work, brought in extra money, and was the most enjoyable work he had ever encountered. With added confidence, he headed his own show during the Korean War and entertained at service hospitals at every opportunity.

YEARS PASSED and Ron Maury became associated with many "greats" in show business: Harry Owens, Sammy Davis Jr., Andy Devine, Arthur Lake, Roberta Linn, Peter Lawford, who now are among his greatest admirers, not only for his artistic talents but for his down-to-earth qualities as well. Finally he had his own show which today headlines at the Polynesian Restaurant—the Polynesian Playboys.

In private life Maury is happily married to another "great", Joanne Royer, the former United States National AAU and Outdoor Synchronized Swimming Champion and All-American, one of the world's finest solo synchronized swimmers, a beautiful and glamorous girl in her own right. Two small boys are added family attractions.

It's New

Mail Box Face-Lifted

A NEW, ruggedly built, modern design, rural and suburban mail box has received approval by the post master general. This is the first change in mail box design and construction approved in over 50 years, according to the manufacturer, Southern Fabricators, Steelville, Ill.

It has a glass-smooth acrylic finish, baked-on over heavy duty, zinc coated steel. A chrome-plated protective hood surrounds the door.

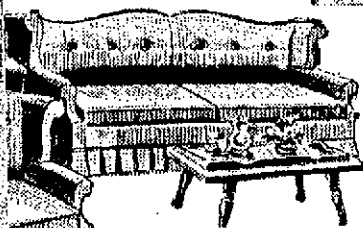

It's made in five different colors: chrome blue, turquoise, white, chocolate and pink.

Available as accessories are a swivel mounting bracket and pole that enable the purchaser to mount the box with the support pole angling into the ground. This minimizes the danger of autos damaging the pole.

Co. is full time and demanding. But he finds time to give help in any worthy civic affairs. A member of the board of directors of the Long Beach Century Club, he feels that nothing is too large or small for his attention.

Long Beach acquired an outstanding citizen when Moroni Leurs Lavan Kaonohiokala Kealiokalani Medeiros decided that this was the perfect place in which to lead a wonderful double life.

For Judge or Hoodlum

—Photos by the Author

Reading room of Los Angeles County Law Library, one public institution that has cost taxpayers nothing.

By H. B. Walters

INTO THE HUSHED room came the clomp of heavy feet. Heads bending over books lifted in astonishment. Three men halted on the entry. One wore the iron bracelets of jail, his companions the heavy holsters of the police.

"Usual room," ordered one officer.

A desk attendant picked up a key. All trooped from the library's main room to disappear into a private room. Here the manacles were exchanged for leg irons. The prisoner's hands were free to handle books. At his own request he had been brought from the city bastille to study up on pleading his case in court.

The Los Angeles County Law Library at Second St. and Broadway in Los Angeles is open to all, judge or hoodlum. If its six floors were spread on one level they would cover a city clock. Yet not a cent of taxes or assessments has it cost ordinary citizens.

Everything about this mass of marble and cement is modern. The lawn is kept green by a sprinkler controlled by a clock. Shrubbery was selected for ruggedness to resist the "perfume of progress" on busy streets. The only building decorations are eight gold buttons, each as tall as a man, bearing seals of courts in the United States. Within the building, filters, mechanical and carbon, remove odors and dust.

ALL SORTS of people use the library. Young men in jeans, women in sweaters, lawyers lugging brief cases, judges swathed in dignity, or maybe Gladys Towles Rool, famous criminal attorney, attired like a fur cocoon or a silver sheath. All ages come to study at long blond tables. Nobody knows what his neighbor is working on. Perhaps a Disney script such as the Elfege Baca series. Perhaps proof for a common-law marriage. Or how to sue a doctor or break Grandpa's will. During the last war government men came for German and Japanese laws. Studios send researchers to insure accuracy of movies. The Finn twins are frequent visitors. Chessman had books sent to his cell. Every day from 600 to 1,000 citizens use the books.

This fabulous library largest west of the Atlantic began 80 years ago with a nest of 5,000 books. To make sure it grew legislation was adopted requiring a donation to a Law Library Fund from every person starting an action in Superior Court. So painless was this that the contribution was extended to other courts. As a result the library today has over 300,000 volumes.

PRESIDING GENIUS over this empire of books is Dr. Forrest Drummond. Among

FOOD

Breakfast for a Crowd

By Mildred K. Flanary

Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

BREAKFAST for a crowd may sound like a difficult chore, but it isn't.

Take, for instance, this menu: Orange Mold teamed with fresh fruits, a giant popover filled with creamed chicken, and coffee-flavored nog as a beverage. We suggest that you use instant nonfat dry milk crystals in the cream sauce.

Creamed Chicken in Popovers

- 3/4 cup butter
- 3/4 cup all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 teaspoon rosemary
- 6 cups reliquefied instant nonfat dry milk crystals (according to package directions)
- 4 cups diced cooked chicken
- 2 cans (1-pound each) whole kernel corn, drained
- 1/2 cup chopped parsley
- 1/2 cup chopped canned pimientos

Melt butter. Add flour, salt, pepper, garlic powder and rosemary; blend. Gradually add reliquefied instant crystals and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add chicken, corn, parsley and pimientos and cook 10 minutes, or until thoroughly heated. Serve creamed chicken in popovers. Makes 20 servings.

Giant Popovers

- 2 cups whole eggs (about 8-9 medium-sized eggs)
- 2 1/2 cups reliquefied instant nonfat dry milk crystals

tals (according to package directions)

- 1/2 cup butter, melted
- 2 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 3/4 teaspoon salt

Beat eggs slightly. Add reliquefied crystals and butter; beat until blended. Gradually beat flour and salt into egg mixture. Turn into 10 well-buttered 5-ounce custard cups. Place on jelly roll pan. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) 1 hour. Cut slit in side of popovers. Bake 15 minutes. Remove from custard cups immediately. Makes 10 popovers.

While we're on the subject of group servings, clip this recipe for Angel Food Fruit Dessert. You'll love it!

Angel Food Fruit Dessert

- 2 packages (1 pound each) angel food cake mix
- 5 cups whipped orange instant nonfat dry milk crystals*

Prepare cake mixes following package directions for 10x4-inch tube pan. Slice each cake into 10 pieces. Top with whipped orange topping.

*To whip instant nonfat dry milk crystals: (Makes about 5 cups)

1. Measure 1 cup chilled orange juice in bowl. Add 1 cup instant nonfat dry milk crystals.
2. Whip until soft peaks form (3-4 minutes). Add 1/4 cup lemon juice.
3. Continue whipping until stiff peaks form (3-4 minutes longer). Fold in 1/2 cup sugar. Makes 20 servings.

100 or 1,000, He'll Feed 'em!

By Vera Williams

HOW WOULD you like Madam, to shred five acres of cabbage for cole slaw?

Make 1,000 pounds of potato salad?

Barbecue 6,000 top sirloin steaks to order.

AND furnish 12,000 ripe olives, 18,000 sugar cookies, 18,000 bottles of drinks and 64,000 ice cubes?

It sounds like an order for the army, but it's all in the day's work for Robert Leberman, 48-year-old caterer who says he enjoys preparing food and spending other people's money!

Robert Leberman, head of Casseroles Party Caterers, helps others spend for fun, has few hours for his own.

LEBERMAN OWNS the Casserole Party Cafeteria, 414 N. La Cienega Blvd., Los Angeles. His offices are located in the heart of "Restaurant Row" but he finds little time to be a guest at parties. He is too busy rushing from electronic plant to new bank to movie stars' homes seeing that their parties are successful.

Groceries detailed in the lead of this article were provided for a party given recently for 4,000 guests.

To the public in general catering service means anything from lunch wagons that drive around to industrial plants at coffee or lunch breaks to groups of cooks, waiters and bartenders who serve food and drink at business or social affairs.

Leberman is prepared to do everything on a grand scale, if desired. His client roster the press party for Desilu Studios introducing Desilu's new TV show, "Guestward Ho." Since the show features J. Carroll Naish as a Sgt. Bilko type Indian, an Indian village was concocted for the setting, with Leberman's waiters, cooks and bartenders garbed as Indians.

LEBERMAN'S joke is that he may become schizophrenic from the variety of parties he supervises. For example, he recently did a party for Marlon Brando. Since the actor's home has a Japanese motif, Leberman's staff served barefooted.

Next came a party for Film-masters, the company that produces "Dennis the Menace." Guests were required to bring at least one child. While the adult guests lived it up, the kids were entertained with a preview of the new "Dennis the Menace" series.

Leberman, who was born in New York and has a business administration degree from the University of Pennsylvania, spent 10 years before World War I trading in precious stones in the Orient and South Africa. His war years were spent as a lieutenant in the adjutant general's office in Fort Louis, Wash., and at the Presidio, San Francisco.

He is vice president of the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital Men's Council and is an active member of Wilshire Blvd. Temple.

His business philosophy? "When a business man takes a customer to lunch, he spends $10 or $15 . . . We do the same thing for less money on a larger scale."

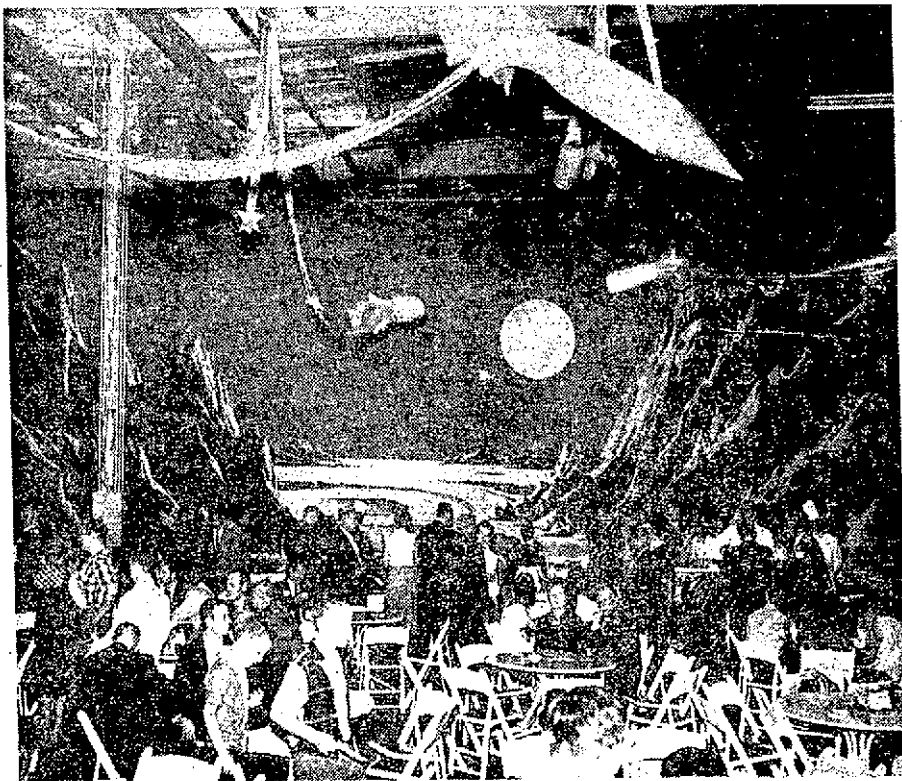

sounds like a Who's Who in business.

MARLON BRANDO, Ernie Ford and Ann Sothern have called on him for their private parties.

Recently, for instance, he staged a party for 1,000 at Tony Curtis' home. The actor's back yard was not big enough for that many guests, so the party overflowed into the backyard of the nextdoor neighbor.

Leberman planned the "highest" party ever held in Los Angeles. The occasion was the opening of the new Citizens Bank at Wilshire Blvd. and Flower St. Although the bank occupies the ground floor, the party for 250 VIP's was in the 21st floor penthouse of the new Tishman Bldg.

Shortly after that, he did

Theatrical drops inclose a party area in the Marwaiz Steel Co. warehouse where a big party was given by the firm. Leberman's staff catered the large-scale event.

Name Famed in China

By Helen L. Gillum

IN Dainty sweet pea pattern, French Haviland china in a 12-piece complete dinner set is an interesting possession of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Duthie, 421 Roosevelt Road.

The set was purchased in Chicago in the 1890s and belonged to Mrs. Duthie's aunt. When the Duthies were married in 1933, the aunt presented the dishes to them as a wedding gift. Besides the conventional place settings, there are many other pieces, from a huge water pitcher to tiny butter chips, soup plates and old-fashioned bone dishes.

When we think of Haviland, we automatically think of Limoges, France, birthplace of this beautiful, hard-paste chinaware and where much of the world's finest

Haviland china, part of a 12-piece setting, is cherished possession of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Duthie of Long Beach.

porcelain is still being made. Surprisingly, Haviland china was the creation of an American shopkeeper.

David Haviland, whose ancestors came to America from France in 1640, owned a china store on Barclay St. in New York in the early 1800s. One day he came upon a cup of such translucence and beauty that he fell in love with it.

THE CUP was unmarked, but evidently of French origin. Haviland resolved to locate its source. He crossed the Atlantic, and after a long search, found his answer in Limoges.

Haviland began to import the chinaware produced in the various factories of Limoges which were so ideally situated near the necessary kaolin and felspar deposits. But these potteries made only the "all-white" wares, sending the pieces on to Paris for decoration. The owners of the factories also refused to change their modes and styles to suit American tastes. And so, like that original do-it-yourselfer, "The Little Red Hen," David Haviland must have declared, "Very well, I shall do it myself!"

He moved to France, built his own factory, and in 1842, under the name of Haviland & Company, began to make the exquisite chinaware that was to revolutionize the porcelain industry of France.

OTHER HAVILANDS entered the business through the years and in 1936, a Haviland factory was established in America, using the original molds and designs from the Limoges establishment. (It is interesting to note that the Havilands of Limoges introduced the use of chromolithography, a method of decorating porcelain now used by practically all china manufacturers.)

A common sorrow of all collectors and owners of cherished heirlooms is the accidental destruction of these old treasures. Mrs. Duthie has broken or otherwise lost several pieces of her Haviland, and has experienced almost as great difficulty in matching her Sweet Pea pattern as David Haviland did in locating the first cup away back in 1839. But the quest for such replacements constitutes a challenge that adds zest and interest to every-day living; it is one of the pleasures shared by countless antique lovers throughout the country.

Holding more than a quarter million volumes, the law library, an amazing unit, is housed in this building.

For Judge or Hoodlum

his credits in Who's Who is service with the U. S. Naval Reserve. He has also been president of the American Association of Law Librarians. His assistant is Dr. William Stern who speaks many languages and is famous in international, canonical and primitive law. Dr. Stern rules over the rare and foreign books.

The library is staffed by several dozen men and women trained in either law or library work. Some have two academic degrees. They have their own lounge richly furnished in leatherlike modern equipment. Their work is simplified by not only electric typewriters but also electric erasers. Among them many languages are spoken including Russian, Swedish and Hebrew. This is necessary because of the many foreign books and periodicals.

Most of the studying is done in the large reading room. However, special rooms are available for judges, for public typing or for legal conferences. Books are selected from a catalogue and brought to the tables by attendants. Also available are catalogues showing all the books held by the Library of Congress and also the British Museum Library. These are available when needed. Thus one may sit in Los Angeles and have at finger tips knowledge held in Washington. However, most important works are owned by the Los Angeles County Library, including even two copies of first Editions of Blackstone's Commentary.

RARE BOOKS are kept in a refrigerated vault and handled by attendants wearing gloves. These may be studied but under supervision. Other books are on steel shelves built as part of the building frame. To walk past all these thousands of books is no easy stroll through a printed park. It's a 20-mile hike.

Already the Los Angeles County Law Library is sixth largest in the United States and growing at the rate of 10,000 volumes a year, plus 6,000 more bound from magazines. It subscribes to more than 3,000 periodicals.

She Paged a Psychiatrist!

ANNE FRANCIS, who stars as a troubled "call girl," Robin, in the motion picture, "Girl of the Night," got a strong assist in her part from a psychiatrist.

The part of Robin in the Warner Bros. film, which also stars Lloyd Nolan, John Kerr and Kay Medford, was psycho-analyzed for her by Dr. Harold Greenwald, author of "The Call Girl," book from which the film was adapted.

"Dr. Greenwald," said Miss Francis, "explained how Robin's sad role in society stems from a lonely childhood, how she wears a mask of defiance which is the hallmark of every 'call girl,' how beneath that mask is a frightened child."

"No role ever got under my skin so much before," she said. "I really went through an emotional wringer. I felt like Robin. The psycho-analysis of the part helped me breath life into the role."

When Mother Goose Has a Party

By Betty DeWeese

ONE OF the nation's most unique storybooks is produced every year in the Southland when the annual edition of the "Mother Goose Parade" brings to life the land of the make-believe and wondrous tales for children of all ages in a 2½-mile spectacle of color, sparkle and music.

The huge procession un-

folds 15 chapters of Mother Goose, including "Patty Cake, Patty Cake"; "Humpty Dumpty"; "Simple Simon"; "Rockabye Baby"; "Jack and Jill"; "Old Mother Hubbard," and many others.

Held in El Cajon, 15 miles east of San Diego, the storybook parade is presented each November attracting a viewership of thousands from throughout the nation. The parade is the second largest in California, surpassed only by the Tournament of Roses in Pasadena. Last year more than 300,000 lined the streets to watch, and it is expected that the 1960 edition will attract as many or more on Nov. 20.

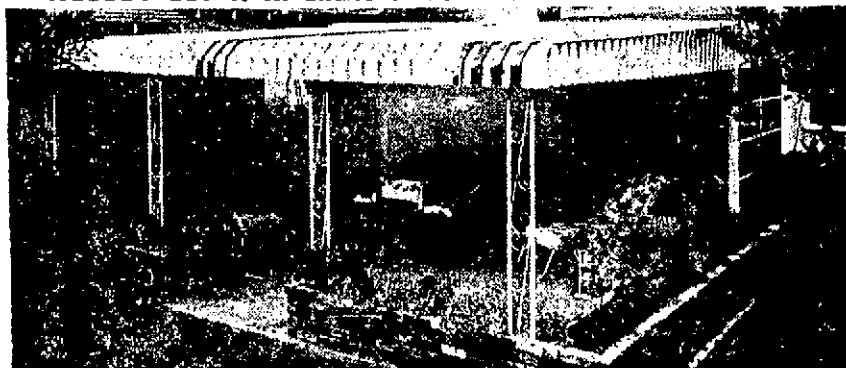

nursery rhyme floats, bands, military drill units and equestrian groups will participate in the 1½-hour parade beginning at 2 p.m. In keeping with the storybook theme the parade is divided into 15 chapters instead of the traditional parade divisions.

Although the annual spectacle has become a nationally prominent attraction, the original concept of the parade as a gift to the children is still the foremost thing in the minds of the parade officials.

The basic philosophy of this noncommercial parade which brings Mother Goose and other childhood characters to life still rules. A completely nonprofit event, the spectacular floats, while costly, return no money to the sponsors. Winners in the various classifications do receive trophies, however.

GROWING EACH year, the parade will have its 1960 review with more than 100 units entered. Animated with coach Schaus, comprise the "Mountaineer Trio." West Virginia, one of the top collegiate teams in the nation over the past six years, gained its status due to these three men. Schaus coached Hundley there for three years and the latter was a unanimous All-America selection for two years. Ditto for West who succeeded Hundley as the Mountaineer star.

Hundley is the showboat, the color man of the team, but also is a fine player. West, in his rookie year, has the poise and polish of a veteran pro. The Lakers used every conceivable angle to obtain West, their No. 1 draft choice, and the signing of Schaus as coach probably was the biggest reason the rookie came into the fold.

Rudy LaRusso and Tom Hawkins, at 6-7 and 6-6 respectively, are the Lakers' top forwards along with Baylor. Both are second-year men.

RUDY, FROM Dartmouth, is one of the biggest players on the squad at about 235 pounds. He is extremely strong, aggressive and a fine shot-maker. Hawkins, from Notre Dame, can out-jump most players three inches taller. He is a natural to become one of the most exciting players in the game.

Another rookie fighting to make the big time with the Lakers is Howard Joliff, who eclipsed all scoring marks at Ohio U. Joliff is a 200-pounder at 6-7, a fine rebounder and shooter.

The latest addition, and one whom the Lakers hope will lend valuable aid to the team, is 6-10 Gary Alcorn who cavorted at Fresno State and played with the Detroit Pistons last season.

Veterans rounding out the team are Frank Selvy, who set national scoring records a few years back at Furman; Bob Leonard, last season's team captain who was a Hoosier Hotshot while at Indiana; Jim Krebs, 6-9 center and former All-America at SMU, and Ray Felix, 10-year veteran from Long Island U. who, at 6-11, is the tallest man on the Laker squad.

This is the group which hopes to attain the pinnacle of success in professional basketball. This is the group which hopes to lure legions of fans and a chest of gold. Both should happen.

BOOK REVIEWS

Heroes of the Cloudless Heights

THREE gripping books, each about an American airman who has made history in the skies, have just been published:

"THE MAN WHO RODE THE THUNDER" by William H. Rankin, Lt. Col., USMC (Prentice-Hall, $3.95): On July 26, 1959, Col. Rankin rode out an awesome thunderstorm in a parachute over North Carolina, from a height of 47,000 feet. Ejected from his cockpit, where the temperature was 75 degrees, he hit chilling gales of 75 below. Plunging into the center of the storm — into an angry ocean of boiling clouds—he encountered thunder that was deafening; lightning so close and so brilliant that even after he had closed his eyes he got the sensation of "seeing" a deep red outside; rain so torrential that at times he feared he might drown, and hailstones which beat his body unmercifully. Forty long minutes after he left his cockpit he came to earth, establishing the highest emergency landing, and the roughest, on record. His first-person account of the ordeal is, indeed, dramatic.

"FIRST OF THE SPACE-MEN: Iven C. Kincheloe Jr." by James J. Haggerty Jr. (Duell, Sloan and Pearce, $3.50): On Sept. 7, 1958, in a tiny, rock-ribbed, rocket-powered manned missile called the X-2, Capt. Kincheloe started the Space Age when he rocketed to an incredible height of 126,200 feet. His picture hangs with those in an exclusive company of 10 other fliers in the National Aviation Club in Washington but "Kinch" was killed July 26, 1958, while on a routine air mission. His widow, Dorothy, felt that the world should know more about the exploits and personality of this man whose feats rank with those of Lindbergh, Doolittle and Rickenbacker, and this book is the result. Written by an authority on aerospace, it gives a vivid insight of the character of a splendid young man whose name will live in air history.

"ALWAYS ANOTHER DAWN: The Story of a Rocket Test Pilot" by A. Scott Crossfield with Clay Blair Jr. (World, $4.95): Substituting faith for fear, Test Pilot Crossfield has logged more rocket plane flights than most of the chief test pilots combined. The X-15 project, conceived as America's first manned aero-spaceship, was the crowning challenge in his life that has been spent largely in the air. In this, his life story, he discusses engagingly how it feels to fly at nearly three times the speed of sound; to know that years of preparation, millions of man hours, ten of millions of dollars, and the technological prestige of America are riding

An impetuous swordsman from Parma Was lovingly fondling a churina, Said the maiden demure, "You'll excruciate me, I'm sure, But I THINK you're still wearing your armor."

WHILE the origin of the limerick is shrouded in obscurity, the man who made it universally popular was Edward Lear, artist and humorist, and his "Book of Nonsense" published in London in 1846. People have been writing them ever since and Bennett Cerf, always on the spot with a laugh, has collected more than 300 of them — carefree, racy, glib, care-free, grisly, but all hilarious and entertaining—in "OUT ON A LIMERICK" (Harper, $2.95). Drawings, including the one reproduced above, are by Charles Saxon.

with him in the cockpit. He reveals the kind of man a test pilot is and the kind of life he leads, he discusses and analyzes the already-famous X-15 and he offers some interesting opinions on the future of air travel. Written with the assistance of an associate editor of The Saturday Evening Post and the author of several books, including the recently published "Diving for Pleasure and Treasure."

"THE TRUMPET AND THE ROSE" by George C. Appell (Macmillan, $2.95): At 23 and with a zest for life, Lt. Webb Rogers of the Dragoons is prepared for high adventure when he arrives by ship in San Francisco to join an American cavalry unit at Sonoma. The flag of the Bear Flag Republic flutters in the breeze, but there are Perez y Loma and his Mexican troops to be dealt with. There is also Lewis Pike, a spoiled lieutenant who is passing military information to the enemy through his Mexican mistress, and there is the beautiful Cynthia Tipton, Pike's fiancée, who mistakes Webb for a Mexican, wounds him and nurses him back to health. Finally, there are General Kearney and Admiral Sloat and the short but savage fight for Monterey, but not until Rogers has consolidated his position with Cynthia. Mr. Appell, using authentic events and personalities, has woven an exciting tale of dash and derring-do that brings new life to an important episode in California's colorful history.

"THE RECORDING EYE: A Hundred Years of Great Events as Seen by the Camera" by Helmut and Alison Gernsheim (Putnam, $7.95): With its more than 200 photographs this amazing book would, at first glance, appear to be almost solely a camera record of a century of world history. Actually, the text accompanying the artwork totals more than 50,000 words, and it reviews the events photographed with vivid effectiveness. The era covered is from 1839 to 1939 but included is the world's first photograph, taken by Niepce, in 1826. There are glimpses of the first public railway, the first horseless carriage, the Great London Exhibition, the Crimean War, the first subway train, the Russian Revolution, Hitler's invasion of Poland and many other moments of historical significance. The authors, widely known British photo-historians, made the selections from their collection of more than 30,000 historical photographs.

"THE SUNSET COOK BOOK: Food With a Gourmet Touch" by the Sunset Editorial Staff (Lane Pub. Co., Menlo Park, Calif., $6.95; after Christmas, $8.50): Literally hundreds of tempting recipes selected from the thousands in the Sunset Magazine collection—with each passing the rigid tests of the Sunset Test Kitchen—make this cook book one which will delight gourmards everywhere. Attractively presented and easy to find and read are the tested recipes for such epicurean delicacies as Spicy Crab Cocktail, Cheese-Stuffed Kumquats, Mandarin Oranges in Papaya Halves, Chicken Breast Salad, Country Supper Soup, Vichyssoise, California Style Swiss Steak, Carmelized Ham with Walnuts, Seafood with Olive Rice, Salmon and Oysters en Casserole, Breast of Chicken with Almonds, Pecan-Stuffed Pheasant, Wild Rice with Mushrooms, Artichoke Heads in Wine, Scrambled Eggs and Oysters, Danish Coffee Crescents, Choccolate-Topped Rum Pie, Hot Buttered Cranberry Punch and Mexican Coffee, to name only a few. Here, too, are menus for de luxe picnics. Emphasis is put on party food, and homage is paid fine California wines. The outside book is beautifully illustrated, including 31 full-color paintings, by West Coast artist Earl Thollander. A rare gift item for the discriminating cook.

IN HIS 13TH BOOK, Justice William O. Douglas of the United States Supreme Court writes about the unspoiled beauty of the Pacific Northwest—a land he loves—in "MY WILDERNESS" (Doubleday, $4.95). One chapter is devoted to some of the beauties of nature found in California's High Sierra. Line drawings are by Francis Lee Jacques, one of which is reproduced above.

"THE BIG SMEAR" by William R. Reardon (Crown, $3.95): With the presidential elections at hand, this novel by a University of Iowa professor is a timely one since it shows what could happen if a few unscrupulous men cleverly used television, radio and the press to distort a candidate's record and destroy his chances of winning at the polls. Mr. Reardon has succeeded admirably what he set out to do in writing the book: to create an interesting plot with exciting characters, and to explain "that the salvation of the good men in public life against forces which would destroy him, is to be found in the average man's apathy or alertness to the impact of political maneuvers."

"GOOD BYE, AVA" by Richard Bissell (Atlantic, Little-Brown, $3.95): While the hero daydreams about Ava Gardner, life goes merrily on aboard a couple of Mississippi River houseboats—including a feud by their owners with a big concern which seeks to take over their docks. An amusingly satirical novel.

"THE ART OF WRITING" by Andre Maurois (Dutton, $4.50): A noted critic and biographer offers new understanding of such masters as Voltaire, Balzac, Proust, Goethe, Tolstoy and Tchekov in 13 beautifully done essays, each about a different writer. The first chapter, "The Writer's Craft," is a brilliant summation of the domain of letters.

"THE ART AND TECHNIQUE OF SUMI-E: Japanese Ink-Painting as Taught by Ukai Uchiyama" by Kay Morrissey Thompson (Charles E. Tuttle Co., Rutland, Vt., $8.75): Buddhists brought the ink stick and the bamboo-handled brush to Japan in the 6th century. The Japanese took to the art and have been at it ever since. This truly magnificent book offers Western artists attracted to it, some of the finest examples of its acknowledged master.

"FORTY YEARS AMONG THE INDIANS" by Daniel W. Jones (Westernlore Press, Box 31073, Los Angeles, $8.50): Jones first crossed the plains in 1847. Later, he joined the Mormon church and settled in Utah where most of the adventures in this book took place. Long out of print, republication of his life on the frontier will find eager readers.

CHECK THESE paperback originals (first time published in book form) for fine entertainment:

"ANGEL'S FLIGHT" by Lou Cameron (Gold Medal, 35c): Familiar with the tricks of the trade, this one takes a harmless-if-nasty drummer on a 20-year journey from the bottom to the top of the music empire.

"THE STAR TRAP" by Robert Colby (Gold Medal, 25c): Hollywood is the setting, where a love story is trapped in a web of blackmail, sees murder as the only way out. Tension and suspense.

"THE OLD FARMER'S 1961 ALMANAC" by Robert B. Thomas (Rocket Books, 35c): This is the original Robt. B. Thomas Farmer's Almanac first issued in 1792 for the year 1793; contains such data as weather forecasts, fishing days, planting tables, astrology data, postal laws.

"RX FOR LOVE" by Elizabeth Slove (Del, 35c): A career girl and a married doctor, an accident brings them together, yet keeps them apart.

"10-DAY WONDER" by Richard Wilson (Ballantine, 35c): An atom-happy earth faces the disconcerting problem of friendly outer-space.

"STRINDBERG: SEVEN PLAYS" translation by Arvid Paulson, introduction by John Gussner (Bantam, 75c); Contains "The Father," "Miss Julie," "Camrades," "The Stronger," "The Bond," "Crimes and Crimes" and "Easter." A Bantam Classic.

"THE SEA WOLF" by Jack London (Bantam, 35c): A celebrated novel republished with an absorbing introduction by Lewis Gannett. A Bantam Classic.

"THE SHORT STORIES OF LEO TOLSTOY" (Bantam, 25c): A Bantam Classic containing the 37 greatest short stories of the immortal Russian writer, with an introduction by Alexandra Tolstoy.

"OSCAR WILDE" by Frank Harris (Dell, 75c): A controversial biography of the genius whose private life scandalized the Victorian world; with "My Memories of Oscar Wilde" by George Bernard Shaw.

"DESIRE IN THE DUST" by Harry Whittington (Gold Medal, 25c): The explosive novel from which the popular movie by the same name was made.

"A PIECE OF THE ACTION" by Herb Gardner (Ballantine, 75c): A young designer in the gift industry must obtain control of his creations. If he does not, the fast money boys will destroy both the designer and his work.

"FLIGHT" by Louis L'Amour (Ballantine, 35c): A killer, at last, turns his back on civilization and heads for the badlands to die. His enemies hire a dry-cleaning to go after him.

HOW TO Build a lavatory enclosure that is tailored to fit the space you have.

1. SIZE OF LAVATORY enclosure can be tailored to fit space. Table top extension is optional. If you don't include it, cut top large enough for 1 3/8-inch overhang at the sides and along front. Use 3/4-inch plywood throughout; reinforce with pine or fir 1 x 2s. The 1/4-inch perforated hardboard (tempered) doors ride in dadoes—1/2 inch deep at top; 3/16 inch at bottom or aluminum track for sliding doors. Cut the holes for water and drain pipes.

2. CUT AND FIT high-pressure laminate for the edges first. Top overlaps it (shown) but use the top for alignment only. Apply contact bond cement only to edges of cabinet and laminate. When cement is ready to use, press laminate in position. Use roller to seal it. Turn cabinet on its top over back of the laminate. With sharp-pointed tool, mark cut-off line. For cutting, use a fine-toothed handsaw held at low angle to avoid chipping. Keep the pattern side up.

3. CHECK LAMINATE for fit. Spread contact bond adhesive evenly over it and the top. When cement is ready (30 minutes or so) cover the top with a large piece of wrapping paper, which serves as a slip-sheet. Then position the laminate over it. Lift the laminate slightly, and slowly pull the paper out from under it—an inch or so at a time. As you go, press the laminate down with the tips of your fingers. Go over the top with a roller to seat the laminate.

4. POSITION RIM for lavatory on the top, and use it to scribe on cut-out line. Strips of masking tape stuck at random to the laminate will keep rim from slipping. Cut out top to accept lavatory. Although rim will cover cut, be as accurate as possible with saw.

5. LAVATORY IS squeezed to rim with tiny clamps (left) that are inserted into slots along edge. Fasten cabinet to wall with heavy flathead screws; countersink. After the cabinet is set, install back-splash. Laminate should be backed with plywood and trimmed at the top edge, ends, and where it meets the top of the cabinet. You can buy special metal moldings for this. Screw plywood to the studs; apply the laminate to it as you did on the top. For rough edges, use a fine-toothed file.

Rarotonga Is Their Lucky Seven

WHEN the Matson cruise ship Mariposa sails Thursday from Long Beach-Los Angeles Harbor on its 42-day cruise to the South Seas, the lucky, lucky passengers will visit seven fabled ports instead of the customary six.

Added to the itinerary of the Mariposa (and cruises of its sister ship, the Monterey) for all future voyages—beginning with the one this week—will be Rarotonga, declared by the not-so-many people who have seen it to be one of the most beautiful islands in the Pacific.

But, since Rarotonga has no pier facilities or launch service, passengers will not go ashore. Instead, the island will, in effect, virtually "come out to the ship" as villagers from Avarua—the little town near where the Mariposa will heave to offshore—board the liner from their native craft.

And when they come aboard they will virtually take over, entertaining in true South Seas style and displaying their handicraft. Among the boarders will be a postman to provide the rare postmark for passenger mail.

Rarotonga, largest of 15 islands in the Cook group, comprises 16,602 acres with a population of 7,576. With a magnificent "skyline" of volcanic peaks rising more than 2,000 feet, it is said by those who have been there to be one of the most impressive sights in the South Seas.

In the past, transportation to and from Rarotonga has been limited to a small New Zealand Government ship (all the Cook Islands are under New Zealand protectorate), making 10 trips a year, and occasional flying boat service which has been discontinued.

Other stops of the Mariposa and Monterey on these voyages are Papeete, Auckland, Sydney, Suva, Pago Pago and Honolulu.

LONG BEACH will be included among the 30 ports in 23 different countries to be visited by Cunard Line's Caronia Great World Cruise which departs Jan. 23 from New York, and terminates May 3. Passengers will have the optional choice of disembarking here on April 21.

The 34,000-ton air-conditioned Caronia is the largest liner ever built especially for cruising. Its cruise will cover 26,975 miles. Rates for this particular voyage start at $2,875.

GREYHOUND plans a series of four-day Yosemite escorted tours, the first leaving Mayfair Hotel in Los Angeles on Nov. 21. The tour includes all transportation, three nights at New Yosemite Lodge or Camp Curry, all meals, and sightseeing trips. An experienced escort who serves as host will take care of baggage and other arrangements to insure carefree pleasure. Other departure dates will be Jan. 24, Feb. 14, March 14, April 11 and 25, May 9, June 6 and 20, and July 11 and 25. Entire cost will be $86 per person, twin basis.

IF ARIZONA'S your dish, you'll be interested to know that Scottsdale—next door to Phoenix—has corraled the 1960 National Finals Rodeo Team Roping Competition on Nov. 19-20. The top 30 ropers in the nation will compete for $8,000 prize money. And at the same time, the country's best 15 professional barrel racers will compete for the crown of the Girls Rodeo Association. Phoenix, on the same dates, will be host to its Annual Fall Horse Show.

UTAH AUTO TOURISTS take note: The north rim of the Grand Canyon, due to snows, has been closed until next spring.

APPOINTMENTS: Henri J. Lesieur, general manager of North Central American and Caribbean Division of Air France, has also been named general manager in North America for T.A.I. (Transports Aeriens Intercontinentaux) which has inaugurated service from Los Angeles to Tahiti. Lesieur's added duties follow the designation of Air France as general agent for T.A.I. in the United States.

FORMERLY associated with a public relations firm in Florida, Herbert L. Hiller has been named sales promotion manager for Ariadne Cruise Lines, Inc., general agent for the SS Ariadne. One of the most luxurious ships afloat, the Ariadne departs from England on Dec. 2 for a cruise to the East Coast, Caribbean, Bermuda, Panama, Mexico and California ports.

"SEE EUROPE NOW"—That's the title of a folder in gorgeous color just received by travel agents describing the year-round charms of Europe and the particular inducements to travel to the Continent in fall, winter and map of Europe in color, a listing of the airlines and steamship companies serving the major cities there, as well as the addresses in the U. their doors to paying guests. All are marked by an authentic atmosphere—genuine Gothic Renaissance or Baroque—and all offer diversions ranging from golf and archaeology to skiing and ghost watching.

The majority are on or just off the main tourist routes leading from Vienna, Munich and Zurich. You can jet all the way via Scandinavian Airlines System from Los Angeles.

In the Vorarlberg, Austria's western province, you may stay at renaissance Schloss Hofen on the shores of Lake Constance for about $6 a day, meals and private bath included. Luncheon or dinner at nearby Schattensburg, a 700-year-old castle, world-famous for its wine cellars and its ghosts, is a must.

THE KITZBUEHEL area, a fashionable year-round Tyrolian playground, features several excellent castle-hostelries—among them the very popular Schloss Kaps; Schloss Lehenberg, a great favorite with knowing travelers, and medieval Schloss Itter, luxuriously appointed but not expensive.

You can live it up in Salzburg Province—notably at the Schloss Mittersill, headquarters of the Mittersill Castle Sport and Shooting Club.

At Schloss Sighardstein, the family seat of Count Uiberacker, you are made to feel as though you are a guest at a very special and very superior house party.

Carinthia and Styria, still relatively undiscovered—at least by transatlantic tourists—are exceptional travel bargains. Carinthia alone has more than 1,000 castles, among them 13th century Schloss Drasing, preroman-schic Schloss Petersberg and picturesque Schloss Freudenberg, all modestly priced.

STYRIA'S legend-ringed Schloss Rabenstein, high above the River Mur, is a gem among castle-pensions.

The rates at Schloss Bernstein, Bergrand's principal "open" castle, start at a low

$3. Bernstein is favored by the Austrians themselves.

You may travel during Austria's fall and spring months or during the skiing season and save enough on transportation alone to cover the cost of your castle holiday. You can get full details from an SAS agent about the airline's 17-day excursion fare and for a fund of fascinating castle facts and figures, contact the Austrian State Tourist Dept., 444 Madison Ave., New York 22, N.Y.

DELAPLANE

"I would like to marry a foreign girl, and have heard that the prettiest girls are in Dublin and Copenhagen. Is this true? Are there agencies for this?"

IN MY OPINION the Copenhagen girls top Dublin. There are lonely hearts clubs advertised all over Europe. I don't know about their reliability. I think you'd do better to contact the church of your faith for surety.

Irish International Airlines reports (without guarantee): Mrs. Brewster's Marriage Bureau, 11 Nassau St., Dublin. (If this fails you are only a step from the bar at Jammel's.)

"We are booked on a Russian tour. Any suggestions on gifts as tips? I understand waiters, etc., won't accept tips."

Bob Tarbox of San Francisco, who recently returned from one of these junkets, reports: "Best things for little presents, (1) Gum — they're crazy for it! (2) Ballpoint pens — just not available in Russia."

Records — Armstrong is a big favorite. And with a "My Fair Lady" album you can carry off the Kremlin."

Waiters and maids sometimes accept small cash tips. But under the plate please, not openly. And not very much or they'll chase you down the street to give it back.

"Just what does a travel agent do? We are planning a trip but..."

He plans the trip for you. Gives you up-to-date information on tours. What services the various carriers offer. Special events in the countries you are going to. Available sidetrips and how much. He makes your air and hotel reservations and his pay — except for specially designed trips — comes in commissions from hotels, carriers and packaged tours.

"An easy way to figure French francs into dollars and vice versa?"

THE NEW FRANC runs 4.93 to the U. S. $1. Roughly — multiply your dollars by five and you have francs. Divide francs by five to get dollars.

A new Air France booklet to help you "shop as the French do" might help you. Public Relations, Air France, 638 Fifth Ave., New York City. It's free.

"Is there reliable baby sitting service in Europe?"

I never had any trouble. Ask the maids or the concierge. If you want to farm the tots out for day, week or month, Denmark, advertised as "The Children's Capital of the World," offers two: Pernilles Bornhotel, 22 Vallerød Baneyvej, Rungsted Kyst, Denmark — caters to the 6 to 12 set; Høne Gardelüs, Brødland 23, Naerum, Denmark — up to 12 but also equipped to handle infants.

Three International Ranger Camps for 8 to 15 are under the direction of Mrs. Sigrid B. Ott, Westfalenstrasse 33 Wiesbaden, Germany.

THE EASY WAY: If you pack about 20 American dollar bills in an envelope when you leave the States, they'll be available for tips and taxis when you get into Idlewild in the dawn when all the banks, stores and change desks are closed — a terrible time to stiff the porter with foreign exchange.

Going Places

(Continued from Page 32) filled with hotel owners and managers from all over the world, all of whom depart with reluctance and disbelieving shakings of the head.

Built with Portuguese money by the Grand Hotels Europeans (sic) chain, the Ritz cost about $7,000,000. That doesn't begin to tell the story; as happens in many firmly ruled countries, the president took an interest in the project and decreed that all imported construction materials might enter duty-free. This dispensation cut expenses about in half.

You have to see it to believe it and then you still don't. Ankle-deep pile carpets and hand-woven rugs, quarryfuls of marble pillars and flooring, unique wall panels of embossed suede, rock-like mahogany doors, pure silk draperies and upholstery, solid chrome door knobs and faucets, fortunes in crystal chandeliers and rare paintings and special tapestries... the impression is that all the stops were pulled out in heaping elegance upon the Ritz.

DONE in a classic formal decor — in direct contrast to the M-G-M moderne of most new hotels — and with a warmth and solidity that belies its newness, the Ritz is, understandably, the most talked about hotel in Europe today.

We arrived here on a DC-8 of Swissair. In keeping with the enterprising ways of the doughty Swiss, it's the only European airline flying jets between Portugal and the United States and can also be found going into South America, the Orient and other unlikely places.

At 5:45 A.M., it had been a bare six hours from New York

Swiss Travel

Switzerland's 27,000 miles of highways and 20 great mountain pass roads make the country's natural beauties easily accessible to motorists. The price of gasoline in Switzerland is the lowest in Europe. Tourists who wish to travel by train can take one of the 250 mountain railways, or view the Alps from the many aerial cable cars or chair lifts.

to this westernmost European city, a fact which has often made us wonder why it isn't as popular a jumping-off place for a continental tour as London. The transatlantic fare is the same, and judicious use of a Eurailpass can parlay it into one of the cheapest ways of visiting Europe.

Shirley and Bob Sloane will be happy to help readers with their travel problems. Address them in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

PET PARADE

It's Time for Fido's Schooling

perhaps you would enjoy joining an obedience club and entering the club's training activities. Southeast Obedience Club, for one, has trained hundreds of dogs over the past ten years. A new class starts next Wednesday evening at Lynwood Park. Phone NE 8-7646 for particulars.

It really can be fun to obedience-train your dog, and here are a few general remarks to help you:

It is absolutely senseless—in fact, it defeats your purpose—to punish a dog while trying to obedience-train him. You may have to be very firm, but the dog most assuredly must enjoy his work. If you strike at him or beat him in some way, he will memorize the corporal punishment with the obedience lesson and become intimidated, lose his self-confidence, and react with disgust to this sort of activity.

MOST DOG authorities agree that a physical blow is not an intelligent form of chastisement for any reason. A much deeper impression can be made by lifting the dog off his feet by the scruff of the neck and shaking him. This sort of punishment is equivalent to that which he might receive from his "pack" leader had he been an undomesticated animal. However, even this form of punishment will upset a sensitive dog to an alarming degree and should never be used in obedience training.

It should go without saying that it is cruel to punish a dog after a lesson is over even though the dog worked poorly.

Dogs perform through habit. So, until your pet is in the habit of doing things such as heeling, staying, jumping obstacles, and the like, the lessons that take place at home should be limited to just a few minutes. And the second the dog shows signs of losing his enthusiasm, lessons should be stopped until another time. No dog will perform well if he feels obligated to go on after he is tired.

AN OBEDIENCE lesson, although it should be enjoyable to both dog and trainer, should never turn into play. When the dog has been released by some such words as "Okay," "Good boy," or the like, then, as reward for his efforts, he may have a caressing pat on the head or a chance to leap around. Terminate the lesson if the dog insists upon rolling over on his back and waving his feet in the air.

Some trainers offer food as a reward for a good obedience performance. This works if the dog has been starved for 36 hours before the lesson. Since most of us feed our dogs every day, the bribe should be omitted and the dog given the chance to feel he is permitted to carry out an exercise. (And may I add here that offering food to a dog to stop him from barking stimulates him to bark the more!)

LAKEWOOD Obedience Club will hold its practice match Nov. 20 at Jose del

Valle Park, Lakewood. Here is a chance for dog owners to see how their pets are shaping up in novice, open, and utility work. Joe De Beck is president of the club.

Also on Nov. 20, the Scottish Terrier Club of California holds a puppy match at Cambria Kennels, 1451 E. McFadden St., Santa Ana. Dr. Floyd Gardner of the Long Beach Health Dept. is club president.

HUB POODLE CLUB is holding a match in the afternoon of Nov. 20 at South Park, Chester St., Compton. Entry fee at $1 a dog will be taken until noon. There will be a special class for junior handlers.

Photo Combine

Kodak now offers a combination pola-screen and viewer at less cost than the two accessories purchased separately. The pola-screen, Kodak's name for a polarizing filter, is used to control blue sky tone in color photos without changing other colors in the scene, and to soften glare in pictures. The viewer shows what effect is being produced by the filter. Prices for the combination start at $9.95, for the Series 4 size.

Who's Who of Famous Photos

Memorable photo of the Hindenburg tragedy in 1937 has prominent place in new book of historical pictures.

By the Shutterbug

MANY historical news-pictures have become legends. They spotlight an event, an exploit or tragedy as no words can. They reveal the perseverance, ingenuity, planning or plain luck of photographers who were in the right place at the right time. They all had one thing in common—a camera with which a newsworthy fragment of life and an instant was recorded for all to see for all time.

Talk about historical pictures and a camera fan is likely to conjure up a few mental images. There's the flag raising at Iwo Jima... the Hindenburg explosion... the Vestris sinking... the girl plummeting to her death in the Atlanta hotel fire.

But who remembers the names of the photographers and the circumstances under which the pictures were taken? It's no longer necessary to trust to memory. We now have "Great Moments in News Photography," a Thomas Nelson & Sons publication. This collection of 57 exciting moments in news-picture history was compiled by John Faber, historian for the National Press Photographers Assn.

FABER, a former newspaper photographer, starts with the first photographic war correspondent, Roger Fenton. Back in 1855 he covered the Crimean War for the Illustrated London News. This was before the halftone process of photo reproduction had been invented. Fenton's photos were reproduced through artists' engravings and also were put on public exhibition. The newspaper prophetically noted "... the excellency of photography as an art and its uses as a recorder and illustrator of events."

Fenton's "wet collodion" process is a long way from the equipment used to record the last news events included in this book: a sequence of photos shot as a spectators' stand collapsed at the Indianapolis Speedway and a pictorial peek at man's role in space for the future.

On Memorial Day of this year, a young architect was at the speedway with a small camera, a 35 mm Leica. J. Parke Randall was a camera fan with a specialty—auto races. His camera had a rapid fire attachment whereby pushing a trigger advances the film and cocks the shutter for the next exposure at one second intervals.

WHILE COVERING the northeast turn and over the crowd's roar, Randall heard screams behind him. Glancing over his shoulder he saw a 30 foot spectators' scaffold toppling. He swung around and triggered a sequence of pictures as the stand crashed hurling a mass of tangled humanity to the ground.

Those pictures made the nation's front pages and called for a revision of the final phases of this book to bring it up-to-date.

The book's format is simple. One full page is devoted to each historic photograph. On the facing page is a small likeness of the photographer and the behind-the-scenes story of how the picture was taken.

LONG BEACH Camera Guild will have a "Do It Yourself" meeting at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday. Members are invited to bring equipment and problems for the work-play session.

Award winners in recent competition included: Black and white—E. Richmond (2), J. Scheurer, M. Shaner, H. Vosper; Color—E. Fuller, portrait; R. Ludlum, creative; C. Laursen, scenic; D. and E. Hayward, G. Church, E. Modern, Ludlum and Scheurer; Stereo—E. Hayward, F. Williamson and Scheurer.

Shutter Tips

A shutter time of at least 1/200 is essential for a clear shot of any object being thrown, regardless of its size. But there is a trick called "panning" which permits you to catch the movement of a car, plane or boat with a box camera's 1/50 shutter time. In this case, camera movement is the method of operation. You simply center the subject in your viewfinder as it approaches. Then keep moving the camera along with the subject so that it is constantly centered in the finder. Snap whenever you wish!

Your picture will show the moving object in sharp detail while the background will be blurred because of the camera's motion. Assuming the background to be of secondary importance in an action shot, you'll find the blurring of little consequence. In fact it actually adds drama to your picture by emphasizing the feeling of speed. Unfortunately, panning doesn't produce the same result in snapping moving people or animals since their motion is not uniformly in one direction.

Little Flowers that Pay Off Big

By Joe Littlefield

SET OUT white or pink anemone japonica, and in three years time there'll be around half dozen plants all blooming their little hearts out for you, generally starting to flower sometime in August.

The plant multiplies by sending out underground runners, then sending up plants Space anemones 12 to 15 inches apart.

The single or semi-double white or pink blossoms are colorful and attractive, for the shade garden as well as in partially shaded locations. They're hardy for various localities.

When the plants have finished blooming and the tall three to four foot faded spikes die down for the winter, cut them back to within a foot or so of the ground. The sparse winter foliage grows about a foot high.

Consider anemone japonica for your shady garden area where you want plants to be somewhat permanent for the next four years or so.

Anemone Japonica is a hardly perennial plant that multiplies by sending up new plants from underground runners.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS, too, are plants you can leave in the ground for more than one year if you so desire. Visit your local nurseryman. Check up on the late blooming varieties you'll see in color. Get some and add them to your mum collection.

If you live in cold, frosty areas, pass up the late bloomers. Instead, set out the early blooming varieties.

Ask your nurseryman about "Primavera" chrysanthemum. It is a new cushion type variety that blooms off and on the year 'round. It is a compact mounding plant to about a foot or so high with the same spread.

Excellent for sunny areas edging a walk, flower bed, in front of shrubs, as specimen pot plant, or in outdoor planter, the yellow small pom-pom blossoms add touch of bright color for those garden areas.

Garden Talk

Second in a series of free illustrated lectures to be given at Descanso Gardens, 1418 Descanso Dr., La Canada, will be held at 8 p.m. Dec. 1. The subject is native shrubs and trees.

Other lectures planned: March 2, "Native Trees of California" and May 11, "Management of Chaparral and Forest Areas in Southern California."

By Dorothy Jonson

Your fall clean-up spray is important. I have a friend who always refers to it as the "preventive" spray and I've stolen that phrase because I think it's very appropriate. The clean-up spray prevents garden troubles.

"House clean" your garden first. Pull up and get rid of dead plants, prunings and clippings, as well as other forms of debris. Then spray the garden (including the soil) with a good oil emulsion. If you use an oil emulsion containing lime sulphur, you have both a fungicide and an insecticide. This combination used on your fruit trees, helps to prevent fungus diseases like peach leaf curl. Used on berry bushes, it destroys red spiders and mites, breaking down the fertility of the eggs, as well as killing the "crawlers". In short, it prevents diseases and infestations from over-wintering in your garden. It is impossible to overstress the importance of good garden hygiene.

Start Amaryllis Now for Spring

By Bob Gilmore

Amaryllis does well in the Long Beach area if plant's two major needs are filled.

AMARYLLIS are very much at home in Southern California although their native habitat, South Africa, is thousands of miles away. Actually, the growing conditions in both regions are quite similar. It should be kept in mind, however, that the Southland is one of the few areas in the United States where amaryllis thrive outdoors during the winter season. They must have a mild environment.

The amaryllis is fairly easy to grow and will prove to be one of the most colorful of all spring or summer-flowering bulbs. But it possesses two rather peculiar growing demands. In the first place, the bulbs should be planted with about two-thirds of their height showing above the surface. This is extremely important.

ANOTHER RATHER amazing characteristic of the amaryllis is that, when grown in a pot, it likes to be crowded. Very little space should separate the amaryllis bulb from the sides of the container. A six-inch pot will very easily accommodate a good-sized bulb.

Styles in amaryllis change and variety Bella Donna which was once quite popular is now seldom seen. This was a pink-toned plant, often referred to as the "naked lady amaryllis" as the flowers appeared when the foliage was not in evidence. Today, the big demand is for the hybrids which offer some of the most brilliant shades in the plant kingdom.

Amaryllis bulbs are quite large, possibly ten times as large as the average gladiolus bulb. This means that a tremendous amount of food is stored up and the plant draws on this nutriment until its feeding roots are well established. Consequently, you are assured of success when growing this plant.

BULBS STARTED now should flower next spring. The hybrids contain all the known colors and can be obtained either in a mixed selection or in separate shades of dark red, scarlet, salmon, rose, orange, white and striped. The separate shades are usually imported while the mixed hybrids are of American origin.

In Southern California amaryllis may be grown in the outdoor garden or as a pot plant for patios, conservatories or in window boxes. The plants should be protected from excess moisture during the winter months. Adequate drainage should solve this problem. Use plenty of humus for outdoor culture and make certain that the drainage hole is covered with a curved section of pottery if clay pots are used. Then fill the bottom of the pot with a layer of broken bits of pottery.

The flowers are splendid for cutting and for indoor decorations. It is advisable to remove the pollen before bringing the blooms indoors. This lengthens the life of the flowers and prevents the pollen from falling on the petals and ruining their appearance. Cut the stems about four inches above the surface to prevent rotting.

Tips on Gardening

GARDEN TIPS for the week . . . Delphinium seeds do not keep their germination powers for a very long period and you must plant fresh seed or results will be disappointing. As a matter of fact, the germination of delphiniums drops quickly after the first six months. Placing the seeds in a refrigerator for a few weeks before planting is believed to encourage maximum results.

Late flowering varieties of fuchsias will add color to your garden for quite some time. Nurserymen have claimed that with proper selection you can have fuchsias flowering in your garden during every month of the year.

Bare spots in your landscape can ruin an otherwise attractive scene. A few suitable ground covers include variegated ivy, dichondra, green ivy, wild strawberry and trailing lantana.

Four members of the Asociacion de Charros de Ensenada confer on plans for entertaining visiting trailerites.

Trailerites to Roll

THE THIRD annual pilgrimage of trailer-travelers to south of the border this year will be to Ensenada over the Thanksgiving weekend, Nov. 24-27.

The "Holiday on Wheels" this year is expected to draw more than the approximately 300 trailers that have rolled south in previous years.

Adding to the festivities this year will be a Fiesta de los Charros and an International Boy Scout Camporee—some 250 Boy Scouts of the Walter Knott District, Northern Orange County Council—which will be held at San Miguel Village. Scouts will arrive in Ensenada on Nov. 25 and one of the high lights of their participation will be a ceremony on Nov. 26 when 40 Mexican youths will be adopted as "brothers" by the American Boy Scouts.

Bill James, Walter Knott District chairman, who also is the only U.S. member of the Asociacion de Charros de Ensenada, said the association of elite horsemen will be joined by charros from Tijuana, Rosarito Beach and Mexicali for the "Day of the Charros." Montrose Sheriff's Posse of 18 riders also will participate in the fiesta which climaxes the four-day holiday.

THERE WILL BE exhibitions of trained horses, trick riding, roping, a bloodless bullfight and songs and dances of Old Mexico.

The program for the four days:

Nov. 23—Arrival of trailers at the international border at Tijuana.

Nov. 24—Thanksgiving dinner at San Miguel Village. Burro baseball game between trailer teams.

Nov. 25—Boy Scouts scheduled to arrive at Playa Mission approximately at noon where they will be welcomed by Dr. Elpidio Berlanga, mayor of Ensenada. Holiday on Wheels activities: Cruise to Todos Santos Island for treasure hunt; style show at Estero Beach resort; dinner and entertainment at Maria Luisa Park; International street dance at Municipal Park.

Nov. 26 — Scouts display skills in the morning; participate in the Day of the Charros parade at 1 p.m.

Persons wishing additional information on Holidays on Wheels can write to Bill James, care of Western Mobile Home News, P.O. Box 1131, Long Beach, Calif.

Surf Bonanza

Men are the most avid surfers, Velzy declares and at one time it was easy to count the number of girls that surfed. Now he won't even estimate the number. "I deliver a lot of pink and pale-yellow boards," he says.

There appears to be no age limit for surfers. On the various beaches are youngsters who can't be over 6 or 7 years old and a near-octogenarian, Ed (Pop) Proctor, who surfs nearly every warm day and has for 20 years. "Surfing keeps you in the greatest health—it's a great body builder," Pop declares.

The boards today weigh around 25 pounds and the average price for a custom-made Velzy board is about $95 although many will run higher, such as the special Velzy racing board which carries a price tag of more than $500.

Today, Velzy ships his surfboards all over the world. The sport is still spreading and he is finding a ready market in Europe, South America, Australia and New Zealand.

RON DEARDEN
The Flying Fisherman

THEY CALL him the "Flying Fisherman." But does that mean he flies around trailing a pole and hook from his plane?

Nope.
Ron Dearden, owner-host at Harbor House restaurant, 701 E. Ocean Blvd., received his nickname a few years ago when he used to pilot his private plane regularly to Mexico to barter for fish which he imported and sold in his Long Beach market.

An expert on lobster and finny creatures, Dearden got his start in the fish business 13 years ago when he fished commercially in waters near San Clemente, Catalina and San Nicolas islands. This proved so successful that he opened a fish market on Pico Street, later moving it to Pierpoint Landing. The market, now operated by his son Wayne, has become a tourist landmark, thanks to its tank filled with cavorting seals.

A PLEASANT, friendly man with crew-cut hair, Dearden purchased the Harbor House three years ago. His complete knowledge of ocean delicacies has helped him enormously in pleasing his patrons, who have discovered that the Harbor House maintains one of the most varied sea food menus in the Long Beach area. Featured are superb whole broiled Pacific lobster ($3.75), kept alive in season, Oct. 1 to April 1, and that delight of gourmets—live Maine lobster ($6), flown here by jet. Other fine items are abalone steak ($2.85), fresh red snapper ($2.25), broiled swordfish ($2.50), fresh blue-point oysters and cherrystone clams ($1.85), and an a la carte choice steak sandwich ($2.50). The complete dinners include splendid rich Boston clam chowder, delicious salad, potatoes, bread and butter, beverage and dessert.

Luncheons are served daily from 11 a.m. on. Earl Lane provides lively piano entertainment nightly.

MIGHT BE FUN

TV Star Wants Job as Saleslady

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

One of television's most popular feminine stars wants to be a saleslady in a department store.

She's Elinor Donahue, who enacts the roles of Betty Anderson in "Father Knows Best" and Elinor Walker on "The Andy Griffith Show."

The 23-year-old brunette isn't quite sure why she wants to be a saleslady.

"I just think it would be fun," she said. "I've never had a job like that. The only other work I've done was in a candy factory and, of course, acting."

THE "ACTING" WORK started when she was about nine years old. She worked in movies for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It stopped when she was 12 years old and hit the "awkward" age.

Two years later, she was dancing in a chorus line at state fairs, police shows and similar events.

"I lied about my age to get the job," she said. "It was, incidentally, a very decent type chorus line. I was more covered than if I had been at the beach."

The "decent type" chorus line didn't work steadily.

SO ELINOR WENT to work with her mother in a candy factory. (Her father left the family when she was five years old.)

"I enjoyed the job," said Elinor. "I became the second fastest wafer packer in the factory. Mother was the first."

Her agent, Lillie Messinger, got her a test for the "Father Knows Best" role and Elinor was sure she muffed it.

"During the test, I cried, my voice shook and I had to ask for a glass of water," she said. "I couldn't believe it when they phoned me later and said I had the part."

THAT WAS EIGHT YEARS ago and wafer-packing Elinor has been a television star since.

TV TRANSITION FROM TEENAGER TO PHARMACIST SUCCEEDS

BERT'S EYE VIEW

'Thinking Machines' Goof During Election

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

The time is 1964 and the place is the East Coast. The first voter is about to cast his ballot for President.

"Hold it," says an election official. "Won't be necessary. The electronic-brain machines have already decided upon the winner."

Fantastic?

Maybe, but pretty close to what the television networks claimed for their computers prior to their test under ballot fire this week.

Each network was sure that, on the basis of early returns, its thinking machine would have the answer before the polls closed in New York.

All were consistent in their claims. The machines were consistent, too, in their early forecasting.

They were consistent in their inconsistency.

CBS correspondent Eric Sevareid put it beautifully.

"These computer machines have been going back and forth all night," he said. "They're giving us what Sam Goldwyn used to call a 'definite maybe'."

SEVAREID'S "BACK AND FORTH" reference was to the IBM 7090 used by his network. ABC also was having early forecasting difficulties with its UNIVAC which first came up with a trend for Vice President Nixon.

NBC's RCA 501's electoral vote predictions fluctuated as wildly as the stock market in 1929. However, unless I missed it somewhere along the channel-switching line, the 501 did rightly pick from the start the man who was going to garner the most electoral votes.

Later, all three electronic brains were pretty much decided that Sen. Kennedy would be the winner. It was a unanimous machine decision, however, that never was out of danger of being upset.

BEFORE TELECASTING of the election results was started, Oregon Gov. Mark O. Hatfield wired CBS President Frank Stanton.

The governor was concerned that the electronic-brain predictions based on East Coast results might keep West Coast voters from voting.

ANDRA MARTIN plays Indian maiden during "Maverick" episode at 7:30 p.m. Sunday on channel 7.

Personally, I think the governor was way off the ballot base and our record vote here would seem to verify that opinion.

The type of individual who wouldn't vote because a file-clerk, slide-rule machine had already made up its mechanical mind, is the kind of person who didn't intend voting in the first place.

One of them, female species, called the day after election.

"I'm sick and tired of it," she said. "When are we going to get our regular programs back."

"I don't give a darn who wins. I didn't even vote."

Sounds like a phony quote, doesn't it? Well, I admit I can't prove it.

I asked the lady for her name and permission to quote it in this column.

"You must be crazy," she said. "I'm not going to give you my name. If you'd use it, I'd sue you."

There's a woman who doesn't have the courage of her lack of convictions.

AND TALKING about convictions, I'm convinced that CBS provided the best election coverage. That was the case even though Ed Murrow was absent with "a touch of pneumonia."

Walter Cronkite was comparatively relaxed, but nonetheless accurate, and seemed, in the later hours, to have the most staying power.

Eric Sevareid's interview with Adlai Stevenson was a high point. Howard K. Smith's presentation of the IBM 7090's forecasts was ably put.

I thought this network utilized its electronic brain to the best advantage. The machine was asked more questions than its competitors about individual state forecasting.

NBC's David Brinkley was excellent. His partner, Chet Huntley, however, appeared to be on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

It was very unlike him. Normally, Huntley has more poise than Winston Churchill. He left it home election night.

NBC'S HERB KAPLOW, who was in Nixon's headquarters in Los Angeles, deserves the prize for the best individual performance of the evening.

At 12:05 a. m., the network switched to Kaplow who explained that the Vice President was expected to come down and make a statement.

The expectation didn't materialize at that point. Kaplow, to fill in the waiting period, backgrounded from memory Nixon's campaign.

His memory was all-inclusive and I can't remember him once repeating himself.

Kaplow must be good for NBC to keep him on. His beard is heavier—obvious to the television cameras—than the coat of a mountain goat.

ABC'S JOHN DALY, valiantly trying, was hamstrung with a mediocre staff. With the exception of Ed Fleming on the West Coast, they acted like amateurs compared with the personnel of the other two networks.

At 9 p. m. our time, with less than 50 per cent of the nation's results in, ABC declared Sen. Kennedy the new president.

The declaration at that point was too sensational and a reflection of poor reporting.

It is the voters, not machines, and not ABC, who declare a man President.

And certainly, in any case, not when only half the nation's ballots have been tallied.

To the network's credit, it did an excellent job of presenting Sen. Kennedy's press secretary after Vice President Nixon's "trend" statement.

ABC was the only network telecasting the personal announcement by Pierre Salinger, the press secretary.

On an over-all coverage basis, television turned in peak public service election reports. And I'll take that any day over "regular programs."

Singer Maureen Arthur's Stage Debut Fell Flat in Long Beach Theater

By EARL WILSON

Special to Independent Press-Telegram

NEW YORK — Bouncy blonde songstress Maureen Arthur, Jan Murray's "Girl Friday" on his new TV show, recalls, "I became 'stage-struck' — literally — in Long Beach when I was four."

"My father and uncle, David and Milton Arthur, used to own the Cabaret Theaters in Long Beach," she continues, "and one night I was at the movie when my father came onstage for bank night."

"I ran down the aisle toward Daddy—and fell right into the orchestra pit!"

Maureen's Uncle Milton still lives at 2105 E. Ocean Blvd., in Long Beach, and her grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth McArdle, lives at 801 Havana St.

MAUREEN'S PARENTS moved to St. Louis when she was seven, and she first came to New York when she was 20, as the winner of Garry Moore's nationwide search for a vocalist in 1957.

After singing on Moore's show and "Chance of a Lifetime," as well as playing the Palace, she went to Los Angeles to appear in an industrial show.

Ernie Kovacs saw her on the coast, and, struck by her resemblance to Edie Adams, brought her back to New York to sing on his show for four months.

She trekked out to Hollywood again last year to make a movie, "Hot Rod Gang," and from there went to Reno to play a nightclub date at Harold's Club.

JAN MURRAY, who was in Reno at the same time, came to see her show, and after swapping ad-libs with her onstage, decided she'd be just right for his TV show from New York this fall.

On the daily quiz show Maureen helps Jan with contestants and props, models clothes, makes announcements, and — sometimes — sings.

when there's 20 seconds left over at the end of the show," she sighs. "And I don't know many 20-second songs!"

"Jan's a terrific guy to work with," she attests, "but he keeps me running so much, I'm gonna get me a pair of roller skates."

"People watching the show don't realize how fast I have to dash around off-camera to get from one part of the studio to the other."

Busy Mother Eliminates 'Essential'

Most people get up in the morning and decide what inconsequential things can be eliminated during the day. When Mrs. Pauline Robertson arises she decides what essential things can be eliminated in her day.

Mrs. Robertson, the mother of nine children, is the wife of Roy L. Robertson, 43, of Amarillo, Texas, whose family will be the subject and cast of "Story of a Family," on NBC-TV (Channel 4) at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

"I'm up at 6:30 every morning," says 38-year-old Mrs. Robertson, "and the rest of the family gets up in shifts. The five school children eat with their parents and are out of the house by 8:10. Roy leaves at 7:40 and is in the store by 8 a.m. Then I turn my attention to the nursery crew.

*****
"WHEN THE CHILDREN return from school they are assigned household duties they must finish before they can go out and play. If they do all their work (everything from baby-sitting to taking out the trash) then they receive their allowance at the end of the week. If the work is done, but not willingly, they only get half their allowance. If the work is not done, no allowance."

The Robertson home has 16 rooms and 2½ baths, so it is essential that the children do their jobs to lessen their mother's burden.

In addition to her household chores ("The children always get attention before the house"), Mrs. Robertson finds the time to be active in her community and engage in several hobbies.

*****
SHE SERVES as a substitute Sunday school teacher, is social chairman of her Sunday school class, teaches a study course and directs plays in church dramatic productions (in which her husband acts) and is a committee chairman for United Church Women.

Her hobbies include "writing for my own amusement and occasionally for others," sewing and photography.

"I edit 'The Wayside-Westerner,' a weekly mimeographed paper we publish in the house for the people who live on Wayside Dr. and Western Ave." says Mrs. Robertson. "I have written campaign speeches for local politicians, church plays and poems for parties.

"I enjoy sewing," continues Mrs. Robertson, "and make many of the girls' dresses."

Her forte is photography, however, and a visitor to the Robertson home cannot leave without viewing some of the 7,000 color slides taken by Mrs. Robertson in the past 13 years. Each one is meticulously marked with the date and occasion and filed chronologically for the family's viewing pleasure.

Robertson Family

Science Series Set on Subject of Heredity

The role that deoxyribonucleic acid — DNA — plays in heredity will be explored Dec. 9 on a "Bell System Science Series" telecast.

Dr. Frank C. Baxter will serve as guide in presenting the story of genetics, "The Thread of Life."

In 1959, the Nobel Prize for medicine was awarded to Dr. Severo Ichoa and Prof. Arthur Kornberg for their studies of DNA.

The DNA molecule is now believed to be part of the gene that determines hereditary characteristics or the gene itself.

The program will explain the role of chromosomes and genes in heredity. It will also present the experiments of Gregor Mendel, which are the foundation of the science of genetics.

Jack Webb Leaves Television

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Jack Webb, who hit the jackpot in his first TV series, "Dragnet," followed it with four unsuccessful shows, and now is turning his full attention to motion pictures.

How does Jack explain his failure to repeat the runaway success of "Dragnet,"

"I'm not sure," he said. "Maybe it was the timing. Then again, two of the shows were experimental."

It was suggested that the reason his four recent series—"Noah's Ark," "Pete Kelly's Blues," "The D.A.'s Man" and "The Black Cat"—didn't make the grade was Jack's absence as a character in the shows.

"That's not for me to say," he said. "The reason I haven't gone into another series is simple. I didn't want to wear out my welcome. After all, we made 278 'Dragnet' films and they're still in reruns now as 'Badge 714.'"

"Another thing, I know my limitations as an actor, and I want to stay within those limitations."

In addition to the TV shows Jack's Mark VII productions also turned out four movies, "Dragnet," "Pete Kelly's Blues," "The D.I." and "—30—."

"I'm going another picture with United Artists soon, 'Purple Is The Color.' I also plan to make 'The Buffalo Soldiers,' but I won't appear in it. I'll be directing."

"I'm interested in directing now so that when the time comes that I'm not an attraction before the cameras I can turn to directing."

"It is something you have to learn slowly and well. I'm not an actor of great depth, but I enjoy it. I enjoy directing even more. I've visited the sets of some of the great directors—George Stevens, Billy Wilder and Danny Mann—to learn from them."

Webb admits many of the new detective, police and mystery shows are patterned somewhat after the pioneering "dragnet."

"We were just lucky in being first," he grinned. "Many of the things we did came from radio and motion pictures. We did do one thing, however—we portrayed policemen as well-trained men of intelligence."

Webb said he expects mystery and private eye shows to increase.

"We're a nation of mystery fans," he said, "just as we are fans of Westerns. As long as there is entertainment these two fields will be well represented."

Explore New Teaching Methods

Five months in the making, a special one-hour program tonight (Sunday) will explore dramatic new teaching methods at six American learning institutions.

Entitled "The Influential Americans," it's scheduled at 9 p.m. on channel 2.

It will show third-grade students studying foreign languages, two-teacher classrooms, and television class instructions originating from an airplane.

The program is not intended as an expose of what is wrong with American education. Rather, its emphasis is on startling, progressive developments.

It will also make the public aware that "great teachers exist in our country," according to Arthur D. Morse, producer-director for the special.

Howard K. Smith will serve as narrator. The special will be a presentation of "The General Electric Theater."

Cooke 'Chats' in Emergencies

(Editor's Note: After a season's absence, "Omnibus" returns to television today, Sunday, at 5 p.m. on channel 4. In the following, Associated Press TV Writer Cynthia Lowry tells about Alistair Cooke, the man who headed the seven-year, high-quality program since its start.)

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

Alistair Cooke, the lean, soft-spoken British journalist, has been host (or master of ceremonies) of "Omnibus"—since its start as an experiment underwritten by Ford Foundation money.

The first program, on the heels of the election, will be study of the institution of the American Presidency—just the sort of subject both "Omnibus" and Cooke enjoy sinking their teeth into.

Cooke, who will be 52 next week, is chief U. S. correspondent for the Manchester Guardian, one of Britain's leading newspapers, the author of two well-received non-fiction books and now an American citizen. His background makes him an ideal man to pull the show together. In pre-tape days of TV he single-handedly saved the program from disaster and worse, dead air.

Cooke originally planned to become an actor and studied for the theater. His newspaper career has carried him all over the world and fortunately a lot of what has seen and read has stuck in his mind.

ON ONE OCCASION, an actor in a dramatic scene skipped 13 speeches which made the program wind up almost eight minutes short. Cooke walked out before the cameras and on the spur of the moment lectured on a theory that children, if brought up by deaf mutes with no chance to hear speech, would invent a language of their own resembling Sanskrit.

On another occasion, under similar circumstances, somebody handed him a box containing glass replicas of famous gem stones and for almost 15 minutes Cooke rambled on about the history of the Kohinoor and other diamonds—from memory.

Once, when a technician misunderstood an order to cut 22 lines out of the prompter script and excised 22 pages of script, Cooke casually pulled up a chair beside lawyer Joseph Welch and they filled in the time chatting about famous jury trials. The unplanned portion of the program received the most complimentary critical notice.

"I love that part of the work," said Cooke. "And I think it is possible to handle emergencies because I never read my lines. First I write the frame of the program so that I know what I'm going to do. Then I write my material and when I've finished writing it, I know it pretty well. I'd rather memorize than read, because I then have the freedom to make changes, to reach out for an adjective."

OVER THE YEARS, "Omnibus" has carefully kept away from the "format" beloved of television producers and has roved freely through the calendar and the world of ideas.

"We've done everything from 'Antigone' to the circulation of the blood," says Cooke.

Although the journalist-broadcaster is willing—nay, eager—to tell of past milestones established by the program, he clams up when asked about specific ideas for future shows of the season.

"I think that would be unwise," he remarked apologetically. "But we do feel that there are many new areas to tap."

His second area of reticence is the cost of the program.

"There again, I don't want to say," he said. "But the other day we were thinking about our first program in 1953. We had the first Saroyin play on TV, some Maxwell Anderson, Rex Harrison and Lilli Palmer, Martyn Greene and the D'Oyly Carte Company—and the show cost $62,000. Today a show like that would cost between $240,000 and $280,000. For one thing, actors' fee have quintupled."

Port of Long Beach Viewed by Television Tuesday

Camouflaged under the television program title of "Expedition Los Angeles," the Port of Long Beach will be TV-featured this week.

The program airs 7 p.m. Tuesday on channel 7 with Vin Scully, "The Voice of the Dodgers," serving as narrator.

Advance publicity has indicated the program will concentrate on Los Angeles Harbor.

But the pictures accompanying the publicity packages have been of "The Port of Long Beach."

The program director reports that the "whole area will be covered."

Long Beach officials, for years, have worked to create a separate, distinct image for Long Beach Harbor. Reports from trade magazines abroad and at home indicate their efforts have met with increased success.

By contrast, Los Angeles

officials have not been adverse to identifying both harbors, Long Beach and Los Angeles, under the single classification of "Los Angeles Harbor."

Whether the program will specify the dividing line won't be known until the viewing.

The episode is entitled "The Port That Wasn't There." The fact is that there are two ports that weren't there.

realm," she said. "It was a natural transition for me."

If she had it to do all over again, Elinor is not sure she would pick acting as her career.

"It's rather confusing at times," she said. "Within myself, I'm sometimes not sure whether I'm a teenager or an adult."

She doesn't, however, expect to give up acting as a career now.

"I make much more money than I would at anything else."

THE STRIFE of her early teen years, when she wasn't sure whether Thanksgiving dinner would be turkey or hamburger, still is fresh with her.

"I can't get used to spending money," she said. "Last week, for the first time in my life, I went on a shopping spree and spent $200 on clothes."

"My hand was shaking when I signed the check."

In 1956, Elinor was married to Richard Smith, a film technician. The marriage, a brief one, ended in divorce. Elinor's son, 3½-year-old Brian, lives with her and her mother.

Despite the unhappiness of that first venture into matrimony, Elinor has not decided she is through with marriage.

"My current ambition is to get married, have five children and quit acting," she said.

And raising that many children is a job harder than being a saleslady.

MAN'S MAN WEARS APRON

Don't Call Him 'Sissy'

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—It takes a man's man to wear an apron and play housekeeper in a television series, and the sissy who's doing it is William Frawley.

Frawley, you will recall, played the irascible Fred Mertz in "I Love Lucy."

And he'd better not hear me or anyone else calling him a sissy.

Bill does wear an apron and does play "house mother" in the new Fred MacMurray show "My Three Sons." The comedy role calls for him to shepherd three rambunctious kids around, too.

But don't think old Fred Mertz, er . . . Bill Frawley . . . has gone soft. He's still the same cantankerous, crusty codger he always was.

"I'M BOSSY AND MEAN as ever," he grinned over a martini on the rocks, "but I'm loved, too. Those three boys—Tim Considine, Don Grady and Stanley Livingston—are my buddies. We got along just fine."

Does Bill miss Vivian Vance, who played his wife, Ethel, on the "Lucy" series?

"Only because I don't have a nagging wife to bounce the comedy off of," he growled. "There's nothing better than a battle-ax as a foil for laughs."

"As it is, I berate the kids and a dog named 'Tramp' in the new show. That dog is really funny; a big sloppy, good-natured slob who takes two or three steps and lies down right in front of me."

"I spend a lot of time in the kitchen and cleaning up the house."

"I can't fry an egg in real life. But on the show I turn out layer cakes and prune whip. I also sweep the dust under the rugs."

WILLIAM FRAWLEY

FRAWLEY'S ONLY COMPLAINT about the ABC-TV program is the lack of females in the format.

"So far the only girls who have shown up are romantic interest for MacMurray," he explained. "There aren't any girl friends written into the script for me, though."

"Maybe it's just as well. I might wind up with another old crow-type. On the other hand, it wouldn't be bad if they brought in some young chick for me to chase around the set," said the 67-year-old campaigner.

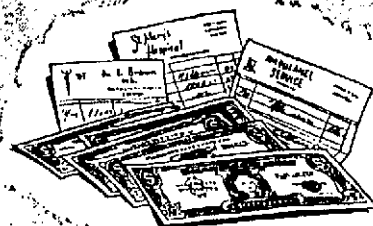

Frawley admits his role of 'Bub,' father-in-law to widower MacMurray and grandfather to the three boys, is similar to the Mertz part.

"So far it's been a lot of fun," he concluded. "But I'll tell you one thing, I'm not learning to cook."

It takes only a split second for an accident like this to happen...

and pile up bills that can wreck the family bank account...

A world of wonderful people

by PEARL BUCK

EDITOR'S NOTE: November 13-24 is National Retarded Children's Week. Of the approximately 5 million retarded persons in this country, 1½ million are children. However, it was only a decade ago that parents and friends of the mentally handicapped joined hands to form a national organization, the National Association for Retarded Children, to spur research and provide aid, education and training for them. Among those interested in their welfare was Pearl Buck, who told of her own mentally retarded daughter in her book, The Child Who Never Grew. Here she reveals what the experience has meant to her.

I CANNOT SAY that I am glad my child is retarded. That, indeed, would be folly. But I can say, with a full heart, that through her handicap she has brought me into a world of deep and quiet happiness because of renewed faith in human beings.

Through her I have met innumerable wonderful people. My life has been enriched, my heart kept warm, through the bond of our retarded children.

I meet these people everywhere in the world. From any crowd that presses about me, there is always someone, and usually more than one, who comes forward to take my hand and whisper, "I have a retarded child . . ." We look into each other's eyes with instant understanding and affection. We know. We know the meaning.

When I first had to accept the condition of my child, I felt a hopeless resignation, a meaningless sorrow. There was no comfort in knowing that thousands of other parents had the same burden to bear. That was only to heap sorrow upon sorrow.

The first relief came in communication with these other parents. Through the sharing of experience came the determination to work together for the children, not only our own, but all such children, born and unborn. One person, two people, can accomplish discouragingly little, but thousands of people together can perform a miracle. Best of all, perhaps, we have found that many parents of normal children in gratitude to life join with us in our effort for the retarded.

Meaning for Everyone

The miracle, however, extends far beyond the physical facts. The miracle is in the changed life of the retarded child, in the life of the family and especially in the life of the parents.

For there is meaning in the lives of our retarded children, meaning for everyone. They keep our hearts tender, they teach us patience, they keep love alive in us for all handicapped.

In this troubled and potentially cruel age, let us think of these innocent children, retarded through no fault of their own. They are not very different from the rest of us. They resemble us in more ways than they differ from us. All of us need love, understanding and acceptance, a chance to grow and develop to capacity. All retarded children can develop to some degree and at individual speeds. When we give to them, we give to ourselves. We gain understanding of life and we are inspired.

On Parade

Adolf Eichmann's capture has stirred up world-wide interest in the fate of other missing Nazi war criminals.

To track them down, PARADE's Washington correspondent, Jack Anderson (shown with airline hostess below), hopped a Varig 707-jetliner to South America, found German war criminals in Brazil, Argentina and Chile. What they and their associates told Jack in personal interviews is reported in his exclusive on-the-spot story, Nazi War Criminals in South America (page 6).

Anderson's report follows almost at the heels of PARADE's coverage of the capture of Adolf Eichmann, the SS leader charged with murdering millions of Jews and now languishing in an Israeli prison. PARADE correspondent Lloyd Shearer covered 16,000 miles on three continents to get his story (PARADE, The Case of Adolf Eichmann, July 24).

Anderson's inquisitiveness produced at least one interesting echo: "I was asking questions about Martin Bormann—he was Hitler's No. 1 deputy in 1945. So the Argentine police arrested a guy who looked like Bormann, name of Walter Flegel. Wrong man, of course, but the story was carried in all the newspapers. As for Bormann, I still think he's alive and hiding somewhere in South America."

How to make baby sing for his supper

Coos of approval are almost sure to ring in your ears when you serve a variety of foods to baby. The following suggestions may increase his enjoyment and acceptance of food:

Timing is ever so important when you introduce new foods to baby. The morning is usually a good time because baby is refreshed from sleep. It should be when he is reasonably hungry, but not necessarily at the beginning of a meal. Little ones vary greatly in when they are most receptive to new foods, and it may take a bit of experimenting to find out which time your cherub prefers.

Introducing Gerber Strained Foods is usually a cinch. That's because the flavors are naturally good, the texture smooth and nice-to-the-tongue. Over 50 tempting varieties ... all prepared to preserve the utmost in nutritional benefits.

Point to remember: When you start one new food, give baby a chance to get used to it before you offer another.

New convenience for you. All Gerber Strained Foods now wear a brand-new, bright blue label. Speeds shopping time, makes selection easier because the variety name is at the top of the label.

Baby will relish his food more if you don't force. Remember, no single food is a "must". Certainly baby needs protein, certain fats and a variety of vitamins and minerals, and he can get these nutrients from many different Gerber Baby Foods. If baby takes a temporary dislike to a food, choose an alternate from the Gerber goody list.

New and comfy, too. Gerber Baby Pants are just about the softest thing this side of a diaper. Made of silken-soft polyvinyl film that's waterproof, leak-proof, acid-proof. Won't stiffen, will stay soft for the life of the pants. Medium, large, extra-large.

A Parade reporter follows Eichmann's trail and tracks down

NAZI WAR CRIMINALS IN SOUTH AMERICA

by JACK ANDERSON

Parade Washington correspondent

BUENOS AIRES.

WHEN ADOLF EICHMANN was whisked off the streets by Israeli commandos, a shocked world woke up to the fact that a mass murderer had been at large for 15 years. People found themselves asking: How many more Eichmanns are still at liberty? How many other war criminals are posing as simple citizens while remaining monsters at heart?

To find the answers, PARADE sent this reporter on an extensive tour of South America. I found Nazi fugitives in Argentina, Brazil and Chile. Most were small fry, too inconsequential to trouble the world's conscience. But they led me to the fringe of the world's most secret and sinister coterie: the society of mass killers.

While none quite approaches Eichmann in the scale of infamy, all can be classed as artists in atrocity, massacre and genocide. Among them they have accounted for millions of innocent lives. They are in close touch with each other by a grapevine that spans the South American continent and reaches into the remotest parts of the pampas and jungle.

The kidnapping of Eichmann jolted these Nazis and sent them deeper into the underground. Suddenly these ex-hunters became the pursued; the terrorists became the terrorized. Only one—Herbert Cukurs with 32,000 massacred Jews charged against his past—holed up in his home and pleaded for police protection.

What manner of men belong to this macabre social circle? From their intimates I learned new facts about them. Let's begin with flop-eared, drooping-nosed, bandy-legged Eichmann, the man who once bragged: "I will leap into my grave laughing because the feeling that I have five million people on my conscience is a source of extraordinary satisfaction."

The Real Adolf Eichmann

As meek Richard Klement, Eichmann worked in the Buenos Aires office of Mercedes-Benz, the great German auto firm. He pretended to be a lowly, simple man—a role that was neither new nor strange to him. For at the height of his diabolical career as head of the Gestapo's Jewish Section, he tried to conceal his murderous mission from the German people by posing as a minor bureaucrat who never rose above the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

But in the company of his Nazi cohorts, he was a much different man given to hard drinking and boastful talk. Then his eyes would glitter. Of course, they Herbert Cukurs, alleged Latvian war criminal, runs a thriving seaplane business for tourists in Brazil.

Awaiting trial, ex-SS Colonel Adolf Eichmann was captured by Israelis in Argentina after 15-year world-wide manhunt.

Missing since 1945, Martin Bormann, Hitler's political heir, has been reported dead, but he is probably hiding in Brazil.

Nazi puppet, Dr. Ante Pavelic, was boss of Croatia, allegedly collected human eyes. He died recently on a visit to Spain.

knew his true identity. Some in the Mercedes plant referred to him openly, respectfully as "Herr Obersturmbaunfuehrer"—his old Nazi title. Once he lost his temper with a colleague, dropped his mild manner and snarled: "You dirty Jew!"

Nazi toadying to Eichmann, however, did not extend to financial help. His home on a lonely road outside Buenos Aires is modest in the extreme—"built with his own hands," his friends claim. It has no electricity, no water except for an outside hand pump.

Man with a Cane

When he was kidnapped in broad daylight off the Avenue General Paz, his wife and four sons disappeared into hiding. Now the boys have returned to their jobs. They have discussed with friends a desire to attend their father's trial in Tel Aviv. They cite the Soviet example in permitting the family of U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers to attend his trial in Moscow. But at this writing, the Eichmann boys were still too frightened to apply.

Tracking down the members of Murder Unlimited is no easy task. Those who know them and their whereabouts are frozen-tongued. Within 24 hours of the Eichmann kidnapping, for instance, a tall, handsome, graying businessman dropped out of sight. His friends respond with blank stares to inquiries about him.

He is Dr. Josef Mengele, described by the little Jewish girl Anne Frank as "the angel of extermination" at Auschwitz concentration camp. With a wave of his cane, Mengele decided which Jews should go to the gas chambers, which should be used for medical experiments, which should be worked to death.

He was known as a crank on racial-biological research with particular interest in the hereditary basis of twins. Children who resembled each other would be put together and coached to identify themselves as twins. Then Mengele might spare their lives—so long as they suited his experiments.

Thanks to family wealth, he acquired a small chemical plant here, lived comfortably, moved in good society, enjoyed deep discussions on history and philosophy. For security's sake, he did not practice medicine. But he never bothered to change his name—a fact which caused one former SS officer to comment to me on Mengele's "courage."

One of his last discussions with a friend was over the Communists' ability to develop brilliant scientists who would be political morons willing to obey unthinkingly. He told how Stalin had sought to create perfect police by crossing Lithuanians with Kirghiz—the first known for strength and fearlessness, the second for cunning, cruelty and indifference to human life. Mengele said that the Nazis, too, had made medical studies along these lines.

Another member of Eichmann's circle was Ante Pavelic, the terrible Nazi puppet boss of Croatia, who died last spring on a visit to Madrid. During his reign over Croatia, a part of Yugoslavia, he set his Ustashi storm troopers, as ruthless as the ancient hordes of Attila the Hun, to exterminate not only Jews but the Serbian minority as well. Their victims had their limbs torn off, eyes gouged out, skulls crushed with hammers. Wounded were sealed in caves with the dead.

The Italian author Curzio Malaparte reports visiting Pavelic in his palace in Zagreb and noticing on his desk a wicker basket filled with what appeared to be shelled oysters. When Malaparte asked whether they were Dalmatian oysters, Pavelic replied grimly: "It is a present from my loyal Ustashis. Forty pounds of human eyes."

Although Pavelic has gone to answer a Higher Judgment, his devoted followers maintain a headquarters here. His picture occupies the place of honor just inside the door, easily seen from the street.

Nazis on the Lam

In my search for war criminals, I picked up other trails. Eichmann's former boss, the darkly handsome Gestapo chief Heinrich Mueller, last seen in Hitler's bunker on April 29, 1945, lived secretly for a while in the mountains of Argentina's Cordoba province. He came here for a short stay, then moved south to Patagonia. The Eichmann kidnapping scared him, too, even in that remote territory. His trail has now disappeared.

Eichmann's counterpart in the Nazi foreign office, Franz Rademacher, is also in South America. His name appears on many documents relating to Jewish executions and deportations. While awaiting sentence as a war criminal he escaped to Argentina, then crossed the La Plata River into Uruguay. He was last seen in Montevideo where, back in 1940, he had served as secretary in the German legation.

Far down the totem pole in such murderous company is former SS Colonel Eugene Dollman, once Gestapo chief in Rome. He has a mere 200 murders credited to him. From reliable contacts, I learned that he is now living in this country under another name.

But most fascinating of all are the reports that Martin Bormann, Hitler's private secretary and heir apparent, is still alive in South America. My search for him apparently triggered the excitement that led Argentine police to pick up his double, one-armed Walter Flegel, who turned out to be merely a minor German refugee.

Bormann was with Hitler and his mistress, Eva Braun, during their last hours in the Berlin bunker. After Hitler's death, Bormann sent a telegram saying he was on his way to join Admiral Doenitz, then negotiating surrender. But Bormann never reached Doenitz. According to Hitler's chauffeur, Bormann was killed when a Russian bazooka hit the tank he was following through Berlin's Ziegelstrasse.

The Great Bormann Mystery

This testimony was given at the Nuremberg trials and was repeated by Nazis I met in South America. But I found their performance too pat to be convincing. Other sources, which I believe to be reliable, were equally definite in declaring that Hitler's heir had been planning his escape for months. When the end came, they say, he commandeered two submarines for a top-secret voyage to Argentina. One was the U-530, which he boarded with his family.

My pursuit of the Bormann rumors led to Milton Canto, introduced as a completely responsible person, who plans to settle on a cattle ranch in the interior of Brazil. He told me he was positive he had seen Bormann at a settlement called Xavantina in Goias State, Brazil. He claimed Bormann's features were still recognizable, though aged. He was flanked, said Canto, by two bodyguards. When Canto asked about the mystery man, he was told the man's name was Hermann Meng.

Brazil's efficient political police pooh-poohed this story. They described Xavantina as an airstrip on the edge of the jungle and said only Indians lived around there. Whoever Hermann Meng is, he was now vanished as if whisked to the moon.

Another reliable source, who asked not to be identified, has seen papers said to be written by Bormann. These papers were shown to Bormann's son, Martin Jr., who became a Catholic priest in Austria in 1958. He identified the handwriting as that of his father.

The last of the alleged war criminals still in the open is Herbert Cukurs, a stocky, muscular Latvian whom I tracked down outside Sao Paulo. Eye-witnesses charge he took a leading part in the massacre of 32,000 Jews in Riga in 1941. They claim he was the right-hand man to Viktor Ajars, chief of the pro-Nazi Perkonkrust (Thunder Cross) Party. When the Germans moved in, Ajars and Cukurs allegedly were given the job of liquidating all Jews. The Riga ghetto was cordoned off, city buses hauled Jews to a near-by forest for execution.

The Nazis are in hiding—but their victims are still scared

Witnesses declare that Cukurs, for variety, barricaded and burned some Jews in their own synagogues. Their affidavits charge that they saw him throw children into the flames. At night, they assert, he also barged into the homes of defenseless Jews and abused their daughters. The affidavits give names and dates.

Max Kaufmann, today a balding man of 63 who lives in New York, wrote a book on the extermination of the Jews of Latvia, of whom only 850 of 100,000 are believed to have survived. Kaufmann's first wife was among the 32,000 victims slaughtered during "the 10 bloody days" in 1941. His only son, who like him was saved because he was doing forced labor, was shot by the Nazis two years later, when he was 17.

Kaufmann's picture of Cukurs, whom he remembers seeing the first day of the slaughter, is sharply drawn: "He was big and arrogant—he had on a black leather coat and wore a big pistol at his side. I recognized him clearly—he was a well-known aviator whose picture had been in the newspapers."

Pistol-packin' Latvian

Interviewed in New York, Kaufmann found it difficult to talk about Cukurs. Somewhat less reticent was another survivor, who told PARADE: "I knew him personally from the old country. He was a cold-blooded one—he had no feelings about killing one person or 1,000." This survivor's dread of Cukurs remains.

"I changed my name when I came here," he went on, "because I'm afraid of Cukurs and his agents. They are everywhere, even here in New York. I know also what they will do if I talk."

Cukurs still likes to wear his leather jacket, and he still has his pistol. It was in a trim Spanish bungalow in a fashionable lakeside resort area that I came face to face with the scourge of Riga. After the Eichmann kidnapping, this one-time daredevil pilot and alleged Nazi executioner begged the Sao Paulo police for protection. Two armed guards are at his door day and night. As added insurance, he never moves without that pistol. As we talked, its barrel peeped from his hip pocket.

Cukurs escaped from Latvia with the retreating German army, set up his family in a home on the Rhine, then established himself in a flat in Berlin near his work as an aircraft engineer. He recalls wryly that his apartment was hit three times by Allied bombs.

When the end came, he made his way to Marseilles, then to Rio de Janeiro. Jewish leaders suspect he chose Brazil because no known survivors of the Riga massacre were in that country. But if his purpose was to avoid recognition, he failed. Less than four months after his arrival in November 1945, an alert Jewish representative in Stockholm tipped off Jewish leaders in Brazil that Cukurs was in their country.

It was three years, however, before Cukurs was found. He was operating a pleasure boat concession on a lake in Rio. Jewish youths picketed the place. When Cukurs applied for Brazilian citizenship, the Jewish community successfully blocked him.

Then he dropped out of sight until the Eichmann kidnapping and the appeal for police protection revealed his presence near Sao Paulo. He operates three seaplanes, giving joy rides to vacationers. But a former SS major confided to me that the planes were also "probably" used for whisking nervous Nazis into the interior where Cukurs owns two small ranches. These give him an excuse for flying inland.

A curious feature of Cukurs' character is that he saved a Jewish girl's life and brought her out of Latvia with his family. She is Miriam Keitzner, now married to a Jewish doctor in Rio. Cukurs cites her as evidence that he could not have been guilty of atrocities against the Jews. Yet in light of the scores of affidavits against him, the obvious question is: did Cukurs save Miriam's life in order to protect his own by using her as a plea for mercy?

That he is capable of this kind of cunning is suggested by an equally curious fact. He and his wife, both in their sixties, suddenly produced a Brazilian-born child after their other children (two sons and a daughter) were grown. The suspicion is that Cukurs may have picked up the boy from among Brazil's homeless waifs and claimed him as his own. The Brazilians are very sentimental and would be less likely to extradite Cukurs if he could claim a son born in the country.

I reached Cukurs' home on the Paulista Riviera after a long jeep ride over dirt roads. The two policemen on guard took my White House press card in to him. I caught a glimpse of him studying me carefully from the back yard. He strolled to the gate.

"So," he said, "you have come to see the great war criminal?" His smile was defensive, pleading, like a silent whine. Then he demanded: "Are you Jewish?"

When I said I was not, he grunted, "All right," and waved me through the gate. In broken English, nervously fingering his black, heavy-rimmed glasses, he launched into a rebuttal of the charges against him. He pulled out tattered yellowing documents, which he claimed proved his innocence.

The Plea of Innocence

It was the Jews, said Cukurs, not he, who had committed atrocities. When the Russians first overran Latvia, he charged, the Jews helped them to massacre Latvians. Most Latvians had looked upon the Germans as liberators, and he himself had led a band of Latvian partisans to help the Germans, he said. Later, he insisted he was both anti-German and anti-Russian.

Cukurs' manner was amiable enough, though always defensive. He made no attempt to hide his bitterness against the Jews. Finally he declared: "I do not have the blood of Jews on my hands." He also denied that he was a leader of the Latvian Perkonkrust Party. He claimed his only contact with Ajars, its leader, had been to repair some trucks. "I was too busy for politics and Jew-killing," he said.

But the affidavits against him, impressive in their detail, tell a different story. Another thing is clear, and it doesn't need the policemen at his door or the pistol on his hip to emphasize it. Herbert Cukurs is a very frightened man.

So are the other ex-Nazis.

Celebrity make-up tricks can help most club speakers

FACE THE CROWD

SO MANY AMERICAN WOMEN are involved in club work these days that most have learned how to make a speech at the drop of a PTA notice. But few of them know how to put their best face forward when speaking.

This doesn't surprise make-up expert Syd Simons of Chicago, who says that even celebrities have to be taught cosmetic tricks to look their best before an audience. Simons, who talked President Eisenhower into powdering his face for TV and who's made up such public figures as Helen Hayes, Mary Martin and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, adds that the cosmetic tricks he uses actually are simple.

"The idea is not to look glamorous, but to look natural," he explains. "But it takes make-up to look natural when you're standing on a platform under lights or talking to people a hundred feet away."

At PARADE's request, Simons worked out some basic cosmetic rules that can be used by any woman who has to stand up and make a speech. The rules are easy, and she can use ordinary cosmetics—the kind ladies already have in their purses.

"You don't have to worry about highlights or fancy details," says Simons, "because at a distance the audience won't see details. It won't even see your nose.

"The two facial features in motion while you speak are the mouth and eyebrows. That's what you concentrate on. Otherwise, use your ordinary make-up base, powder and rouge just the way you would for the street. Only remember to put your make-up on an hour before your speech so that it will feel normal by the time you're introduced."

Simons' rules for mouth and brows, explained in detail on the opposite page, are based on the fact that most overhead lighting casts shadows, so make-up should be brighter than usual. If the platform has no lighting, your face will be too dim for the audience to see unless it's made up.

The first demonstration of "cosmetics for club women" was given to Mrs. Mildred Plumb, president of the Home Fashions League of New York. Mrs. Plumb thought the make-up was perfect for the average woman, especially since it does not look garish at close range. After a lesson with Simons, Mrs. Plumb could put on her speaker's face in 20 minutes. If you read the instructions carefully, you should be able to do the same. You'll stop worrying about your face and concentrate on the speech.

Make-up expert Syd Simons demonstrates to clubwoman Mildred Plumb the "extended brow" he designed for women who make speeches. Simons used ordinary lead pencil to paint professional model Ge Ge Galligan's brows. Bright red lipstick completes make-up.

EYES and BROWS

Apply a bright color eyeshadow, pale green or blue, lightly from the edge of your upper eyelid to the brow. Use black or dark-blue mascara on lashes; give lash tips a second coat. For the brows, use an ordinary soft lead pencil—not a liner—no matter what color the brows are. Using short, tiny strokes, extend the brow line to the side so it won't seem chopped off at a distance. If you wear glasses, raise your eyebrows slightly with pencil, so they'll show.

LIPS and BASE

Use bright red lipstick: a clear red, nothing purplish or orangey. Give the mouth a definite outline, quite full, and fill in with lots of lipstick. Your mouth will be in motion constantly as you speak, and you should have enough lipstick on to last throughout the speech.

Your usual base, powder and rouge will be fine. Don't try any shadow or highlight tricks. Just before you speak, re-powder your nose to eliminate shine.

Pocket and table radio: Here's a pocket-size transistor radio (left) that becomes a table radio when slipped into an attractive speaker box. Along with 4" speaker, the box houses its own batteries to eliminate drain on the little radio's penlite batteries. And the box also has a converter so the radio can operate on AC house current. Radio with batteries, earphone, leather case: $39.95; speaker box: $19.95. Transistor World Corp., Dept. PP, 52 Broadway, New York, N.Y.

Clip and cut: Handy for men who like to carry a fold of money in a pocket, this new 2 1/4" x 1" clip (left) opens with a press on the round end. And fitted on the side are a knife blade plus nail file and cleaner point. Also useful on a desk to hold memos. In stainless steel: $3.85. Corrado, Dept. PP, 26 N. Clark St., Chicago 2, Ill.

Deodorizing light: This novel electric lamp (left) looks like a flower in a vase. Turn on the switch and the bulb set in the petals illuminates the flower in colors. And as the flower is heated, any perfume sprayed on it will fill a room with fragrance. When sprayed with insecticide, it can be used as an insect-killer. Of non-flammable plastic, it's 12" high. $3.95. Fitzgerald Co., Dept. PP, 128 Cynthia Dr., Hampton, Va.

Fingertip bandage: Add a handy item for your medicine chest—a pre-cut, one-piece bandage for fingertip injuries. On in seconds without fuss, it makes a neat, form-fitting cover for cuts, blisters, etc. It keeps a wound dry, won't loosen in water. Pack of eight, plus 20 regular band-type strips: 59¢. U. S. Plastic Bandage Co., Dept. PP, 323 Niagara St., Buffalo 1, N.Y.

Snap-off bags: You'll find many uses for new heavy-gauge clear plastic bags that come packaged like wax paper—in a roll. Pull one off, secure the top with one of the wire twists included in the package and you have a 10" x 14" air- and water-tight bag—good for freezer and refrigerator use, tossing salads, flouring meat and fish. Use the bags, too, for dampened laundry and keeping paint brushes pliable. One bag within another acts as a vacuum to keep hot liquids hot, cold ones cold. Non-wrinkling, washable, reusable. Roll of 20: 49¢. Lion Packaging Products, Dept. PP, 260 Duffy St., Hicksville, N.Y.

Sure footing: To permanently slip-proof danger areas around the home, there's a plastic sheet that contains narrow and colorful rubber strips of varying lengths. In one simple operation, the sheet automatically transfers an attractive pattern of strips to any slippery surface. In 16" size for kitchen, nursery, stall shower and scatter rugs: $1.98; 24" size for bathtubs and entrance doors: $2.98. Modern Ways, Inc., Dept. PP, 48 W. 25th St., New York 1, N.Y.

For your workshop: New idea for the home handyman is a matched set of three portable electric tools—drill, sander and jig-saw—in a fitted storage container. And each tool has a lead cord only 4" long that plugs into a 10' extension cord. The short leads eliminate tangles in storage and on the workbench. The set, with various combinations of accessories: $40 to $50. SpeedWay Division, Thor Power Tool, Dept. PP, 1421 Barnsdale Rd., LaGrange Park, Ill.

There's gold in the sidelines

THIRTY YEARS AGO a lean, hungry, teen-aged farmboy from Portsmouth, Ohio, named Leonard Slye went west to California looking for a job, any sort of job.

With two years of high school behind him and no particular skill, young Slye worked around Los Angeles as an itinerant fruit picker, truck driver and guitar player.

Today, at 48, Leonard Slye is Roy Rogers, multimillionaire TV, film, rodeo and recording star. He is worth, by conservative estimate, $10 million and has more businesses going for him than any other synthetic cowboy in history.

Rogers' latest money-minting corporation is National Football League Enterprises, a firm that merchandises products bearing the symbols of the 13 professional football teams comprising the league.

Next time you buy a pennant at a Washington Redskins' pro game or a T-shirt with the Detroit Lions' insignia for your young son, remember that Rogers is splitting a 5 per cent royalty on your purchase with the team owners.

This may sound like small pickings. But the 45 manufacturers who have tied in with Rogers as licensees expect to sell approximately $20 million worth of football merchandise this year and maybe double that figure in 1961.

Under the heading of "football merchandise" comes any product bearing an NFL team insignia.

In addition to pennants, T-shirts, caps and, of course, footballs, there are RCA-Victor record albums of football marching songs, cigarette lighters, glassware, dolls, thermos products, ties, blankets, coats, pajamas, practically anything you can think of. At the moment, approximately 300 products are being turned out, and Rogers has a lengthy list of manufacturers who have applied for licenses.

Supply and Demand

To date the best selling product has been a bobbing-head doll that sells for a dollar. More than 500,000 of these have been produced in Japan in response to an order for one million. Japanese doll manufacturers say they cannot fill the demand this season but will try to meet it next year. They are also turning out a pair of binoculars with a built-in transistor radio so a fan can watch one game while simultaneously listening to another.

Most expensive product on the list is the men's flannel sports coat, which sells for $69.50. Such sports coats with team insignia are an exclusive item. They are sold only to season ticket-holders.

Why was Roy Rogers, a film and TV cowboy, chosen to handle the merchandising of so-called football products?

When I asked Rogers this question, he grinned broadly and explained: "Merchandising is merchandising. There's no difference, whether a store is selling a Roy Rogers revolver or a junior St. Louis Cardinals' football outfit just like the pros wear. The National Football League came to me because I've got the merchandising setup, the organization."

In the past eight years Roy Rogers Enterprises has been doing a $30 million annual gross at retail with cowboy boots, hats, clothes and other Western products.

"Pete Rozelle, the football commissioner who used to be with the Los Angeles Rams, got in touch with me earlier this year," Rogers says, "and explained to me that his football owners had a problem. There were millions of pro football fans—12 million attended games and another 35 million watched them on TV last year—who wanted to identify themselves with their local clubs.

"The owners found themselves in a skyrocketing sideline business. You know, selling dolls, pennants, other souvenirs to the fans. They were mindful of the tremendous profit potential in this sideline business but they weren't equipped to handle it. What they were primarily interested in was winning football games."

Caps and sweatshirts (above) with local pro team insignia are two of the hottest selling football items. Rogers' next venture will be a Little Football League.

Skyrocketing Business

Rozelle suggested the Roy Rogers organization to the club-owners because Rogers had made a success of merchandising Western products by insisting that his licensees produce goods of high quality and refrain from price-cutting.

More than 3,000 stores in the country are currently retailing the NFL products, and the Rogers organization, to promote the sales of more merchandise, is sponsoring father and son contests—who passes more accurately, Dad or Danny? The ballyhoo boys also are promoting Pass-Punt-Placekick contests in which youngsters from 6 to 12 participate. Winners perform between halves at the pro football games.

The most grandiose promotion scheme currently on the boards is a Little Football League similar to the Little League in baseball.

"If we ever get that one going," says Rogers, "this business will skyrocket to the moon."

Stuffed dolls like the one shown here, also Japanese-made bobbing-head dolls, are popular with women.

Mom's the word!

Things are back to normal in the John Doe household—there's another crisis. Mom and Dad never do seem to get organized, but they always muddle through somehow, as PARADE's cartoonists show.

"All right, Edith, c'mon! I'll take you out."

"Honestly, when I think how I plotted and schemed to marry you . . . !"

"The biggest get-well card you have—it's for my wife."

My favorite jokes

by HANK HENRY

EDITOR'S NOTE: Hank Henry at 51 is currently the No. 1 burlesque comedian in the country. Hank's home base is the Silver Slipper Casino in Las Vegas, Nev. But he also appears on TV (the Ed Sullivan, George Gobel, Betty Hutton shows) and in such films as The Joker Is Wild, Pal Joey, Ocean's 11 and Pepe.

Over the years comics such as Milton Berle, Phil Silvers, Sid Caesar and a host of other personalities have become Hank Henry aficionados. The typical Henry act features such slapstick props as custard pies, seltzer bottles, pretty girls and a rapid-fire delivery of such gags as the ones below:

A MAN DINING in a chain store restaurant complained to the waitress, "Miss, there's a twig in my soup." The waitress calmly replied, "It's quite all right, sir, we have branches all over the country."

A POLICEMAN saw a woman lying in the gutter on Main Street. Frantically he asked her, "Are you hurt badly, madame?" "Oh no, I'm not hurt at all," replied the woman, "I'm just saving a parking space for my husband."

"DOCTOR," said a distracted mother to her psychiatrist, "my little boy keeps eating grapes all the time." "There's nothing abnormal about that," replied the doctor.

"Why—from the paper on the wall?" said the worried mother.

ONE SAFE CRACKER to another: "Hurry up and get the safe open. Why are you using your toes to turn the dial instead of your fingers?"

Second safe cracker: "I'd like to see the expressions on the cops' faces when they start looking for finger prints."

A YOUNG BOY who broke his arm asked the doctor, "Will I be able to play the piano when my arm heals?" "Certainly," replied the doctor. "That's strange," said the boy, "I could never play it before."

MARY HAD a little lamb its foot was black with soot. Into Mary's bowl of milk its sooty footy put.

* We're looking for people who like to draw

IF YOU LIKE TO DRAW, America's 12 Most Famous Artists want to test your art talent. We'd like to help you find out whether you can be trained to be a successful, money-making artist.

This offer is part of a program we began ten years ago. We found that many men and women who could have become artists — and should have become artists — never did. Most of them were unsure of their talent and had no way of finding out whether it was worth developing. Others who were convinced they had talent simply couldn't get top notch professional art training without leaving home or giving up their jobs.

A Plan to Help Others

We decided to do something about this. We decided to make it possible for anyone, anywhere, who likes to draw — and who has talent worth developing — to get the training he needs to become an artist. Taking time off from our busy art careers, we pooled the extensive knowledge of art, the professional know-how, and the priceless trade secrets which we, ourselves, were able to learn only through long and successful experience.

We illustrated this knowledge with 5,000 special drawings; then organized it into a series of lessons covering every aspect of drawing and painting... lessons that anyone could take right in their own homes and in their spare time. Finally — after years of teaching — we perfected what is probably the most personal and effective method ever developed for criticizing a student's drawings and paintings.

Our program of art training is now well known and respected all over America. During the past ten years, we have helped thousands of people find success in art. Here are just a few:

Don Smith lives in New Orleans. Three years ago Don knew nothing about art — even doubted he had talent. Today, he is an illustrator with a leading advertising agency in the South — and has a future as big as he wants to make it.

Father of Three Wins New Career

Stanley Bowen — a married man with three children, unhappy in a "dead-end" job — began studying with us, evenings. Now he's earning a much higher salary as an illustrator for a growing art studio. And his family sees a happy, secure future ahead.

With our training, Wanda Pickulski of Roxford, N. Y., was able to give up her typing job to become fashion artist for a local department store.

Changes His Whole Life

"Your course has been the difference between failure and success for me," writes Robert Meecham of Ontario, Canada. "I've come from an $18.00 a week apprentice to where I now own my own house, two cars, and hold stock in two companies."

Earns Seven Times As Much

Eric Ericson used to be a clerk in an auto parts department. Thanks to our training, he is now an art director at seven times the salary he was making when he enrolled.

When Kathryn Gorsuch of Mt. Vernon, Ohio found out she was to have a baby — she left her filing job at an aircraft company and studied art at home with us. By the time the baby was seven months old, she went back to work for the same company... this time as a well-paid commercial artist.

John Whitaker of Memphis was an airline clerk when he enrolled with us. Two years later, he won a prize in a national cartooning contest and was signed to do a daily comic strip for a group of newspapers.

Profitable Hobby — at 72

A great-grandmother in Newark, Ohio decided to use her spare time to study painting. Recently, she had her first local "one-man" show — where she sold thirty-two water colors and five oil paintings.

Donald Kern — a cowboy from Miles City, Montana — studied art with us. Now he paints portraits, sells them for $250 each, and gets all the business he can handle.

Mother Boosts Family's Income

Elizabeth Lincoln — mother of six — is now teaching art classes in her Massachusetts home and building a tidy nest egg for her children's education.

In just four months Doris White of Wauwatosa, Wis., has painted and sold $750 worth of paintings... all in her spare time!
